HARRIMAN AT WORK IN MOUNTAIN HOME

IN TOUCH WITH OFFICE

Telephone Messages Apprising Him of Drop of Stocks in Wall Street Received Every Few Minutes.

Special to The New York Times.

ARDEN, N. Y., Aug. 26.—That E. H. Harriman is a much stronger man to-night than he was last night is a fact, all other reports to the contrary notwithstanding, for Mr. Harriman has traversed the grounds of the beautiful mountain home on Tower Hill all day from 9 o'clock this morning, besides transacting a great amount of business in his temporary offices on the second floor of the home.

Dr. Lyle, his physician, pronounced his condition to-night as being 100 per cent. better than it was the first night he slept at Arden.

Mr. Harriman arose, as usual, at 8:30 o'clock this morning and was in the dining room at 9 o'clock partaking of his breakfast. He ate an orange, a dish of cereal, two poached eggs with some toast, and he seemed to relish the meal. After breakfast he strolled out into the Grecian gardens with the members of his family and remained there until 10:30 o'clock. He then went to his office rooms, where he received such mail as his secretary thought demanded his personal attention. Then he dictated a number of letters to his New York assistants, and also his right-hand men in the West.

At 11:30 o'clock he talked over the telephone with his office at 120 Broadway, New York, and at noon was called to the telephone to be advised of the slump in Union Pacific and other stocks in which he has a controlling interest. He was not surprised to learn that Union Pacific had gone down, and from sources which can be relied upon, Mr. Harriman expects that stock to go much lower. He assigns as the real cause of the slump the fact that some of the stock is held by weak-hearted speculators, who fear a change in the management of the road, and to ill-founded reports as to his condition.

Expects Lower Prices.

It is known that the Harriman interests bought a large block of the stock to-day, although R. S. Lovett, counsel and first assistant to Mr. Harriman, would not verify the statement.

Mr. Harriman is prepared for a still greater slump in Union Pacific, and it was said here to-day that New York Central might go lower. From an authoritative source it was stated to-night as a reason for the unloading of Union Pacific and Southern Pacific that speculators wanted the quotations down as low as possible, believing now that if they can push the stock down Mr. Harriman's first appearance in New York will send it up again.

A man at the Harriman house said: "Wall Street has an attack of nervousness, and is suffering more than Mr. Harriman is." He predicted a rise to-morrow and the following day.

From Mr. Harriman's personal advisers and friends comes the statement also to-night that Judge Lovett will not assume the active management of the Harriman properties any more than he has already assumed. Judge Lovett has been holding Mr. Harriman's place since he went across the ocean and is now transacting all of his personal business matters.

Dr. Lyle Encouraged.

A private telephone line connecting Arden Place with the Union Pacific offices has been established, and Mr. Harriman gets reports from there every fifteen minutes.

Dr. Lyle was greatly encouraged by the financier's condition to-day. Mr. Harriman spent a great deal of the afternoon in the grounds of his home. He walked about the terraces, where wheeled chairs could not very well navigate, and it was but a short time that he occupied an invalid's chair on the veranda. He spent a great deal of his time with his family, and especially with his elder son, Averill, who arrived about noon to-day.

The father and son were a great deal together in the Grecian and terrace gardens, the elder Harriman taking pleasure in showing the son all the points of interest about the grounds. Averill has been working with a surveyor in the West on one of his father's railroad improvements, carrying a chain. He came out of the grounds about 6 o'clock, and in answer to an inquiry into his father's condition, said:

Not Very Ill, Son Says.

"I don't think father is very sick. He doesn't look so to me. He looks just as happy as he did when I saw him last. He is thin, but most any one would be after undergoing what he has. A person who knows what a Russian or Turkish bath is like can realize what those are in Vienna, where it is said that they are a dozen times as rough."

Averill was not summoned home by a hurry telegram. His mother wrote him more than two months ago that he was to come home for a month in September. He did not expect to come until next month, but his earlier arrival is due to the earlier arrival of the family from Europe. He expects to go back the latter part of September.

Plans More Improvements.

This evening from 6 until nearly 9 o'clock Mr. Harriman talked with C. P. Ford, his General Superintendent at Arden, relative to building another wing to the building, and some other improvements.

Mr. Harriman intends to have a library in the new building, together with bowling alleys and billiard rooms. He was anxious to take up this conference with Mr. Ford yesterday, but the latter was told by Dr. Lyle to put it off. To-day Dr. Lyle told Mr. Ford he might talk with the financier as long as he liked, for the interview would not harm him, Dr. Lyle was sure.

Mr. Harriman did not feel fatigued to-night. At 9 o'clock he was sitting in one of the loges in the grounds surrounded by the members of his family. He went

BIG OIL TANKS AFIRE.

$12,000 Loss to the Standard Oil Company at Ocean Grove, N. J.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 26.—The opening night of the carnival was enlivened by one of the biggest fires this vicinity has ever seen. It was most spectacular, involving much of the Standard Oil Company's property and of a lumber yard.

The local and Ocean Grove fire-fighters were handled by Deputy Fire Chief Root of New York and former Chief Benedict of Newark, and it was largely to their skill that the fire was kept from spreading. The fire was declared under control at midnight.

The fire was close to the railroad tracks in Ocean Grove. Three tanks of the Standard Oil Company and a brick storehouse in which there was stored barreled gasoline, was destroyed. The fire started on a tank containing kerosene and spread to another, and then to a tank containing 1,700 gallons of gasoline.

While the kerosene tanks were burning Thomas Costigan, the local representative of the Standard Oil Company, climbed up amid the great heat to the top of the gasoline tank and opened a valve to prevent an explosion. There were 16,000 gallons of kerosene in the tanks.

Adjoining the Standard Oil Company's property is the Lewis Lumber Company's yards and mill. A part of this caught fire, and there the firemen fought the flames and saved most of the lumber, although $7,500 damage was done.

To the north of the oil tanks was the Consumers' Coal Company's trestle, and $3,000 worth of damage was done there. The oil company's loss will be about $12,000. There were a number of small losses, where buildings at some distance away caught fire.

CHOLERA ON INBOUND SHIP.

Washington Warned of Infected Vessel from Rotterdam for Baltimore.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The Dutch ship Andyk is en route to the United States with cholera aboard, according to a cable message from the American Consul at Rotterdam, received by the Marine Hospital Service to-day through the State Department. The cablegram reads: "Cholera, Andyk, Wednesday, Baltimore."

This message is interpreted as meaning that the Andyk sailed yesterday from Rotterdam for Baltimore with one or more cases of cholera aboard.

The vessel is a slow steamer, and is not expected to arrive off Cape Charles until about the 8th of September. In the meantime the hospital service will take steps to prevent landing until a thorough investigation shall have been made. Surgeon General Wyman of the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service has cabled for full information as to where the vessel has been, the number of passengers and crew, and the sanitary precaution taken.

Surgeon General Wyman has also cabled Assistant Surgeon Robert A. C. Wollenburg, stationed at Naples, to proceed at once to Rotterdam to assist American Consul Listoe in seeing that Treasury Department regulations regarding vessels sailing for the United States are carried out. The greatest precautions are to be taken to prevent the introduction of the disease into the United States.

ROTTERDAM, Aug. 26.—Several cases of suspected cholera have been reported in Rotterdam since the discovery of the disease here yesterday, notably, among the occupants of a barge on board which a child had died previously.

At to-day's sitting of the Municipal Council the Burgomaster announced that there had been four deaths from cholera, and that out of nine suspected cases now in the isolation sheds, three had been found to be infected with cholera bacillus. An examination of the others has not yet been concluded. Forty-two apparently healthy persons who have been in contact with those declared infected, are now under observation.

THE HAGUE, Aug. 26.—The outbreak of cholera at Rotterdam has caused the most serious alarm here as well as at other places in Holland, and stringent precautions have been adopted everywhere to prevent the spread of the disease. The proposed visit of the Queen Dowager and the Princesses of Bentheim to Rotterdam has been canceled.

MADNESS IN A PENITENTIARY.

Pennsylvania Prisoners Are Without Occupation Much of the Time.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 26.—The announcement is made that convicts are going insane by the wholesale in Riverside Penitentiary. Idle prisoners' frays with fellow convicts over real or imaginary wrongs, their plots to escape, and their sullen attitude toward the guards, together with the melancholia which has terminated in dementia for many of the inmates, have forced Warden John Francies to take the first step toward decreasing the population of the Western Penitentiary by ridding it of nearly three score of convicts who have become mad since their incarceration.

The Warden will ask that every mounty which has prisoners in the penitentiary appoint a commission to inquire into the sanity of its convicts and take away those who are hopelessly insane.

It is hoped in this way to get rid of some of the dangerous men and leave more employment for those who remain. Idleness, enforced by the Pennsylvania laws, which prohibit convict labor outside of the prison walls and restrict the use of machinery even in the prison, is responsible, the prison authorities say, for the condition of most of the demented convicts.

Warden Francies hopes to have the sanity commissions made permanent, so that whenever a convict loses his mind he may be taken away from the other prisoners and may be put in an institution for the insane.

There are at present about 1,300 convicts in the Western Penitentiary. Only 30 per cent. of them have work. That means that over 900 are idle. They work in turns, and when a prisoner has finished his allotted time of work—about a week—it is more than forty days before he again has employment. During the interval the unfortunate convict sits and broods in his cell, and in many cases becomes insane.

SAYS CZAR HAS PART IN POLICE CRIMES

Bourtzeff Publishes Alleged Fac Simile of Secret Journal Meant for His Eye.

ASSERTS CZAR MARKED IT

Gives Details of Every Atrocity of Russian System of Spying and Provoking Revolutionary Acts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—With one blow Bourtzeff, the famous Russian revolutionary, has scattered to the winds, so far as democratic Germans are concerned, what he describes as "the legend of the Czar's ignorance and therefore innocence of the horrors committed by the Russian secret police."

In the columns of the Socialist Vorwärts Bourtzeff publishes a photographic fac simile of the front page of what he declares to be one issue of a special hand-written newspaper issued only for the Czar's information, and containing month by month the exact unvarnished details of all the atrocities perpetrated by the Russian police in the Czar's name.

Further, this document bears the blue chalk marks said to be made by the Czar to show that he had read it. The marks are varnished over to preserve them against decay, and will be used to prove, when necessary, that the Czar knew and approved the most atrocious measures taken by his police. Vorwärts will publish the successive installments of Bourtzeff's revelations as based on photographic reproductions of passages in this hand-written monthly record, which is officially known as "The Journal of the Czar."

Learned Secret from Spy.

In the first installment to-day Bourtzeff relates how he came to hear of the existence of the journal. While he was a refugee in London he was introduced by a mutual friend to a man named Krivotch, who was a political spy of the Russian Government. After a long talk one night Krivotch and Bourtzeff met next day at the British Museum, where Bourtzeff showed the Russian spy around the buildings. Like many Russians outside of Russia, Krivotch became communicative and revealed to Bourtzeff much valuable information regarding the Czar, and, among other things, mentioned the existence of this secret "Journal of the Czar."

Bourtzeff at once recognized the importance of what he heard, and urged Krivotch to secure him a copy, but the latter failed to keep his promise, probably because he was himself followed by spies, and on his return to St. Petersburg was hauled over the coals by the Minister of the Interior for consorting in London with a revolutionary. However, Bourtzeff left no stone unturned to secure a copy of the journal, and though several imprisonments handicapped him, he made, he declares, accurate studies of many folios of the journal. Upon these studies Bourtzeff will now base this series of revelations regarding the Czar's complicity in police methods—revelations which bid fair to hold the Russian monarch up to the execration of the rest of the world.

Says Czar Knows All.

Bourtzeff says: "Strikes, deportations, arrests, pursuits, spying—all that concerns the contest against the revolutionaries and against the people is related with cynicism. The journal gives an exact description of the system of spying, of police methods, of provoking disorders, and of all the bloody acts of violence which occur in Russia. The Czar knows of the existence of agents provocateurs, reads the letters stolen by the police, and knows how they are stolen," &c.

Bourtzeff concludes:

"To the Russian Government all means of combating revolution are good, however ghastly they may be, and the Czar knows and approves all."

It is needless to say this amazing statement, accompanied by what are offered as photographic reproductions of the original document, to be followed by similar reproductions from the journal showing what are the ghastly methods known to and approved by the Czar, has created the greatest satisfaction here, where the theory of the Czar's non-complicity in the bestialities of the Russian police has always been held by the bourgeois as a sacred article of their political creed. For the present the bourgeois press is too staggered to comment, and doubtless is awaiting the promised further revelations. Almost greater than in Germany will probably be the impression produced in England, where the press is less restrained by the Government.

STEAMERS CRASH IN THE BAY.

The Albertina Smashes the Side of the Caswell—Passengers in a Panic.

As the Liberty Island steamer Herman F. Caswell was leaving her pier, at the Battery, yesterday morning, carrying fifty sightseers bound for the statue of Liberty, the excursion steamer Albertina, almost six times the size of the other craft, crashed into her and raked her side from the bow to the engine room. The stanchions supporting the upper deck were torn away and the side was smashed in.

The Captain of the Albertina said his rudder cable had broken, and that he had lost control of the boat. His vessel was not damaged.

The Caswell was pulled back to the pier, where the passengers, badly frightened but not hurt, were taken off. The boat was sent to a Brooklyn dry dock for repairs.

LONG DELAY FOR CURRENCY REFORM

Senator Aldrich Tells President Report of Commission Must Wait Several Months.

OPPOSED TO BOND ISSUES

Favors Withholding Panama Securities Until Monetary Commission Completes Its Work.

BEVERLY, Mass., Aug. 26.—President Taft had a two-and-a-half-hour talk this afternoon with Senator Nelson W. Aldrich and Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh. Senator Aldrich is about to take up the task of adjusting the monetary system of the country, and it was in connection with his work as Chairman of the Monetary Commission that he was called in conference by the President to-day.

Mr. Taft, before framing up his own legislative plan for the coming session of Congress, was anxious to ascertain whether or not the Monetary Commission will be ready to report its recommendations this Winter. It is understood that a definite answer was not given to-day, but the chances are that the commission will not be able to place its conclusions before Congress for several months.

Senator Aldrich said after the conference with President Taft that matters had been discussed only in a general way. The Monetary Commission had expected to devote the entire Summer to the subjects that have been mapped out for its consideration, but the long tariff fight in the Senate utterly defeated this purpose.

Mr. Aldrich would not discuss the subject of postal savings banks after his interview with the President. It is not believed that he is altogether opposed to the idea, but he frankly told the President at a former conference on the subject that he thought the question of establishing such banks should await the enactment of the monetary legislation. The money that would be obtained through the establishment of such banks would help to dispose of the problem of the Government 2 per cent. bonds, which are a drug on the market. The Monetary Commission is confronted by the problem of retiring these bonds or else of maintaining their value.

The question of bond issues authorized in the new Tariff bill came up for consideration this afternoon. The Secretary of the Treasury was authorized by Congress to issue bonds for $40,000,000 to reimburse the general fund of the Treasury for the Panama Canal purchase, and also to issue bonds for the building of the canal up to the amount of the estimated cost, some $400,000,000. Senator Aldrich is in favor of withholding any bond issues for the time being, in order that the Monetary Commission may have time to consider this subject specifically, and possibly arrange for the placing of a Government loan, so far as funds may be immediately needed, in one lump sum. There is no idea of issuing the Panama Canal bonds any further than the money may be in demand.

John Hays Hammond, who has been ill at his Summer home near Gloucester, called on the President this afternoon, and said he was feeling much better. Mr. Hammond had been called to Arizona on business, and will leave for that Territory on Monday next. Mr. Hammond, who had been invited to accompany President Taft throughout his two months' trip, will join the party at Salt Lake in September.

PROFESSOR'S JEWELS SEIZED.

But Minneapolis Man's Tearful Plea Wins His Release.

On the arrival of the Hamburg-American liner Graf Waldersee yesterday from Hamburg, Prof. Stern of Minneapolis, one of the first class passengers, was detained by the customs officials for attempting to smuggle in $150 worth of cheap jewelry which he had not declared.

The professor was taken to the Custom House and examined by Deputy Surveyor Smythe, before whom he wept and begged to be released. The official had pity on him and allowed him to go West. The articles were declared forfeited by the customs officers.

THESE COWS WEAR COATS.

Give More Milk, Too, After Their Teeth Are Brushed.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 26.—Two novel methods in dairy farming, originated and tried by W. Kelsey Schoepf, a wealthy traction man, are now a part of the routine on his farm in Glendale, a suburb. Each one of Schoepf's twenty-four full blooded Jerseys, the herd valued at $75,000, wears a one-piece cream-colored linen coat every day to keep off the flies, and thrice daily their teeth are brushed carefully by two farm hands.

Mr. Schoepf has always been of the opinion that if a cow's teeth were cleaned and its disposition kept unruffled better health and better milk would result. Accordingly, when it was reported that the cows wearing the coats and having their teeth cleaned produced two gallons of better milk daily the orders became permanent. Ninety pounds of butter are sold each week after the Schoepf residence in Cincinnati and New York are supplied. Mr. Schoepf's first innovation in farming was to order a daily bath for each of his Jersey cows.

GIRL AND MAN SHOT IN SUICIDE COMPACT

In It Miss Wood Explained That Illness Had Made Her Despondent—Fiance Out of Work.

Frank E. Williamson, a young man living with his grandmother at 315 Marion Street, Williamsburg, shot his fiancee, Miss Florence Lilian Wood, a stenographer, of 667 Decatur Street, Brooklyn, in the left temple at 11 o'clock last night while they were sitting together on the stoop of the Decatur Street house, afterward shooting himself. Both were hurried to the Bushwick Hospital, where it was said they would die.

From a letter found on the girl addressed to her mother it was learned that the shooting was the result of a suicide compact entered into between the young couple at the instigation of the girl.

From neighbors it was learned that the couple had been sitting on the stoop at least two hours before the shooting. Great excitement prevailed, and the reserves had to be called out to keep the crowd back. It was noticed some time previously that they were engaged in earnest conversation, and just before the first shot was fired, a citizen passing heard the girl say to Williamson:

"I think you had better shoot me and then shoot yourself."

Immediately a shot rang out, and the girl fell forward to the pavement. Then came a second shot, and Williamson tottered down the steps, falling alongside of his fiancée. Dr. Hoffman was hastily summoned from Bushwick Hospital, and found both of them unconscious. Williamson, who had shot himself in the temple also, still grasped the revolver.

The letter found on the girl, addressed to her mother, was dated Aug. 21. It read in part:

> Forgive me for what I am writing, and more so for what I am going to do. Some day soon, whether to-morrow or next week, I do not know, but anyway I am going to die. I want to die, mother, because I have suffered so much in the head and throat. I want to die and I asked Frank to kill me and he said no. Please bury us together, as we love each other dearly. Tell father to forgive me for what I am about to do. Forgive me. Florence.

It was said that the girl, who is 19 years old, had been in ill-health for some time, and this coupled with the fact that her lover was out of work preyed on her mind until she got him to consent to the act. She is employed as a stenographer at an office in Manhattan.

POLICE DOG KILLED BY AUTO.

Ollie's Human Mate Shot Twice at Fleeing Car, but It Escaped.

Lieut. Duffy of the Parkville (Brooklyn) Station called the roll of his men and fifteen police dogs just before last midnight, and they all went out on patrol. Policeman James Farrell and Ollie, one of the most efficient and best-liked of the dogs, were ordered to patrol together.

Farrell struck off along the Ocean Boulevard, Ollie running ahead. At Eighteenth Avenue there appeared suddenly a big automobile from the north. Farrell heard a yelp and saw dimly a body fly up into the air and fall. Then he heard a voice in the automobile say "Beat it," and the car rushed on down the Ocean Boulevard.

Farrell found the body of Ollie by the roadside. He fired two shots at the machine, but the chauffeur followed orders. Farrell ran the two blocks back to the station, and had Lieut. Duffy telephone the Coney Island and Sheepshead Bay Stations, but none of their men saw the machine.

Ollie is the first of the police dogs to die while on duty.

DIPLOMATS IN A CLASH.

Dispute Over Precedence Between Representatives from Mexico and Spain.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 26.—Marquis de Villalobar, Minister from Spain, was entertained with a banquet to-night as the culmination of his visit to Toledo to attend the King Wamba carnival.

Don Francisco Leon de la Barra, Ambassador from Mexico, had accepted an invitation, but his attendance was prevented by an unfortunate misunderstanding as to precedence. As an Ambassador he was entitled to precedence over a Minister, but Marquis de Villalobar received a commission to attend as the direct representative of King Alfonso, and as such took the ground that he was entitled to precedence.

Señor de la Barra declined to concede the point when the matter was referred to him, as he is the personal representative of the Mexican President by virtue of his office. To avoid complications he canceled his engagement.

Marquis de Villalobar refrained from discussing matters of a political or diplomatic nature.

COREY CORNERED CLOTHES.

They Belonged to Lads in His Fish Pond Who Didn't Wait to Dress.

Special to The New York Times.

BRADDOCK, Penn., Aug. 26.—James B. Corey, the coal man, and uncle of W. E. Corey, head of the Steel Corporation, assisted in a raid to-day on a swimming pool. Mr. Corey has a large fish pond on his place on the edge of Braddock, and the boys have been swimming there against his orders when he was not at home.

Coming home unexpectedly at noon to-day he found a score of boys in his pond. He telephoned for two constables to come and help him arrest the party. Corey and the constables got the boys' clothing first and then called to the boys to come out. In terror the lads swam to the other side and fled down the street, followed by Corey and the constables, who wanted the boys to return and clothe themselves.

It was two hours before some of the twenty boys got their clothes.

ZEPPELIN OFF FOR BERLIN.

Dirigible Left Friedrichshafen at 4:30 This Morning—Count Not Aboard.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Aug. 27.—Zeppelin III. started at 4:30 o'clock this morning for Berlin. The course will be via Nuremberg, Liepsic, and Bitterfeld, a total distance of about 450 miles. The run to Bitterfeld will be made without stop, and the airship will probably arrive there after nightfall. It will remain at Bitterfeld until noon Saturday to replenish the gas and benzine supply, and take on Count Zeppelin, who will go to Bitterfeld by rail, owing to his recent illness. The Count will pilot the ship to Berlin.

The crew consists of only enough men to manage the airship, the Government rejecting the applications of those who wished to make the trip on the ground that it wished to limit the passengers to an absolutely essential crew.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 26.—The second and last meeting of the woman suffragists, to be held at Marble House, will be on Saturday afternoon. The doors will be open at 3, allowing an hour's inspection of Marble House to those holding five-dollar tickets. Prof. Charles Zueblin of Chicago University will lecture in the tent upon the lawn. The tickets are selling well.

Mrs. Belmont will have Gov. Pothier of Rhode Island as Chairman of the meeting.

UNPACK ROOSEVELT TROPHIES

Many Months, However, Before African Pelts Will Be Exhibited.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The skins sent by Col. Roosevelt from his African hunting trip were unpacked to-day in the taxidermists shop of the National Museum here. The specimens were packed in salt and were in much better condition than that in which skins usually arrive.

The tanning of the hides will be commenced as soon as other work will permit, but it will be many months before the skins are ready to be placed on exhibition.

ROBBED IN RHEIMS HOTEL.

Mrs. H. B. Livingston of New York Loses Jewels Valued at $4,000.

PARIS, Aug. 27.—A dispatch from Rheims to the Petit Parisien, says that the room occupied in a hotel there by Mrs. H. B. Livingston of New York was entered and jewelry to the value of $4,000 stolen.

Mrs. Livingston explained that she took off her jewelry and laid it on the dressing table while she washed her hands.

When she returned she found that the jewelry had vanished. A thorough search of the building failed to show any trace of the thieves. The police believe that the work is that of experts attracted to the city by the throng of visitors.

An advertisement appears in a Paris newspaper offering a reward of $500 for jewels "lost at a Rheims hotel. No questions asked."

Mrs. H. B. Livingstone, who was Miss Frances Redmond, lives at 23 Washington Square, North. Her husband is a member of the firm of Taylor, Livingstone & Co., with offices at 111 Broadway; a Director in the Eastern Steel Company, Vice President of the Importers Building Company, and a member of the Union and the Southside Sportsmen's Clubs.

RHEIMS, Aug. 26.—The Prince and Princess de Sagan deny that they have been robbed of any valuables during their stay here. Another report to the effect that Mrs. George Gould was robbed of her reticule containing jewelry to the value of many thousands of dollars, which was said to have been taken from a box which she dropped in the grand stand, also is denied. The police officials declare that they know nothing of the matter.

The report in Paris was that Count de Sagan had been robbed of $10,000 and the Countess of $5,000 while attending the aviation contests here.

STRATHCONA HOTEL BURNS.

Women Guests in the Water Have Only Bathing Suits Left.

NIAGARA ON THE LAKE, Aug. 26.—The Strathcona Hotel, one of the landmarks on the frontier and just outside the town limits, caught fire at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon and burned to the ground. The building and everything in it were destroyed. The loss, including property of guests, will be about $25,000.

The fire started in the basement from an undiscovered cause and spread rapidly. Fortunately, there were very few guests on the second and third floors of the house, and they, with the twenty house servants, escaped. The other guests, who numbered, possibly, fifty, were in bathing, or on the golf links or tennis courts at the time of the fire. They have left to-night just what they wore.

Several women are still attired in bathing suits. The guests found beds in the private cottages scattered about the Chautauqua grounds.

BETHENY AVIATION FIELD, RHEIMS, Aug. 26.—Hubert Latham, the French aviator, to-day took his revenge for the hard luck which pursued him in his recent attempts to cross the English Channel, and had followed him so far in his indefatigable but hitherto unsuccessful efforts to accomplish some notable achievements during the present meeting. He established in his Antoinette monoplane a new world's record for distance, covered in an aeroplane, 154 kilometers, 650 meters, or 95.88 miles. Latham covered fifteen laps of the course, or 150 kilometers, in 2 hours 1[illegible] minutes 9 seconds, and the full distance in 2 hours 18 minutes 9 3-5 seconds, which are also world's records, the flight being at the rate of about 68½ kilometers an hour as compared with 53½ made by Wright at Le Mans, and a fraction under 50 made by Paulhan yesterday.

Except for the one-lap speed records made by Blériot and Curtiss this week, and Paulhan's time record in the air, made yesterday, when Paulhan stayed up 2 hours, 53 minutes, and 24 seconds, though he made only thirteen laps, as against Latham's fifteen—the actual distance being 83.07 miles—Latham now holds every record for distance and speed. Like Paulhan, he descended only when his gasoline tank was empty.

Nothing could have exceeded the beauty and impressiveness of the prolonged flight. In grace of lines no other aeroplane here compares with Latham's monoplane. The slightly tilted planes from the long, skiff-like body give it a resemblance, when close at hand, to a winged canoe, while sailing high up in the air, it looks from the distance like a mammoth dragon fly. For an hour with fluttering wings, like a living thing, it fought its way against a storm of rain and wind at an average height of 150 feet, mounting higher as the wind rose, until during the worst of the storm it was fully 300 feet above the spectators. The contention of the advocates of the biplane that the monoplane would be unable to live in a strong breeze has thus been amply refuted.

Lambert Flies Seventy-two Miles.

Latham earlier in the day with "No. 13," another aeroplane of the same type, made a flight of more than seventy kilometers, and, after he had finished in the afternoon, Lambert covered 116 kilometers (72.03 miles) in commanding fashion. Three flights, therefore, in a single day made altogether more than 210 miles.

Glenn H. Curtiss, the American, had two practice spins, and although his machine behaved splendidly its speed was disappointing. An accident which Blériot suffered about dusk may, however, improve Curtiss's chances for the Bennett international cup. While trying to alight in front of the tribune with a passenger aboard his big 80 horse power machine, Blériot crashed into a fence, and his wings and propeller were broken. He narrowly missed also killing several of the spectators.

Whether or not the motor was injured has not been definitely determined. If so the most dangerous rival of Curtiss has been put at a disadvantage, for Blériot intended to use the wrecked machine in the international event, although he qualified with another.

Rougier also had another accident. While giving an exhibition he landed among a crowd lunching in the grass and slightly injured two women and a man. Blériot insists that his accident was not due to recklessness, with which he was charged by the crowd. He asserts that a squadron of dragoons was moving across the field and crowded him toward the fence, compelling him to chose between landing among the horses or going into the barrier.

Latham's Long Flight.

Latham started on his second effort today shortly after 2 o'clock. The breeze, when he got away, was less than three meters a second, but there were ominous black clouds on the horizon, and during the aviator's fourth lap a sharp squall of wind and rain broke over the aerodrome. The spectators did not believe it possible for Latham to ride out the storm, but to their delight he only mounted higher, and took his machine over the tribunes at a height of 300 feet. His time for the first round was 9 minutes 22 4-5 seconds, the second round 18 minutes 51 1-5 seconds, the third 27 minutes and 41 seconds, the fourth 36 minutes 15 3-5 seconds, the fifth 44 minutes 48 seconds, and the sixth 53 minutes 50 4-5 seconds.

During the fifth and sixth laps the official signals indicated a wind blowing at the rate of 10 meters a second. The spellbound crowd breathlessly watched the frail machine battling against the heavy gusts. The wings of the monoplane often fluttered like those of a bird caught in a heavy storm, but the machine maintained its steady progress. Latham smiled and waved his hand in response to the enthusiastic cheering as he passed over the tribunes.

The aviator at the end of the seventh round had been up 1 hour 3 minutes and 6 seconds. A little over four minutes later Latham beat the world's record for sustained flight in an monoplane, 1 hour and 7 minutes and 37 seconds, made by himself last June. At the end of the eighth lap his time was 1 hour 11 minutes 26 3-5 seconds.

This eighth lap was covered in 8 minutes 20 3-5 seconds, which was the fastest time Latham had yet made. His time at the completion of the ninth lap was 1 hour 19 minutes 56 2-5 seconds.

Only Flying Man Aloft.

During the tenth round the wind dropped to five meters a second. Latham at that time was the only man flying over the field. He completed his tenth round, giving him a total of 100 kilometers, or 62.10 miles, going as steadily as a liner. This was 1 hour 28 minutes and 17 seconds after his start. During the eleventh round the wind was blowing between three and five meters a second.

Latham's time at the end of the eleventh lap was 1 hour 36 minutes and 46 seconds, and at the end of the twelfth it was 1 hour 45 minutes and 33 seconds.

The excitement was intense as Latham completed his thirteenth round, representing roughly Paulhan's distance yesterday. Latham's time was then 1 hour 54 minutes and 29 seconds. The wind was blowing at the rate of seven meters a second. The fourteenth round was completed at the end of 2 hours 3 minutes and 10 seconds, and the fifteenth in 2 hours 13 minutes and 9 seconds.

After passing the finish mark for the fifteenth time Latham traveled a distance of 4 kilometers and 375 meters before landing. He broke a wing of his machine in alighting, but he was not injured himself. A dozen automobiles raced across the plain to the point where the machine alighted, and the occupants congratulated him warmly.

Latham returned to his shed in one of the automobiles. As he passed in front of the tribunes, the inevitable cigarette in his lips, he received a tremendous ovation. He said he had alighted because his gasoline was exhausted, though he had calculated his supply for three hours.

"But I will take more next time," he added, laughingly. He said his machine had behaved splendidly throughout the flight. He admitted having experienced a moment's trepidation during the worst of the squalls, when his aeroplane was badly buffeted by the winds.

On his long flight Latham used his so-called No. "79." He made his shorter flight this morning with his No. "13." The Antoinette motor, used by the Frenchman to drive his monoplanes, is the invention of an American named Joseph Adams.

Since Latham made thirty kilometers twice to-day in less than 26 minutes he will probably use "No 29" in the final of the speed contest on Sunday. He could afford to take a one-tenth handicap, as a repetition of his performance would beat the best the Wright models have done.

Flyers Out Early in Force.

The day was one of light airs and overcast sky and brought the flyers out early. Before noon, no less than a dozen machines were circling above the plain. The programme included the continuation of the trials for the Grand Prix de la Champagne, the endurance test; the lap event, the speed event, a race between dirigible balloons, and a landing competition for spherical balloons.

Latham, in a beautiful monoplane, was the frist aviator to get away. He announced that he intended to make a genuine effort to beat Paulhan's great record for the endurance prize, made yesterday, 2 hours 53 minutes and 24 seconds. Latham started flying at a great height. Sommer, Cockburn, Bunau-Varilla, Delagrange, and finally Glenn H. Curtiss, the American contestant, followed Latham into the air.

Curtiss's purpose was to improve his record in the speed lap contest, and to classify for one of the six prizes in the endurance contest. He accomplished three rounds, but his speed was disappointing. His total time was 28 minutes 59 3-5 seconds. By rounds his showing was as follows: 8 minutes 32 2-5 seconds, 9 minutes 50 2-5 seconds, and 10 minutes 36 4-5 seconds.

In the meantime, the other flyers, except Latham and Delagrange, had alighted without doing anything remarkable. Later, Delagrange, flying low, started to overtake Latham, who was still high in the air. There was a pretty race for four miles, and Delagrange was overhauling Latham when he was compelled to descend. Latham, too, after covering 70 kilometers, (43.47 miles,) was obliged to descend because of trouble with his ignition. Ten minutes later, however, he was in the air again racing with another machine.

Latham's time this morning for the first three rounds was 25 minutes 50 2-5 seconds, which is 2 minutes and 12 seconds less than the best record by the Wright models. He covered the 43.47 miles in 1 hour 1 minute 51 2-5 seconds, which is a record for speed.

Latham's fastest lap during his 70-kilometer flight was 8 minutes 32 2-5 seconds. His slowest was covered in 9 minutes and 7 seconds.

Blériot made his first appearance in the field to-day, carrying a passanger. He made a trial round in 8 minutes 38 seconds.

Bleriot Crashes Into Crowd.

The accident already mentioned occurred at the end of his flight late in the afternoon. He was returning and attempted, some say in a spirit of bravado, to land in front of the tribune. He miscalculated his speed and his monoplane smashed its way through a fence. The spectators fled in panic as the aeroplane swooped down. Only a few of them were knocked over, and no one was seriously injured. Blériot and Delagrange, who was a passenger at the time, were taken out from the wreckage of the machine. Delagrange was not hurt, and Blériot had only a few scratches.

It was when the crowd yelled in protest against his recklessness that Blériot shouted back that he was obliged to choose between alighting in the midst of a squadron of cavalry or running against the fence, and that he had selected the latter alternative.

At 4:30 this afternoon Count de Lambert, Roger Sommer, Louis Paulhan, and M. Gobron were out on the field making preparations for a flight. There was practically no wind. Lambert, in his Wright machine, was the first to get away. He was followed by Gobron, who made less than half a lap. Paulhan went aloft at 4:51, carrying gasoline for three and one-half hours. Tissandier followed in his wake a minute later. Paulhan's machine, however, behaved heavily on account of the additional weight of gasoline, and he came down at the end of the second round.

Curtiss Makes Brief Flight.

Curtiss, using his own propeller, started at 5:11 on a practice spin. His machine traveled beautifully at a height of forty feet, apparently at a tremendous pace. But the small size of the Curtiss flier exaggerated its speed to the eye. He completed the first round in 9 minutes 31 1-5 seconds, and the second in 19 minutes 15 2-5 seconds, alighting at the end of the second round.

Lambert's time at the end of the eighth round was 1 hour 20 minutes 44 1-5 seconds. At the ninth it was 1 hour 30 minutes 51 4-5 seconds; at the tenth, 1 hour 41 minutes 3 seconds, and at the eleventh, 1 hour 50 minutes 59 3-5 seconds. This gave him a total of 110 kilometers. He did not make another round, but alighted after having made 116 kilometers, (72.03 miles.)

The decision of the committe announced to-day to permit Blériot to use either of his two machines in the contest Saturday for the international cup created considerable adverse criticism, as the other competitors are limited to the use of the machine with which they qualified. This ruling allowed Blériot to fly with the eighty-horse power machine damaged in to-day's accident, with which he made his speed lap record, while the machine with which he qualified for the international is of thirty-five-horse power. Curtiss was inclined to regard this as unfair, but he was not disposed to protest, unless he is joined by Cockburn.

Curtiss declares that he did not push his machine this morning in the continuation of the speed lap trials, but he doubts whether he can beat his time of yesterday. Blériot, therefore, will be the winner on form if he can go the distance. Curtiss also said to-day that there was a regular aeroplane graveyard in a hollow of the ground in the back turn, where the wind forms a whirlpool. As he flew over this spot this morning he noticed four crippled machines piled up there.

The official measurement of Paulhan's record-breaking flight of yesterday gives his distance at 133,676 meters, (83.07 miles.) In the contest for the Bennett International Cup, which takes place Saturday, Curtiss, the American, and Cockburn, the English flyer, will compete against three Frenchmen, Lefebvre, Blériot, and Latham. The regulations provide that the racers must start between 10 A. M. and 5 P. M., and finish not later than 5:30. In case of bad weather, the contests will be postponed until Sunday.

A representative of the Aero Club of Italy arrived here to-day, and is making arrangements to take the aviators and their machines on special trains to Brescia next Tuesday. He is particularly anxious that Curtiss go to Italy, and will probably offer special conditions to secure the American.

Fournier was about with a broken nose this morning. He received many congratulations on his narrow escape of yesterday, when a fortunate jump from his machine, that had turned turtle, saved him from being mangled by the whirling propeller blades.

Rear Admiral Raymond P. Rodgers, U. S. N., was here to-day. Accompanied by Commander F. L. Chapin, the American Naval Attaché at Paris, he visited and examined all the machines, and was deeply interested in the progress made in the science of aviation.

ROOSEVELTS TO SEE FLIGHTS.

Ex-President's Wife and Children Will Visit Rheims Saturday.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Ambassador and Mrs. White are planning to go down to Rheims to witness the flights at Betheny on Saturday. They will escort Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt and her children.

Robert Bacon, who has been staying privately in Paris, has been invited to join the party and probably will accept. Mr. Bacon is planning to return to America next week.

DOGS DINED ON TOADSTOOLS.

Deprived of Their Favorite Mushrooms, They Went to the Woods, Then Died.

Special to The New York Times.

GLEN RIDGE, N. J., Aug. 26.—Habit and toadstools have been the cause of the many deaths of dogs in this neighborhood in the last few weeks it was discovered to-day, and the owners of valuable dogs are seeking means of breaking them of a pernicious and dangerous habit they have acquired—the taste for mushrooms.

The raising of mushrooms began in this section of New Jersey as a fad; now it is an entertaining as well as a profitable agricultural avocation. Nearly everybody has a mushroom house.

Now it is necessary to open the mushroom house door for a while of night to let in fresh air. It was found to-day that for a long time the dogs have been going into the houses along with the fresh air and eating so many mushrooms as to acquire a passionate taste for them. Then the owners, missing the mushrooms, watched the doors, and thus the bulldogs, great Danes, skye terriers, and other dogs of high and low degree were hard put to it for mushrooms.

Of course, if they could have asked their masters and mistresses for mushrooms they might have got them. Not being ableable to do that, they went out into the woods, where they found a fungus which seemed to them to be what they hungered for. They would eat these poisonous toadstools, and then go home and die in great agony. Their owners could not, until to-day, account for the epidemic of dog deaths.

Among the owners who have suffered from this widespread habit are Lester Wallace of 251 Ridewood Avenue, who lost a valuable bulldog; R. C. Stevens of 508 Belleville Avenue, who lost a Great Dane; Dr. William F. Beggs of 289 Ridgewood Avenue, whose terrier was a sacrifice to habit and toadstools; Carl Sachs of 17 Herman Street, who mourns the passing of a favorite foxhound, and John Larkin of 33 Herman Street, whose house and yard are silent and cheerless now without Pearl Drop, a toy spaniel who ate and died.

ZELLER SCORES A LAWYER

Jacob Levy, a lawyer, in the Harlem Police Court, living at 177 East 121st Street, was reprimanded yesterday by Justice Zeller in Special Sessions for charging an exorbitant fee for comparatively small services.

The case was that of Francesco Vasquenza of 223 East 113th Street, who was arrested on Aug. 6 for carrying concealed weapons. The prisoner's defense was that he had been informed that his son had been thrown into the water, and he had, therefore, armed himself to rescue him. The case was tried on Wednesday. Justice Zeller suspended sentence on the prisoner.

After the hearing Vasquenza made an affidavit to the effect that Levy got $92 in all for his services, which consisted, so far as the court knew, of entering a plea of guilty. He stated that he was asked to pay $75 more, which Levy had said would be used to subsidize the Judges. His wife and daughter corroborated this statement.

Levy admitted having received $90, but denied that he had said anything to the effect that the Judges would be bribed.

Justice Zeller, in rebuking the lawyer, said:

"I want to say to you and certain other lawyers in this court that your conduct has been very reprehensible. No lawyer ought to take $92 from a poor, unfortunate man, who has committed only a slight offense and intends to plead guilty. Such actions shall not be tolerated. The quicker this practice stops, the better."

Justice Zeller told Levy to file an answering affidavit. He said that the case ought to be presented to the Grand Jury or the Bar Association.

REPORTS 200 CHILDREN ILL.

Epidemic of Infantile Paralysis in Brownsville, Says a Physician.

Brownsville is the centre of an outbreak known as infantile paralysis, a disease for which, according to Dr. M. J. Battelbaum of 345 Stone Avenue, Brooklyn, the medical profession have found no successful treatment. The epidemic broke out about three weeks ago, Dr. Battelbaum said last night, until now more than 200 children, between the ages of 1 and 5 years, are down with the illness.

Its symptoms are a high fever and temperature, often followed by convulsions. Then comes a relaxation of the muscles, leaving the hands and feet of the sufferer paralyzed. In many cases the victim is left a cripple for life. Dr. Battelbaum said that the electric battery has helped in some cases. He said he informed the Brooklyn Department of Health some two weeks ago about the outbreak, and suggested that it would be advisable to isolate the sufferers, but that no notice had been taken of the matter except to ask him to make a "thorough report."

Dr. Battelbaum said that the last known outbreak of the kind occurred in Rutland, Vt., in 1894, when 119 cases were reported, all being children under five years of age. Eighteen deaths occurred.

Dr. Blauvelt, Assistant Superintendent of the Brooklyn Board of Health, said last night that a doctor from Brownsville had telephoned to the department, but that no official report of the outbreak had been made. When this is done, he said, the matter will be taken up.

PARK DEPARTMENT BUDGET.

Commissioner Smith Files Estimate Asking Increases in All the Boroughs.

Park Commissioner Smith filed his estimate for the next year's department budget yesterday. The estimate for Manhattan and Richmond, including all maintenance of parks, parkways, playgrounds, and boulevards, &c., shows a decrease of $6,804 from last year's, but owing to an increase in the budget for the American Museum of Natural History, which is included in the budget for Manhattan and Richmond, the total estimate for 1910 shows an increase of $13,195.

The estimate for Manhattan and Richmond for 1910 amounts to $1,524,669. The estimate for the Bronx is $1,101,019, and for Brooklyn and Queens $1,400,896. In the Bronx there is an increase from last year of $407,700, and in the estimate for Brooklyn-Queens an increase of $289,443.

WICKERSHAM FOILED ALASKA COAL DEAL

Ballinger's Assistant Had Favored Merger, When the Attorney General Interposed.

NO CONSPIRACY, HE SAID

Interior Department Silent on Charges of Having Hampered Agent Sent by President to Investigate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—While Assistant Secretary of the Interior Frank Pierce and his assistants still refuse to discuss the charges made against them by Louis R. Glavis, Chief of the Field Division of the General Land Office, that the department had hampered him at every turn in prosecuting the case against the Cunninghams for alleged coal entry frauds in Alaska, the part played by that department, as compared with the position of the Department of Justice, can now be set forth. Direct quotations from the opinion of Mr. Pierce show that he directed that no charge of conspiracy should lie in the coal merger cases, while the opinion of Attorney General Wickersham explains the many conditions under which such charges could successfully be prosecuted.

Mr. Pierce had stated before that his letter of instruction to the Land Office in regard to the Alaska claims did not refer directly to the Cunningham cases other than as they came under the general ruling. His letter states, however, that further prosecutions on the "technical objection" that might be raised "because of the understanding, arrangement, or agreement contemplated," in regard to merging the claims after taking title was "unwarranted." It has been repeatedly stated that this "general" decision, in fact, applied almost solely to the Cunningham claims, as they constituted then by far the greater part of the tract under consideration.

These instructions of Mr. Pierce were based on an act passed by Congress on May 28, 1908, authorizing the merging of claims made in good faith. As set forth in the Attorney General's opinion, however, the cases at issue refer back to two years prior to that time. In the Attorney General's opinion the whole question is whether or not the Cunningham claims were, in the first instance, bona fide or made by dummies. If made illegally, in his opinion the subsequent act of 1908 does not whitewash these offenders.

Mr. Pierce's decision, on the other hand, it is said, would have sent the claims to patent at once without further examination.

"You request my opinion," said Mr. Wickersham, in the decision given after Glavis's persistent and "insubordinate" efforts had brought about a postponement of the Cunningham claims, "whether entries may be completed and patents issued under said act of May 28, 1908, upon locations made prior to Nov. 12, 1906, in cases where some of the following irregular or illegal agreements or conditions existed May 28, 1908.

Merger Illegal, Wickersham Says.

"I am of the opinion that, if the agreements or arrangements mentioned in your letter were entered into by locators of coal lands in Alaska, after they had made their locations in good faith and in their own interest alone, such locations may under the provisions of the act of May 28, 1908, lawfully pass to entry and patent in accordance with terms of said act. On the other hand, I am of the opinion that if such agreements or arrangements were entered into prior to such locations being made, such locations do not come within the provisions of said act and cannot be lawfully passed to entry and patent."

Mr. Wickersham then listed the following conditions under which entries would have been illegal, in spite of the act under which Mr. Pierce issued his decision:

1. A verbal or written agreement between two or more entrymen made prior to the initiation of the entry, that upon payment for the land and issuance of a cash certificate, the entries should be transferred to a single company or corporation and the different entrymen to accept stock in said corporations in payment for the land.

2. A contract conveying said lands to a company or corporation, in which the entrymen had or expected to receive stock in payment for the lands.

3 Entries made under an agreement to convey, and conveyance made, to a company or corporation, which company or corporation now offers to make cash entry under the act of May 28, 1908, by consolidating said claims or locations so made.

4. A verbal agreement by two or more prior to the initiation of the entry that upon issuance of the patent the entries would be consolidated and mined at the joint expense of each claimant, share and share alike.

Report Ready Saturday.

"The consummation of any of the agreements or contracts mentioned in the first three of the above-quoted paragraphs," Mr. Wickersham went on, "would have vested in one association or corporation the title to the lands embraced in several entries, a clear violation of Section 2,350 R. S., which provides that 'the three preceding sections shall be held to authorize only one entry by the same person or association of persons.'

"The agreement described in the fourth paragraph is identical with the one involved in the case of the United States vs. the Portland Coal and Coke Company, decided by the United States Circuit Court for the Western District of Washington, Oct. 5, 1908."

The Department of the Interior expects to have its report to the President ready by noon on Saturday. At the same time a formal answer to published charges against the department will be issued.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 26.—The Transcript to-day prints this special from Beverly:

President Taft is awaiting with interest the reports which will be made to him soon from Washington and Seattle covering the inquiry being made into the Cunningham coal land claims in Alaska and the relation of Secretary of the Interior Ballinger thereto. An alleged dispatch is published as having come from Beverly intimating that the report of Louis R. Glavis, chief of the Field Division of the General Land Office, with headquarters at Seattle, will show that three if not four high officials in the Interior Department will be subject to indictment for conspiracy, if the charges which are brought by Mr. Glavis are sustained. It may be said here, upon authority too important to be questioned, that up to the present time the President is convinced that nothing in the alleged revelations will affect the integrity of Secretary Ballinger, and the President will require his accusers to submit the most complete evidence to the contrary before he will take seriously the rumors which are stirring official Washington to its depths.

Mr. Taft has interested himself to the extent of ordering a thorough investigation to be made by special agents, and until they are heard from he will take no action or express any opinion regarding the merits of the affair. It is true, however, that nothing yet has been brought forth to convince him of personal impropriety on the part of Secretary Ballinger.

When the matter first came up Secretary Ballinger turned the whole affair over to Assistant Secretary Pierce, and has kept his own hands off it. The suspicion has grown here that in his zeal to protect his department Mr. Pierce has succeeded in bringing about a situation which he cannot control, and which cannot be clarified without an exhaustive investigation. It is now taken for granted that either one side or the other must "make good" with its charges or suffer complete reorganization upon its failure.

The President, it is understood, will go a long way before permitting one of his Cabinet to be discredited, but the episode is certain to bring about minor changes in the Forest Service or the Interior Department, or both.

QUESTIONS CANAL PURCHASES

Congressman Bennet Charges Favoritism in Awarding Isthmian Awards.

Congressman William S. Bennet of this city made public yesterday a letter he had sent to Secretary of War Dickinson, in which charges of gross extravagance and favoritism is made against the Purchasing Department of the Isthmian Canal Commission in the purchase of paints for the vessels used in the work on the canal.

Mr. Bennet in his letter recalls the advertising for bids by the Isthmian Commission last Spring, involving a supply of 20,000 gallons of paint. The lowest bid was $15,200, the highest $27,000. There was another company whose bid was half way between both, or about $6,700 below the highest bidder, and upon analysis their paint, it is said, was found to be satisfactory. The contract was awarded to the highest bidder, and when Senator Root inquired of the Commission why this was done it was stated that the award was on account of the superior excellence of the higher priced paint.

When Mr. Bennet began an investigation and called the attention of Secretary Dickinson to the favoritism and extravagance displayed the Isthmian Commission all of a sudden took under consideration whether the commission could not manufacture its own paint, as is done in the Navy Department. Mr. Bennet took this as an indication that there was something wrong, and now has asked the Secretary of War to make an investigation.

Mr. Bennet in his letter declares that where the commission should require no more than 2,135 gallons a year already 9,300 gallons have been purchased since the first of the year, 8,300 gallons of that amount from one favored concern, partly without competitive bidding, and that 20,000 gallons additional has been advertised for. In a supplementary statement Mr. Bennet said there should be a central purchasing agency for the Federal Government.

"I have information regarding peculiarities in connection with the purchase of other things than paint," said Mr. Bennet. "I know of nine occasions where bids for cement were received and the lowest bidder failed to get the award. There is one instance I know of where a contract for cement was closed with a concern whose price was between $600,000 and $800,000 above that of the lowest bidder.

in to dinner at 7 o'clock and came out immediately afterward.

Judge Lovett was asked to give his reasons for the slump in the market today, but to this he replied:

"I prefer not to say anything. The slump is obvious to any one who knows Wall Street and I have nothing to say about it."

HARRIMAN STOCKS HARD HIT.

Union Pacific Leads Violent Slump in Wall Street Prices.

The slump in stocks which began with E. H. Harriman's return and has thrived on alarmist reports of his condition continued without any real rally yesterday and left them at about the lowest prices when the close came.

The breaks were even more pronounced than those of Wednesday, and there was practically no evidence of support. The Harriman stocks were the chief sufferers, Union Pacific closing 7½ down, the preferred 4 down, Southern Pacific 5⅞ down, and New York Central 3⅝ off. Other active issues were sympathetically affected, and even United States Steel showed a loss at the close of 2⅝ points, closing at 74. At yesterday's closing prices Union Pacific was 12⅞ points below the close on Tuesday, Southern Pacific 8⅞ off, New York Central 7⅛ off, and Reading 7¾ off. The selling was so ill supported that at times there were breaks of a point between sales in some stocks.

The slump began as soon as the market opened, Union Pacific showing on the tape 15,000 shares from 203½ down to 202½, compared with Wednesday's closing price of 205½. Material losses reaching a point or more were made in many other representative stocks, including New York Central, Reading, Southern Pacific, Great Northern preferred, the ore certificates, Erie, Consolidated Gas, Colorado Fuel and National Lead.

Before the end of the first hour Union Pacific had tumbled to 201. From this point there was a small recovery around noon, but the offering of large blocks of Union Pacific which broke the price to 200¼ checked the reaction. The close was weak and disorderly, with heavy liquidation in the Harriman stocks.

The persistence of rumors of a more serious interpretation of Mr. Harriman's illness than has been officially announced was the chief factor in market sentiment, and definite news from Arden was earnestly sought. The only word that Wall Street was able to get was that he was resting comfortably. Judge Lovett, chief counsel of the Harriman roads, and the representative of Mr. Harriman in executive affairs, went to Arden in the afternoon.

PAN-AMERICAN SALE DENIED.

Ambassador Thompson Has Not Purchased It, but Is Negotiating for It.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 26.—David E. Thompson, the American Ambassador, emphatically denied to-night the report that he had purchased the Pan-American Railroad for $10,000,000, acting as agent for E. H. Harriman. He declared he was in no way connected with Mr. Harriman and he had not purchased any railroad.

He admitted, however, that he had been trying to purchase the road, but that he would own it himself, if successful. If the deal which is pending should go through, Mr. Thompson will own $6,900,000 of the stock.

The Pan-American Railroad extends from San Geronimo, a branch station on the Tehuantepec National Railroad to Tapachula, a town on the Guatemalan border. It is owned by an American company. An extension is to be built through Guatamala and it has been rumored that the line is some day to be purchased by Harriman as a link in his great Pan-American project, which is to extend from New York via San Francisco to Colon.

HALT IN HARRIMAN CASE.

Government Not to Take Defense's Testimony Until Fall.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The case of the Government against the Union Pacific for its large controlling interests in the Southern Pacific—a competing line, according to the contentions of the Government—will not go forward until the Fall.

For about a year testimony on the Government's side has been collected by an examiner, and that side is now being printed. This Fall the testimony for the defense will be taken. Until that time no action will be taken.

In the Union Pacific case—a Harriman line—the fact of the practical ownership of the Southern Pacific by the Union Pacific is not denied, but it is contended that the lines are not competing within the meaning of the statute. The Department of Justice is trying to show that they are competing, and on that ground to separate the roads.

A UNION PACIFIC COLLEGE.

It Will Develop Men in the Service and Prepare Prospective Employes.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 26.—General Manager A. L. Mohler of the Union Pacific announced in a circular issued to-day the establishment on Sept. 1 of a railway college for the company's employes. It is to be called a Bureau of Information. A corps of expert instructors will give employes in every department of the service instruction free of cost.

Three objects are aimed at: Assisting employes to assume greater responsibility, increasing the knowledge and efficiency of employes, and preparing prospective employes for the service.

BENZOATE INDORSED; WILEY LOSES FIGHT

Secretary Wilson's Stand Is Upheld by Pure Food Convention in Denver.

DR. WILEY NOT TO RESIGN

Says He Will Stick Until "They Force Me Out"—Remsen Board, Attacked, Defends Itself.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 26.—High officers of the Department of Agriculture, who set out at the convention of the Association of State and National Food and Dairy Departments to discredit Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, head of the Bureau of Chemistry in the Department of Agriculture, with the apparent ultimate purpose of forcing him from office, were successful on the benzoate of soda issue to-day. The convention indorsed the findings of the Remsen Board, which held that benzoate to the extent of four grams a day was not harmful. It indorsed them by a vote of 57 to 42. These are the resolutions:

Resolved, That this association hereby indorses the report of the Referee Board of Consulting Scientific Experts, appointed by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson at the direction of President Roosevelt upon the use of benzoate of soda in food products.

This action is contrary to the results of Dr. Wiley's poison squad investigations. He found the effects of benzoate on the human system to be exactly opposite to the findings of the Referee Board.

It is thought that the convention's decision for the benzoate will result in attempts to use other well-known preservatives now prohibited through the influence of Dr. Wiley, and for the revocation of the ruling requiring the presence of chemicals in foods to be stated on the labels.

Dr. Wiley to Stick.

Notwithstanding his defeat, Dr. Wiley has decided not to resign. He said so in a statement made to-day after he had been deluged with telegrams from women's clubs, pure food organizations, and others pleading with him not to give up the ship.

"I will remain where I am," he said, "and continue the fight until they force me out."

The victory for the Secretary of Agriculture was won in the hardest fight in the history of the Food Officers' Association, and only after benzoate had been denounced by members of the medical profession as a dangerous drug unfit for human consumption and the Referee Board had been charged with being biased in its conclusions. In the debate food headed with benzoate was called "medicated garbage."

Secreatry Wilson's victory is remarkable. time before the convention began and He stepped into Denver only a short captured the organization from Dr. Wiley and the men who have helped to build it up from its incipiency as an association of food officers opposed to the use of chemicals in food products. It has practically turned the association inside out and placed it in the attitude of reversing its objects. Only last year the association adopted resolutions denouncing benzoate of soda and Secretary Wilson for his attitude in opposing Dr. Wiley. This is the first time Secretary Wilson has attended one of the conventions. Many of the delegates will go nome with the conviction that they know more about chemistry than politics.

Government Officers Vote Yes.

The delegation from the United States Department of Agriculture voted "yes" on the resolution. Secretary Wilson was an attentive spectator, but was not a delegate. The resolution indorsing benzoate of soda passed by a vote of 57 to 42.

A committee headed by Dr. Floyd W. Robinson of Lansing, Mich., which had been appointed to "investigate" the Remsen board, reported adversely to the board's findings, declaring benzoate promoted "the practice of concealing unsanitary methods," and calling upon President Taft to institute another investigation on "broader lines."

After members of the Remsen Board had told of their experiments Dr. Charles A. L. Reed of Cincinnati took a stand in opposition.

"The recommendation to the Government that benzoate of soda might properly be used," he said, "puts the Government in the position of licensing medicated stuff. The experiments carried on by the board, I have reason to know, were left in a large measure to subordinates.

"The subjects were healthy young athletes, and as a matter of fact while the various squads at Chicago, New York, and New Haven were taking the benzoate they were being stuffed with all kinds of food from heavy syrups and roasts down to sausages and pickles.

"The report attributes no abnormality to benzoate while the experiments were going on, but I find on reviewing the report that there were abnormalities. In the Chicago squad I find several of the young men were depressed. In the New Haven squad I find stomach troubles of one young man was attributed to 'cold weather' and to 'hard work.' It is rather noteworthy that cold weather and hard work should have had these effects rather than the chemical."

Dr. Remsen, in replying, said:

"I construe these remarks as accusations of incompetence and defective laboratory methods on our part, which in all good humor we certainly deny."

Dr. Reed said that the Remsen Board, in urging the Government to allow the use of benzoate of soda as a food preservative, had ignored the public welfare.

"That recommendation to the Department of Agriculture benefited only two classes of people," he said. "These were the manufacturers of benzoate of soda and the manufacturers of food of such a character that it could not be sold without being preserved by the addition of a chemical. The public received no benefit, but instead, had its own Government licensing food for its consumption which had to be medicated."

Board Talks to Convention.

Before the vote members of the Remsen Board spoke to the convention. Dr. Ira Remsen of Baltimore, Md., Chairman of the board, told of his organization of the board at the request of Roosevelt.

"Since the appointments," he said, "my dealings have been directly with the Secretary. You understand that the Referee Board was to take up only such questions as could be referred to it by the Secretary. We understand we had nothing to do with the administration of the pure food law. Our function is to answer to the best of our power such questions as the Secretary may put."

Speaking of the results of experiments made by administering quantities of benzoate of soda into the food given, Dr. Long of the board discussed the charge that the drug could be employed to cover up any inferiority in foods.

"At the request of a large manufacturing firm," he said, "there was sent to my laboratory a mass of bad tomatoes with which to make catsup. Some were preserved with vinegar and spices, some with benzoate, and some left unmixed. The odor and taste of the last were bad; that with the benzoate showed essentially the same condition, while with the vinegar and spices a fair grade of commercial catsup was secured. Benzoate has but little taste and no odor, and therefore it cannot conceal inferiority." Other members of the Referee Board also defended it.

FOR GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY.

Plans for $300,000 Building on the Site Given by Mrs. Huntington.

Architect Charles P. Huntington filed plans with the Building Department yesterday for the new building for the American Geographical Society, to be erected at the southwest corner of Broadway and 156th Street, on the site given to the organization several months ago by Mrs. Collis P. Huntington.

This site is well adapted to the society's needs, because the new building will not only have light from two streets, but also from a low entrance terrace and a rear façade on the garden of the Hispanic Society.

The architecture is to conform with that of the neighboring structures, the Hispanic Society Library and the Numismatic Society Building. Further down 156th Street, near Riverside Drive, is being erected by the same architect the attractive little church of Our Lady of Guadalupe, as a place of worship for the Spanish residents of this city. This also is to harmonize with the other buildings.

The façades of the new Geographical Society Building are to be of limestone, the upper part consisting of a classic Ionic colonnade, surmounted by a decorated copper roof, with rusticated lower stories and a granite base. The interior will be divided into two parts. The administrative and working part will contain offices, council room, lecture halls, large map and exhibition spaces, and working rooms for librarians and editors of geographical publications. The other part of the building will be a six-storied stack house with shelving for a quarter of a million books.

The building is to be 125 by 70 feet, and will cost with its terrace approaches about $300,000.

CHILDREN'S FULTON DAY.

Young Folk from 5 to 15 Years May Take Part—Date Is Oct. 2.

The Children's Festival Committee of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration announced yesterday that it would limit the age of children taking part in the pageants and open-air exercises on Children's Day, Oct. 2, to between 5 and 15 years. This rule was adopted in the interest of safety and good order.

To encourage them in preparing special features for the celebration in the form of floats, tableaux, pageants, &c., the committee will adopt a design for a medal, button, or badge to be presented to children who distinguish themselves in the work.

Recognition will be extended to societies, schools, or individuals making special preparations of groups of not less than twenty children, forming tableaus, parades, or promoting games, dances, and inventive and industrial exhibitions.

At a meeting of a number of theatrical men, held at the Hotel Astor, it was decided to form a special committee of one hundred, composed of persons connected with all branches of the theatrical profession, to aid the Children's Festivals Committee with its advice and influence.

Hollis E. Cooley was made Acting Chairman, and a circular letter was addressed by him to all the prominent managers, producers, and stage directors in the city, asking their co-operation. Not a refusal was returned. The theatrical committee will meet this week to discuss plans.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—John R. Carter, the United States Chargé d'Affaires at London, telegraphed to the State Department to-day that Great Britain will be represented at the Hudson-Fulton celebration by four ships of the fifth cruiser squadron instead of three, as was originally intended.

TREES FROM JAPAN.

Gift to the City of 300 Dwarf Cherries as a Hudson-Fulton Memorial.

The Mikado will send no warships to assist in the Hudson-Fulton naval pageant. Japan's ruler has decreed that New York City should have a more lasting and gracious memento of his interest in the celebration than the burning of powder and the booming of guns could possibly furnish.

Jokichi Takamine, former Consul General of Japan in this city, called upon Acting Mayor McGowan yesterday, accompanied by Gen. Stewart L. Woodford of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Committee to tender the hearty congratulations of his Government on the auspicious discoveries to be celebrated and at the same time asking the Acting Mayor to accept from the Mikado 300 cherry trees. The Mikado will send gardeners from Japan to see to it that the trees with the tender white blossoms so beloved in the island empire of the Far East get a fair start on American soil.

The Mikado's emissary suggested that the trees might be planted on both sides of Riverside Drive. Mayor McGowan thought they would be preyed upon there by the ubiquitous New York boy, and suggested that Central Park, where they could be sheltered, probably would be the better place.

The Acting Mayor will give his visitors a luncheon at the Clermont next Tuesday. Park Commissioner Smith will be a guest also, and afterward will help select a suitable place for the planting of the trees.

The Japanese cherry tree grows to be only a few feet tall, but is rich in blossom and quite hardy.

DIVORCE FOR MRS. H. M. WARD.

Lawyer's Former Wife Said to be Earning a Living by Making Flowers.

Supreme Court Justice Brady signed an interlocutory decree of divorce yesterday in favor of Mrs. Lucy Bond Ward, wife of Henry Marion Ward, a lawyer, with offices at 32 Nassau Street, and having a Summer home at Seabright, N. J. The testimony was taken before a referee. It is understood that Mr. Ward denied his wife's charges, but did not contest the suit.

Mr. Ward is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Ward of 159 West Seventy-third Street. Prior to her marriage Mrs. Ward was a Miss Lucy Bond Morgan, daughter of William Forbes Morgan, now living at Pau, France. The wedding took place in Paris, France, on Sept. 6, 1900. One of Mr. Ward's brothers, Charles Montague Ward, married Miss Fannie Batchelder, an actress in one of Harrigan's companies.

At the time of the suit it was said that the exact whereabouts of Mrs. Ward were unknown, but it was understood she was supporting herself in this city by making artificial flowers.

BOAT PARADE OPENS ASBURY PARK FETE

Most Elaborate Spectacle Ever Witnessed on Deal Lake—All Craft Illuminated.

REIGN OF QUEEN TITANIA IX.

Her Approach Announced by a Salute of Twenty-one Guns—Carnival on Till September 2.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Aug. 26.—Queen Titania IX.—Miss Henrietta A. Eiker of this city—was welcomed to Asbury Park this evening, and for ten days she will reign supreme. The queen, in dazzling robes and accompanied by the Princess Cinderella and other members of her court, made her first appearance at the Deal Lake carnival, which was a pretty spectacle enjoyed by 50,000 spectators, who lined both sides of the picturesque lake.

Major Gen. P. Farmer Wanser of Jersey City was the reviewing officer. His assistants were Lieut. Col. Arthur L. Steele of the Fourth Regiment as Grand Marshal; J. Wentworth Aymar, Jr., of this city as adjutant and chief of staff; Major Henry Lohman, Jr., of the Fourth Regiment as Assistant Grand Marshal; William H. Bannard, John W. Martin, Jr., George H. Bowly, George H. Lahey, Alonzo P. Rooney, William C. Schwartz, Walter B. Heinsheimer, and Benjamin H. McDuffie, as aides de camp. Fred Pansing of the First Brigade was the queen's herald, and a detachment of the United States Marine Corps now in camp at Sea Girt acted as the queen's guards.

The lake and surrounding territory was ablaze with electric lights and red fire, and the cottages in North Asbury Park and Loch Arbour were artistically decorated. The several grand stands, the boat liveries and bridges were crowded with spectators. In the throng were hundreds of motor car parties from the adjacent resorts. The boat parade, which followed Titania's spectacular appearance in a handsome barge, and her welcome to Asbury Park by Mayor T. Frank Appleby, was the best ever witnessed in this vicinity.

There were several hundred floats, barges, motor boats, canoes, and rowboats in the pageant. Each craft was decorated and illuminated. Singing clubs from the various hotels and societies competed for the special prizes and added life to the fête.

Titania's approach was announced by a salute of twenty-one guns, fired by members of the First Battery, located on the beach front at the sea end of the lake. After her barge had encircled the lake the Queen was hurried to the official pavilion, where Mayor Appleby welcomed her. Titania then revealed the parade with other dignitaries, and as she departed for her fairy realm the spectators arose and sang "The Star-Spangled Banner."

One of the floats in the parade was decorated by the guests of the Hotel Manhattan. It represented a garden scene, with make-believe rose bushes and laurel trees. It was designated "The Queen of Roses." Miss Emily Mattes of New York was the Queen. The guests of the Hotel Wellington entered a float rigged up as a country Post Office and general store. On another float was a massive Billiken weighing a ton.

Another "My Wife's Gone to the Country," showed Donald Harris enjoying himself in a palm garden. Still another showed a massive shoe, inside of which the mother of fable and her numerous children sang popular songs. The float entered by the Asbury Park Presbyterian Church represented the interior of a church with a pipe organ. The church choir sang as the float passed up and down the lake.

"Washington Crossing the Delaware" was the tableau offered by the guests of the Hotel Columbia. Then there were floats illustrating airships, cotton plantations, gypsy camps, and a Japanese garden.

Acting Gov. Joseph S. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey was the guest of honor in the reviewing stand.

Several hundred dollars in silver loving cups were awarded as prizes. The judges were Charles J. Taylor, H. H. Moore, W. G. Elger, James T. Barry, William D. Reynolds, George B. Skinner, Joseph P. Hennessy, Louis F. Bettcher, Clarence W. Smith, Edward R. Lowndes, Clarence W. Brazier, and Frank W. Baker.

Next Saturday afternoon and evening, in the Amphitheatre, the children's greeting to Queen Titania will take place, when 800 children's voices will be heard in the cantata, "Childhood Fancies," and "The Mocking Bird." The musical festival will be in charge of Prof. Oscar J. Ehrgott of New York. Next Tuesday evening Titania will be crowned at the Amphitheatre. The following evening the annual masque fête will be held. The closing feature of the carnival, the baby parade, will be held on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 2. The entries for this spectacle now number more than 700.

Queen Titania's court party is composed of Miss Alice Adele Strobridge of Baltimore, who impersonates the Princess Cinderella; Miss Marion Adele Souville and Miss Eda Kathryn Mincho of Brooklyn, Miss Mildred Louise Burton of Asbury Park, Miss Mae Elizabeth Crombie and Miss Marie Leonard Cassidy of New York, and Miss Marjorie Antoinette Hatch of Rochester.

THREW MELON RIND FROM CAR

Youth Who Thus Amused Himself Fined $5 in Night Court.

A youth who said he was Walter Tsannkanchen, 18 years old, of 1,590 First Avenue, was fined $5 in the Night Court last night by Magistrate Krotel on the charge of throwing chunks of melon rind from a Second Avenue elevated train yesterday afternoon. Special Officer James Magwood of the Interborough, who arrested him, said that he kept up a steady fire from Rivington Street, where he got on the car, to Nineteenth Street. Most of the rind went into open windows along the route.

"You thought it was a great joke," said Magistrate Krotel, "but it will cost you $5."

The youth was unable to pay, and went back to the prison.

DISS DEBAR CIRCLE HAD RURAL PATRONS

Promised Mahatma Honors as Mackay Hypnotized Folk and Talked Alchemy.

"CONVERTS" ENTICED HERE

Some Had Already Received the "Order of the White Robe"—Detectives Visit 33d Street Shrine.

While the Mahatma Institute at 32 East Thirty-third Street, in which they were to teach, was not to open formally until next Wednesday, still the ancient and portly Ann O'Delia Diss Debar and David L. Mackay, alias Initiate 2-6 David, had begun to do some business in the villages and hamlets up-State and in Long Island and New Jersey, where not a few female souls yearning after the unknown had already attained, they were told, to the Order of the White Robe at very little cost considering the benefits of the order.

These were but pot-boiling excursions of Ann O'Delia and her purported son, but they paid some expenses, and in Long Island and New Jersey the seeds were being sown for a greater harvest, when the Mahatma Institute should be got in first-class running order. Friends were being made. The circle was being extended; the torch of truth was burning, though dimly as yet, and thus was the light being fanned for the great festal barbecue that should presently be pulled off.

While their chief activities were as yet in the villages and hamlets of Long Island, New Jersey, and up-State sections, where the police and constables are not so active as the more sophisticated policemen and detectives of Manhattan, nevertheless the Diss Debar and her "son," with the aid of Mrs. Lillian Hobart French and Mrs. Frances Belden, the two Western widows, who say they were unsuspecting, did get acquainted with some city people. The Circle was not entirely rural and suburban.

Insiders From Wall Street.

Besides F. A. Heinze and Professional Optimist William J. Robinson, those on the inside of the Mahatma Society had some few other well-to-do Manhattan acquaintances who might have been expected to become of the Elect. But none of them, it is safe to say, suspected that A-Diva Veed-Ya, the seeress at 32 East Thirty-third Street, was the ancient Ann, late Queen of the Michigan Flying Rollers, and that her supposed son, Initiate 2-6 David, was David Livingston Mackay, the former secretary of the Flying Rollers, with whom Diss Debar fled when driven out of Michigan in 1907.

Indeed, there is a poem in the first number of the first volume of The Mahatma Magazine, which is fresh from the printer, praising A-Diva Veed-Ya, and though Mr. Robinson denies that he indited any verses to her, he did talk to her, and the poem is signed "W. R." Moreover, there are several articles relating to optimism in the "Thirty-three Articles of the Psalm of Life," which might have been made by the broker himself.

The articles are headed, "I Promise Myself," and the following seem to show the hand of Mr. Robinson, the grand chief of the professional optimists of the world:

> Article XVIII.—Always take an optimistic view of every circumstance of life.
> Article XIX.—Always look on the bright side.
> Article XX.—Always wear a cheerful countenance.

Activities of "Initiate 2—6."

In Long Island, New Jersey, and up-State Initiate 2—6 David was attracting attention to himself through his hypnotic powers. He would get to talking to some person about hypnotism or a related topic, saying that if his listener was interested he would go to his house some night and give a little exhibition to a circle of invited friends.

When he would appear he would introduce the aged and portly A-Diva Veed-Ya, and while he put a boy or two under the influence of his mesmeric eye, the Diss Debar would extol the Order of the White Robe to those whose ears she got. Thus was the circle of acquaintances extended, and if any of her hearers wanted to know more of the truth, the Diss Debar would say, they might journey to the Mahatma Institute, in Thirty-third Street, where on and after Sept. 1 they might learn things compared with which Initiate 2—6 David's instructions were only silly A B C's.

Some didn't want to wait for Sept. 1, so David and A-Diva gave them preliminary instructions at 32 East Thirty-third Street, where they had rooms for private lessons. The White Robe was conferred upon some and hope was held out that perhaps some fortunate ones among them might even get to be an "Initiate 1—6," though it couldn't be expected that any could catch up with David and become a full-sized 2—6 initiate.

Alchemy Easy for Him.

David himself, when wonder was expressed in the suburban circles about his hypnotic powers, said, in effect:

"Oh, shucks, that's nothing. When I get going good I can turn that radiator into gold."

The audiences said they would like to witness the gold-turning feat. Indeed, the magazine that was to be issued contains this paragraph on alchemy, under the heading: "Some salient points of wisdom pertaining to the theocracy of Jehovah":

> "Chemistry" is false; alchemy is true; there is no known substance that cannot be transmuted into any other substance, if the process be known, through a perfect knowledge of the correlation of force.

And people living near the old brownstone front house at 32 East Thirty-third Street say that recently there have been enough electric wires put in at the rear of the back parlor or throne room to make almost any sort of transmutation seem at least to take place.

The School of Mahatmas goes strong on both vibration and alchemy. Under the heading of vibration there appears in the magazine this pearl which might vulgarly be characterized as horse sense:

> Vibration is the secret of the ages, only through vibratory forces, and their comprehension are these great laws made manifest. Transmutation, through alchemy, is the world's next great discovery. This the Mahatmas will give to the world, and when they do, where will be the boasted wealth of the nations and the individuals, when gold becomes as common as iron, copper, or brass; when all the standards of value change, and when moral and spiritual standards shall become the substitute for earth's dross?
> Then will indeed be ushered in the Golden Age. The metal standard of earth's material value becomes as common as the cheapest mineral product of the earth. A slight change in the vibratory forces of the earth will so change molecular construction that the tallest building will crumble like ashes, and the sea be turned into blood.
> Why spiritualize stated divine truth? "If ye shall say unto this mountain be thou removed," &c., means just what it says. If we knew and had under control the mighty power which could change molecular cosmos, even mountains could be removed in entire harmony with natural law. It was this knowledge that made Moses and Aaron great in their leadership.

Doctrine of Soul Synthesis.

Soul synthesis, only the first sweet fruits of which the suburban neophytes had begun to taste, is something that looks "nifty" in print. Here is the way it appears in purple ink in the first issue of the magazine:

> Warring creeds and human greeds, personal aggrandisement, and selfish wantings will not bring about soul synthesis—only through the power of divine truth, finding lodgment in the soul, attuned to its pulsings, can the great mystery of godliness be truly revealed. "Not my will but thine"—this was the attitude of the Christ. Will surrendered. Bear ye one another's burdens—the law of service.
> Therefore the only law of life in the Christ as applied to our upbuilding is service inspired by love, measured by sacrifice. No other foundation can any man lay than that which is laid. And only through this do we obtain our co-heritage with Christ in God.

At least the first faint gleam of the Torch of Truth, as fed by the New Revelation, had reached beyond New Jersey and into the edge of Pennsylvania already. The magazine has a letter to "Mrs. A. P.," Delaware Water Gap, saying:

> Beloved. All cordial greeting. The cry has gone forth. I am the voice of one crying in this wilderness of crime, "Behold, the bridegroom cometh," and his wife must make herself ready, (Rev. 19:7)—this is the 144,000 Elect of God for the body's redemption, who will live forever.
> If you see the faith and desire to attain perfection, you are one—fear not—and this is the day of preparation.

So must many have been cheered; and as for the preparation, why, what was the School of the Mahatmas for?

Mrs. French, the handsome young widow, continued to receive all inquirers at the Mahatama Institute, which is near the Waldorf-Astoria. In spite of the fact that she had "been fed fat on hell Wednesday," when she drove out David and Diva and first met the reporters, still she was smiling. The most ardent and loyal members of William J. Robinson's Optimist Club at 10 East Thirty-third Street could not have been more unruffledly happy than was this friend and admirer of Mr. Robinson and F. A. Heinze.

"Yes, the police have been here," she went on, fanning herself. "Two detectives—McConville and Flood, they said—asked me where Initiate 2—6 David and A-Diva Veed-Ya, who I now believe was Ann O'Delia Diss Debar, had gone. I couldn't tell them. I told them only what I told you reporters yesterday."

Diss Debar Fled in Auto.

She knew nothing about the report that the two had rushed away in an automobile ordered by someone at the Waldorf, where Mr. Heinze and Mr. Robinson spend much of their time.

Mrs. French talked a great deal yesterday in amplification of what she had said the day before about her cult and her relations with A-Diva Veed-Ya and Initiate 2-6 David. She admitted that David had told her that up around Nyack an organization had been formed called the Bahia Society, to which many beautiful girls belonged. It was the luring of young English girls into devious ways that sent Ann O'Delia Diss Debar's fourth husband to prison in England and got her a seven-year sentence.

Their organization in England was termed the Theocratic Union, and there is much in the Mahatma magazine about theocracy. But Mrs. French professed entire ignorance of what Diva and David had been doing in the suburbs.

Getting strung out again on Mahatmas and one thing and another, she said she believed Mr. Heinze one of those things, as well as John D. Rockefeller, Andrew Carnegie, and Theodore Roosevelt, to mention only a few. They were not only Mahatmas, but also reincarnated kings and heroes of tens of thousands years back.

As for the school of the Mahatmas, Mrs. French said that it would begin business, as scheduled, next Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock; that no matter how many friends had been frozen by the revelations of the last few days others would be made, and, finally, that the truth would never die.

Saying which she told a little boy who had brought in what looked like a bill to tell the man outside that she was too busy to see him just then.

PANAMA EDITOR SLAIN.

W. N. Chandler Killed by H. O. Jeffries Over Published Story.

PANAMA, Aug. 26.—The killing in this city yesterday of William Nichols Chandler, editor of The Panama Press, by Herbert O. Jeffries, an American who took part in the Panaman revolution of 1903, has aroused much feeling here.

The Press, Mr. Chandler's paper, a new and rather unimportant journal, contained recently an article reflecting upon one of Jeffries's women relatives, at which Jeffries took offense. At noon yesterday Jeffries assaulted Chandler in his office, and later in the day Chandler died of his injuries. In view of the unimportance of Chandler's paper, and the personal character of the article which caused the trouble, little importance was attached to the encounter until Chandler succumbed, but the death of the editor, who was well liked, has aroused considerable local feeling.

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, Aug. 26.—A Spanish brigantine has been wrecked at Puerto Ventura. The captain and eight men were drowned.

ROCHEFORT, France, Aug. 26.—The Congress of the Maritime League was brought to a close to-day by a review of the warships and commercial shipping in the harbor by the Minister of Marine, who was aboard a destroyer.

SWEEPING REFORMS SOUGHT IN COURTS

The Bar Association Committee Would Have Close Organization of State Tribunals.

STOP DELAY AND EXPENSE

Appeals to be Simplified—Fee System to be Abolished—Good Judges for the Minor Courts.

DETROIT, Aug. 26.—Sweeping reforms designed to do away with delays of justice and heavy court expenses are advocated, in a report made to the American Bar Association to-day by its committee appointed two years ago to investigate the subject. This committee has already presented bills to Congress to cure evils in the Federal courts and has made much progress. It has now drafted a plan for the organization of State courts, which it hopes will cure the troubles of litigants. The plan is outlined as follows:

"The whole judicial power of each State, at least for civil causes, should be vested in one great court, of which all tribunals should be branches. The business as well as the judicial administration of this court should be thoroughly organized, so as to prevent not merely waste of judicial power, but all needless clerical work, duplication of papers and records, and the like, thus obviating expense to litigants and cost to the public. This court should have three divisions:

> 1. County courts, including municipal, having exclusive jurisdiction of petty cases.
> 2. Superior court of first instance, with exclusive original and general jurisdiction, in equity and at law, in probate and administration, and in dvorce.
> 3. A single ultimate court of appeal.

"All Judges should be Judges of the whole court, eligible and liable to sit in any locality. Supervision of administration should be committed to one high official of the court responsible for failure to utilize the judicial power of the State effectively.

"In like manner the business administration of the court should be organized, with the clerical and stenographic forces under the control of a responsible officer. The office in each locality could be an office for filing papers for the whole court.

"We have carried decentralization of courts to such an extreme that in many jurisdictions the clerks are practically independent functionaries over whom courts have little real control. There is much unnecessary duplication of papers; judicial records are needlessly prolix and unduly expensive.

"Petty causes demand good Judges no less than causes involving larger sums. The Judges to whom such actions are committed ought to be of such calibre that but one review should be necessary, and that confined to questions of law. The advantages of such an organization are nine:

> 1. A real judicial department would be created.
> 2. The waste of judicial power involved in our present system of separate courts with hard and fast personnel would cease.
> 3. The bad practice of throwing out cases to be begun over again because started in the wrong place would be done away with.
> 4. The great and unnecessary expense involved in transfer of cases would be done away with, obviating necessity of transcripts, bills of exceptions, certificates of evidence, and the like.
> 5. All technicalities, intricacies, and pitfalls of appellate procedure would be done away with.
> 6. It would do away with the unfortunate innovation upon the common law by which venue is a place where an action must be begun, rather than a place where it is to be tried, so that a mistake may defeat an action entirely.
> 7. It would obviate conflicts between Judges of co-ordinate jurisdiction.
> 8. It would allow Judges to become specialists in the disposition of particular classes of litigation.
> 9. It would bring about better control of the administrative officers connected with judicial administration.

The committee would abolish the fee system, proposing:

> All clerks and other employes of courts and all persons having permanently to do in any way with the administration of justice should be compensated by fixed salaries, and all fees collected should be paid into the public treasury.

This, in the opinion of the committee, would drive money-making out of the clerkships, curb the ambitions of the politicians to hold such jobs, and remove from the office the suspicion that those administering justice are governed by a desire to earn fees.

The committee is also paying attention to official stenographers, their earnings and their duties. The draft of the bill which has been prepared provides that the compensation for services and the price for transcripts and copies shall be fixed in each district by the Circuit Court, and that the sum to be paid in the Federal courts shall not exceed that paid in the State courts of the same locality.

The committee reported satisfactory progress in bringing to the attention of Congress proposed laws to authorize the appointment of official stenographers for United States courts and fix their compensation, to limit the setting aside of verdicts on error unless the error complained of shall appear to have resulted in a miscarriage of justice, and to permit the use of authorized printed copies or records in appealing cases instead of written or typewritten manuscripts.

The committeemen's signatures attached to the report were those of Everett P. Wheeler, Roscoe Pound, Charles F. Amidon, Joseph Henry Beale, Frank Irvine, Samuel C. Eastman, William E. Mikell, Henry D. Estabrook, Edward T. Sanford, Charles E. Littlefield, Charles S. Hamlin, Charles B. Elliott, George Turner, John D. Lawson, and William L. January.

Mr. Wheeler announced that the clause referring to State Courts was not inserted for discussion, but for the consideration of the association until next year.

The second section of a proposed bill to regulate judicial procedure provoked a storm of debate. It provides that the trial Judge may in any case submit to the jury issues of fact arising upon the pleading, reserving questions of law for subsequent argument and decision. It was adopted, however.

No sessions of the association were held this afternoon or to-night, the delegates attending the Detroit-Philadelphia baseball game and various receptions.

$35,000 TO HIS EMPLOYES.

J. C. Latham Leaves $10,000 to Stenographer Alone—$50,000 to the Poor.

By the will of John C. Latham of the banking firm of Latham, Alexander & Co., 16 Wall Street, who died on Aug. 18, filed for probate yesterday, there are specific bequests of over $500,000. He makes his wife, Elsie G. Latham of 10 East Sixty-fourth Street, the residuary legatee, and gives her in addition $10,000.

His daughter, Alice G. Latham, receives $200,000 in trust. When she is 18 she is to have the income and at 35, the principal.

The family homestead at Hopkinsville, Ky., is given to that town to be converted into a public park known as "Virginia Park," in memory of Mr. Latham's mother. The sum of $20,000 is set aside for the transformation, while "it is expressly made a condition of the gift that no ornamental fountain of any kind shall be erected in the park." The same town gets another plot of ground, to be made into a "Peace Park," and $10,000 is left for this purpose.

Mrs. Ellen H. Allen of Memphis, Tenn., Mr. Latham's mother-in-law; a nephew, John Campbell Latham, each receive $25,000; Catherine and Jean Allen of Memphis, and Mrs. Grace Getty of Yonkers, N. Y., get $50,000 each, and John Latham Allen of Yonkers, receives $10,000.

Miss Sadie L. Everett of 38 West Fifty-sixth Street, Mr. Latham's stenographer, receives a bequest of $10,000. His cousin, Jennie E. Gloss of Hopkinsville, receives $25,000; his brother-in-law, Harry Allen of Yonkers, $15,000, and Mrs. Allen, $5,000. A sister-in-law, Mrs. L. M. McFarland, and R. H. Allen, get $10,000 each. Charles Fraser receives $5,000.

The will directs that the executors invest $50,000 in bonds for the benefit of Grace Protestant Episcopal Church of Hopkinsville, and provides that a like amount in money be used for the benefit of the poor of that town. The employes of Mr. Latham's firm receive $25,000, which is to be distributed among them as the executors elect. James Lee, his gardener, receives $1,000. A clause in the will directs that his interest in the firm be adjusted as speedily as possible.

WILL OF FORDHAM MORRIS.

$50,000 Goes to a Daughter, Mrs. Gallatin, and Residue to the Widow.

The will of Fordham Morris, the lawyer from whose family Morrisania took its name, and who died at Lenox, Mass., on July 6, was filed for probate with the Surrogate yesterday.

Mrs. R. Horace Gallatin, his daughter, gets $50,000, and the residue of the estate goes to the widow, Annie L. Morris of 45 East Thirtieth Street. The petition gave the value of the estate at "more than $10,000" in both real and personal property.

Mr. Morris was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Morris of Fordham. He served in the civil war, was a member of the Loyal Legion, New York Yacht Club, and a Trustee of the College of the City of New York. He was graduated from Trinity College in 1864 and from the Columbia law school in 1868.

ENGLISH MEAT SHORTAGE.

May Lead to Admission of Argentine Cattle—Fear of Americans.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—A shortage in the meat supplies of the country and fear lest the American beef combine obtain complete control of the Argentine trade have induced the British Government to reconsider the possibility of removing the existing prohibition against the importation to Great Britain of Argentine cattle.

The matter is still in a tentative stage, but in response to Argentina's latest request for the removal of the present restrictions Great Britain has asked Argentina to furnish detailed information of the steps taken by the Federal and provincial Governments in suppressing the foot and mouth disease "in order that the matter may be considered."

SHOOTING ALARMS APARTMENT HOUSE

Telephone Boy in Ardsley Hall Kills Colored Elevator Operator.

LITTLE QUARREL WEDNESDAY

Resuming It Last Night, Stanley Gethin Shoots Joseph Harding Twice—Assailant Locked Up.

The Ardsley Hall apartment house, at Ninety-second Street and Central Park West, was thrown into excitement last night when Stanley Gethin, the telephone operator, living at 36 Seventh Avenue, Brooklyn, shot Joseph Harding, a colored elevator boy, of 54 West Ninety-ninth Street, inflicting wounds from which his victim died a short time afterward.

Gethin, who is a white youth of 20, and Harding quarreled on Wednesday night over a newspaper which Harding had and the telephone boy wanted. Harding refused to give the newspaper up. Later that night the two boys had another interchange of words, and were reprimanded by the Superintendent.

The telephone boy, about 8:30 last night, called Harding from the elevator and asked him a question concerning one of the apartments. Harding turned on his heel, refusing to answer him. Gethin angrily exclaimed:

"You've got to answer me when I speak to you. If you don't you'll be sorry."

The elevator boy paid no heed, and Gethin, it is alleged, jumped from the telephone switch-board, pulled a revolver from his hip pocket, and rushed upon Harding. The elevator boy put up his arm to knock the weapon away, but Gethin fired two shots, both taking effect just below the heart.

The noise of the shots was heard throughout the apartment house, and occupants who were at home ran into the hallways. Some rang the elevator bell, but there was no one to answer. Gethin, after the shooting, calmly laid his revolver upon the telephone desk and walked out to the street, where he awaited developments.

A hall boy who had gone to an upper floor ran down and, finding Harding unconscious on the floor of the entrance hall, called a policeman. An ambulance was summoned from the J. Hood Wright Hospital, and on the way Harding recovered consciousness sufficiently to say that Gethin had shot him. He was hurried to the operating table, but died five minutes after reaching the hospital.

Detectives Ferguson and Skelly of the West 100th Street Police Station, hurried to the apartment house and found Gethin. He did not deny the shooting, but declared that Harding had struck him and that he fired the bullets in self-defense. He was arrested and taken to the 100th Street Station, where he repeated to the Lieutenant that Harding had attacked him before he used his revolver. Later in the night the other elevator boy was taken to the police station and held as a witness.

NEW BRITISH PACIFIC FLEET.

Three Strong Cruiser Squadrons Planned to Meet Colonial Demands.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Premier Asquith imparted to the House of Commons this afternoon the results of the conference on imperial defence held recently in London. Mr. Asquith's statement confirmed in every way the information already given in these dispatches. The only new point of interest relates to the proposed remodeling of the Pacific fleet, which both Australia and Canada are anxious should be of appreciable strength. The remodeled fleet will consist of three units, the East Indies, the Australia, and the China squadrons, each unit to be composed of a large armored cruiser of the Indomitable type, three cruisers of the Bristol type, six destroyers of the river class, and six submarines.

It has been arranged that New Zealand and Australia shall present the empire with vessels of the Indomitable type instead of the proffered Dreadnought, and these ships will form a part of the Pacific fleet.

Subject to the approval of the Canadian Parliament it was agreed that Canada should make a start by building cruisers of the Bristol class and destroyers of the river class, making use of both Pacific and Atlantic ports for this construction work.

EATON CHILD ADOPTED.

Baby Alleged to Have Been Poisoned the Son of Boston School Teacher.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 26.—Interest in the Eaton case became deeper to-day when it became known that the infant son of Rear Admiral Eaton, U. S. N., whose death Mrs. Eaton alleges was due to poison, was an adopted child.

Elizabeth Nettie Heartz, an unmarried woman, six months ago, in a maternity hospital in this city gave birth to a child, Earl McQuarrie Heartz, which was adopted at the age of two weeks by Rear Admiral Eaton and his wife. It is this child about whose death the mystery centres.

All Scituate is eager to know what led to an Admiral in the United States Navy to adopt so young a child and, under the circumstances, revelations may be expected if gossips can bring it about.

Mrs. Eaton, who has asserted that the baby was her own, and who was evidently at her wits' end when asked about the child's identity, said nothing definite as to the parentage of the child; but after a moment's silence looked up and said:

"I cannot tell you the name of the child's mother. She was a woman of culture and a school teacher who lives near Boston. Do I know who the father was? Well, I have my suspicions.

"Murder is murder, no matter whether the child is one's own or an adopted child."

The Admiral declines to discuss his personal affairs. He was accustomed, it is said, to speak of the boy as "my child," in contrast to the other members of the family who are his step-daughters, and seemed wrapped up in the project to fit the child for a suitable training to follow the navy "in his father's footsteps."

This latest development in the case is taken by some to explain the marked emotion displayed by the veteran at the grave of the infant. Since the child's death the Admiral has aged noticeably. He continues to assert his belief that the child's death was from cholera morbus and that the chemical analysis will show this to be the fact.

Admiral Eaton is at the Algonquin Club in this city.

FURLONG INQUIRY GOES ON.

McCarren Believed to Have Seen the Justices Who Are Holding It.

Senator McCarren was a visitor in the County Court House, Brooklyn, yesterday, and the rumor spread that his presence there might have some connection with the Furlong investigation. He was seen coming from the chambers of the Justices of the Supreme Court on the second floor, when he was asked:

"Has your visit any connection with the Furlong matter?"

"Furlong matter? What's that?" he replied.

The Senator was walking away at the time and he kept on walking.

No information could be obtained as to the possible outcome of the inquiry into the charges against the Magistrate before Justice Crane. Assistant District Attorney Elder would not talk about the case. Justice Crane is not likely to give his decision before Monday.

MEN FORCED TO WORK IN STEEL CAR PLANT

Strikebreakers Testify to Abuses at Government Inquiry Into McKees Rocks Trouble.

ASSAULTED IF THEY REBEL

Return Transportation, Promised in New York, Denied to Men Recruited in This City.

From a Staff Correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 26.—The searchlight of a Government investigation was turned effectively to-day in the plant behind the stockade of the Pressed Steel Car Company's works at Schoenville, and some interesting testimony was offered to show what goes on "on the inside" during the process of breaking a strike.

The investigation was held to-day in the Federal buildings and, as yesterday, the proceedings were in charge of H. A. Hoagland of the Department of Justice at Washington and Assistant United States District Attorney R. M. Gibson of Pittsburg.

One man testified that he had been held against his will and forced to work when he wanted to quit; another that he had been made "sick at the stomach" by the food; another that a revolver had been pointed at him and still another that he had been struck twice in the jaw.

All of these that testified to-day said that they were from New York, and that they had been sent to Pittsburg by Leo C. Bergoff of the Service Bureau, incorporated, and that none knew that they were coming to break a strike.

The story of ill-treatment centred around Bergoff's lieutenant, Samuel Cohen. Bergoff is the strikebreaker and Cohen is the man who uses his prowess to keep the men at work after they arrive on the scene. Two of the guards employed by the company to preserve order were also charged with mistreating the men.

Alexander Friedman, a Hungarian machinist, who said that he resided in New York, testified that he had been made to work when he wanted to quit the job. He said he had been made to work in the commissary department, carrying hams from one place to another, after his regular day's work was done.

"I told Sam Cohen that I did not want to work," he said, "that I wanted to quit, but Cohen said, 'you'll shift them hams or I'll throw you out at the mercy of the strikers.'"

He said some words followed and then Cohen took him by the neck and dragged him over to the vicinity of the box of hams, and said things to him about moving the lot. He worked overtime with the hams, but he was not paid a cent for it, though he had been promised $3 if he completed the work.

He said that he came from New York with a 100 other men with the understanding that he was to work in an open shop at $3 a day, and did not know anything of a strike. He was immensely surprised when he found that he was a strikebreaker.

Strikebreaker Maltreated.

R. W. Dodds represented the company at the hearing and Charles Gulentz was employed as counsel by the Austria-Hungarian Vice Consul, E. L. G. Brocknich. Mr. Brocknich visited the works on Monday and had a talk with Friedman, and Dodds tried to make it appear that Friedman had endeavored to quit on the Vice Consul's advice, but could not substantiate the charge. The witness said that Mr. Brocknich had told the men if they had cause to be dissatisfied to notify him and he would take the matter up, but he had not advised anybody to quit.

Friedman said that he had been promised return transportaion at New York, but Cohen told him when he asked for the transportation that he "guessed" that where he would get that transportation would be in the neck. He said he was paid $24 for eight days' work, but he considered the company owed him for ten days. On this point Cohen had an entirely different idea. Friedman talked so volubly about his numerous difficulties with Cohen that it was two hours before the authorities could procure the information they desired.

Joseph Bredes, also of New York, testified that the food he got in the plant was so bad that it caused his stomach to hurt all the time. He said he did not attempt to leave the plant because it was the understanding among the men that they were to remain there for thirty days before being allowed to leave. This idea it seems was based on word which had passed among the men that they would have to remain in the plant thirty days before they would receive return transportation to New York. He did not know he was coming to McKees Rocks to break a strike, but entertained the idea that he was to have employment at $3 a day, with transportation both ways and could return whenever he cared to.

Joseph Diamond of New York testified that he had seen Friedman mistreated by Cohen, and Joe Bartor said that he had signed a contract in New York which Bergoff had presented to him, but that he could not read the contract. He also saw Friedman wrestling with the hams against his will, but thought he worked only about fifteen minutes.

Foreman Threatened to Shoot.

James Godfried also told about Cohen threatening to shoot him if he did not go to work when he was too tired and sick to work. He said he arrived at the plant about noon after a tedious ride in a box car and he felt in need of rest, and he wanted to wait until the next day to go to work, but Cohen told him men did not do any waiting when he was boss, tired or not tired, and he told him to go to work or he would shoot him, or if he did not shoot him he would lock him up in the box car prison. He said Cohen produced a revolver to back up the argument, which was such a strong one that he concluded that he would conquer his fatigue and go to work.

Sam Billig testified that Cohen docked him a dollar and a half because he laid down half an hour when he had a headache, and Cohen punched him twice in the jaw because he said something to Cohen about return transportation to New York. He said that the transportation subject was a very sore one with him. He also testified that forty men left the plant to-day because they were dissatisfied with conditions, but none received transportation, and, he said, too, that the company had employed guards from among the strikebreakers, and that these men were almost as intolerable in their attitude as Cohen himself.

The investigation will be taken up again to-morrow, when the strikers' Executive Committee will be brought to the hearing to recite the grievances. Mr. Hoagland said to-day, after the session, that he was going to give everybody a chance to tell what they knew, and he was not going to be bothered with red tape. He said that after he is through taking the testimony of witnesses he is going to do some investigating on his own account.

A great deal of interest attaches to the fact that the strikers' committee will be on hand to-morrow from the fact that they lay claim to have innumerable affidavits and other information of a sensational kind that will throw much light on the company's method of dealing with the men, and it is believed some fundamental causes of the strike will be brought out.

PEONAGE SENTENCES CUT.

President Commutes Terms of Three Men Convicted in Florida.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—The President has commuted to six months the term of imprisonment imposed upon W. S. Harlan, S. E. Huggins, and C. O. Hilton, and has denied commutation or pardon to Robert Gallagher and Walter Grace, all of whom were convicted at Pensacola, Fla., of conspiracy to commit peonage. They were sentenced as follows: Harlan, 18 months at hard labor and $500 fine; Gallagher, 15 months at hard labor and $1,000 fine; Huggins, Hilton, and Grace, 13 months at hard labor and $1,000 fine.

There were two separate cases. In one Harlan, Huggins, Hilton, and others who were not convicted were charged with recruiting men to work for the Jackson Lumber Company. In the second case Harlan, Gallagher, Hilton, Grace, Huggins, and eight others were arrested. The five men named were convicted. During 1906 it was found that 186 men were recruited for work in the Jackson Company's logging camp, where they were held to work out all forms of indebtedness. Harlan was the general manager of the company, but most of the others were simply engaged in recruiting laborers.

RUSSIA OUT OF CHINA LOAN.

Drops Pretensions to Share in Hankow-Sze-chuen Issue.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 26.—Russia has dropped out definitely from the competition for a share in the Hankow-Sze-chuen Railroad loan of $30,000,000, but she has been given assurance at Peking that she will have a portion of the next loan for railroad construction made by China.

The Foreign Office has made diplomatic representations to Peking in the matter of the concentration of Chinese troops on the Russian frontier in the Blagovyeschchensk district, where China is conducting colonization schemes. According to unofficial advices the Mukden garrison has received reinforcements of 22,000 men. While these military measures are not considered threatening there is uncertainty here with regard to their object.

The question of the collection of customs on the Sungari River will be a subject of special negotiation between Russia and China. It involves also the navigation of the Amur River, where Russia purposes to defend her rights under the Aigun treaty, which have brought about a flourishing interchange of trade in the Sungari basin.

M. Poppe, the Russian Consul at Tientsin, has been made Consul General at Harbin, where the Consular functions have been performed in the past conjointly with his railroad duties by Gen. Horvath, the author of the plan for the administration of the Harbin municipality that caused trouble with China.

PLANS FOR SONDER RACES.

Final Arrangements Completed for International Yacht Contests.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., Aug. 26.—Final arrangements were completed to-day for the German-American sonder yacht races off here next week for the President Taft and Gov. Draper cups. The series is the third held under the joint control of the Kaiserlicher Yacht Club of Kiel and the Eastern Yacht Club of Boston, a former contest being held at Kiel, two years ago, and the first at Marblehead in 1896. As each country has won its home series in each race, the contest this year will be the rubber and great interest in it has been aroused among yachtsmen. The races will being on Monday next, the second on Tuesday, Aug. 31, the third on Thursday, Sept. 2, the fourth on Friday, Sept. 3, the fifth on Monday, Sept. 6, and the sixth, if necessary, on Tuesday, Sept. 7.

New Rochelle Y. C. Regatta.

The Summer regatta of the New Rochelle Yacht Club will be held to-morrow afternoon. A large entry list has been received by the Regatta Committee. The regatta will be followed by a dinner and entertainment for the visiting yatchsmen in the evening. Saturday, Sept. 4, will witnes the start of the annual cruise to Lloyd's Harbor, in which the New Rochelle Yacht Club, Huguenot Yacht Club, Harlem Yacht Club, New York Yacht Club, and Lloyd's Harbor Club will combine forces. After arrival of the fleets at Lloyd's Harbor there will be a clambake on the beach, followed by games and water sports. Over fifty yachts went on this cruise last year, and the indications are for an even larger fleet this year.

Beals Wright Wins at Niagara.

NIAGARA-ON-THE-LAKE, Ont., Aug. 26.—Play was continued here to-day in the international lawn tennis tournament. In the international singles Hodges of Buffalo sprung a surprise by defeating Capt. Foulkes of Ottawa, the Canadian champion. Good progress was made in the doubles. Beals Wright and R. D. Little defeated the Dines brothers of St. Louis in straight sets.

The afternoon results were:

International Singles, Men's.—Hodges, Buffalo, beat Foulkes, Ottawa, 4—6, 6—4, 6—4; James, California, beat Marshall, Chicago, 6—3, 6—2.

CLOTHIER'S RIGHT TO CHALLENGE LARNED

Philadelphian Defeats McLoughlin in Newport Tennis Final Round.

WINS BEST OF FOUR SETS

Westerner's Winning Set Tires Him So Completely That He Is Almost at Mercy of the Easterner.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 26.—William J. Clothier, the tall Philadelphian and ex-national champion, stands upon the topmost round of the lawn tennis ladder to-day next to the holder of the honors, William Aymar Larned.

Clothier's match against the doughty youth of nineteen years, Maurice F. McLaughlin, was a series of dazzling racquet work ending with the score 7—5, 6—4, 9—11, 6—3. Yet brilliant as was the match it was spoiled by errors of judgment on the part of the linesmen. This aroused the gallery, which far exceeded any other of the tournament, to outbursts of indignation. The hoots, yells, and hisses, there even being calls to take the offending linesmen out, were of a nature entirely foreign to the courts of the Casino. It was most unusual, especially as the decisions were all against the plucky Californian, who kept manfully to his playing and did not allow the decisions against him to disturb his equanimity.

The young California expert, who has startled the followers of the game by his speedy and brilliant playing throughout the tournament, made a strong effort to win from the older man to-day, and was loudly applauded by the large gallery for his gameness in the third set. Clothier had taken the first set by a narrow margin, 7—5, and when he had captured the second, 6—4, the match seemed easily within his grasp. But McLoughlin showed no signs of discouragement. Playing at his top game, and again and again passing the former champion on the side lines and scoring aces on his terrific serves, he forced the games to deuce repeatedly, and finally succeeded in getting two games in succession and taking the set, 11—9. His strenuous work in this set, however, had tired him greatly, and, although he made a good stand in the first part of the fourth set, he was unable to maintain his accuracy, and he drove the ball out and into the net so often that Clothier had no difficulty in winning the set, 6—3, and the match.

The day could not have been worse for the players. The humid heat was intense, making fast play a physical torture. But the gallery round the grand stand court was the largest in many years, and while at the beginning it was not as favorable to McLoughlin as it afterward came to be it soon was compelled to respect the skill of the plucky nineteen-year-old wonder from California.

The rallies were all good, but at close range Clothier was distinctly the better.

Then McLoughlin attempted to soften his game and so he lost all control. The games at 5 all found McLoughlin at the service line. Clothier rallied well and shot the ball across the court on the slant for volley shots, so that he broke through and won the set at 7—5.

In the last game of this set an adverse decision to McLoughlin raised a storm of protest from the gallery.

The points:

Clothier ....4 4 4 2 6 2 4 0 5 1 4 5—41—7
McLoughlin .....0 6 0 4 4 4 1 4 3 4 1 3—34—5

Another questionable decision on the call of an out against McLoughlin on a ball that appeared to be two inches inside the base line gave the crowd another opportunity to express its disapproval in the first game of the second set.

Clothier took the set 6—4 by better placing, while McLoughlin overshot several times in an effort to just hit the chalk marks. McLoughlin had the lead 3 to 1 when Clothier broke through and made it three all in a hard-fought contest at the net. The points:

Clothier ....3 2 6 1 4 6 3 5 4 4—38—6
McLoughlin ....5 4 4 4 2 4 5 3 1 1—33—4

McLoughlin took the third set 11-9 after a terrific battle. After the games had been run up to four all the players alternated continually, each winning on his own serve. In the twelfth game Clothier was within one point of taking the set and the match, but McLoughlin's clever serving enabled him to pull out. At last in the nineteenth game McLoughlin broke through Clothier's service and took the game at love. In the final game he scored three aces on his service and captured the game and set. The points:

McLoughlin—
0 5 2 5 3 2 6 4 0 4 6 5 0 4 2 4 1 4 4 4—65—11
Clothier—
4 3 4 3 5 4 4 1 4 1 8 3 4 1 4 2 4 1 0 2—62— 9

Clothier took the fourth set, 6—3, and the match. Once more the Pacific Coast champion outplaced his more experienced opponent, but his inaccuracy became very marked toward the end of the set. He drove out and into the net with such frequency that Clothier made a procession of the last four games. The former champion was very steady throughout. The points:

Clothier ....4 4 4 7 0 5 4 4 6—38—6
McLoughlin ....1 6 2 9 4 3 2 2 4—33—3

Seldom has there been more intense interest in a challenge match than in that to be played to-morrow. Only the first American champion, R. D. Sears, who maintained that position for seven years, has exceeded Larned's record in national title holding, and only one other, R. D. Wrenn, has equalled it. If Larned wins to-morrow he will enter on his fifth year as champion, having won the title in 1901 from M. D. Whitman, successfully defended it in 1902 against the Englishman, R. F. Doherty, won it again in 1907 through the default of Clothier, and maintained it last year against Beals C. Wright. Larned had to play through the tournament last year, as he won the old cup by his third capture of the championship in 1907. A victory to-morrow will give him two legs on the new cup. Clothier in 1906 won the finals and then the championship by defeating Beals C. Wright.

Larned sustained an injury early this year which kept him out of the game for some time. Before he had fairly recovered he defeated Clothier at Longwood in five hard sets. Clothier later sprained an ankle. Apparently, however, both men have now recovered entirely, and as both are on their top form one of the best matches ever seen on the Casino courts is anticipated.

NEW DAVIS CUP RULING.

McLoughlin and Long Go to Australia If Americans Win Here.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 26.—In the event of the American tennis players defeating the British tennis team in the preliminary matches at Philadelphia next month, it was announced to-day that instead of sending Hackett and Alexander to Australia, this country will be represented in the doubles for the Davis Cup by Maurice E. McLoughlin and Melville H. Long, both of California.

It has been customary in the nine years history of the Davis International Cup for the winners of the preliminary matches to play the holders of the trophy in the finals.

This year, however, the Committee on Selection of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association has departed from the rule, and has decided to send to Australia, in case of a victory over the British team, two players who rank below the American pair in the preliminaries. It is stated that this action was made necessary, as neither Hackett nor Alexander can arrange to make the long trip.

In the singles of the contest with the British team this country will be represented by the American title holder, William A. Larned and W. J. Clothier. Larned will be able to go to Australia in case of an American victory at Philadelphia, but the committee is not sure of Clothier.

More Dry Goods Baseball.

The next game for the championship of the Dry Goods Baseball League will be played at the American League Park Saturday, when the Houghton & Dutton Co. team of Boston will play a return engagement with the R. H. Macy & Co. nine. Houghton & Dutton are holders of the Boston Dry Goods League championship, and also head the league this year.

YACHTS IN CLOSE FINISHES.

Gardenia and Princess Win by Narrow Margins in Brooklyn Regatta.

Some close finishes characterized the second day's sailing races yesterday in the Brooklyn Yacht Club's race week events. The contests were of the same nature as on Tuesday, but the outside race, due to a much better breeze that sprang up shortly after noon, gave the four contestants, the schooner Eclipse and three sloops, a splendid race to the Scotland Lightship and return. Unfortunately Commodore Towen's schooner Tammany was unable to start. She won the first race, but yesterday her unexpected withdrawal gave Mr. Callanan's boat a sail-over.

The Hanan brothers' speedy Aspirant was a welcome newcomer in the outside race for sloops. She made a beautiful start, crossing the line first well into the windward berth. It was a battle royal with Rear Commodore Herzig's fleet Gardenia, and Aspirant only led over the twenty-six-mile course by 1:13. It was not enough to give the Hanan boat the victory on time allowance, and Gardenia took the prize by 4:36, corrected time. It was virtually a drifting match at the start, but before 1 o'clock a smart wind from the northwest sprung up, what little there was before being from the southwest, and the racers therefore had a beat down and a beat home.

The smaller classes came out in the afternoon. In the Class Q race F. G. Stewart's Princess gave the Florence her first defeat since she appeared a short time ago in Gravesend Bay, Princess making an exciting finish and winning by only six seconds. W. H. Childs's new Herreshoff boat More Joy came to grief by fouling the Craven Shoal buoy and was disqualified. Notos beat Peri II. in the Class P sloops by three minutes and the Gravesend Bay knockabout Mouse beat her three rivals. The two well-known American Yacht Club dories Faraway and Tautog had a special race over a four-mile course, the former winning by one minute thirteen seconds, the third race out of nine this season in which Faraway has beaten the boat that went to Amsterdam last year and won the international dory cup.

Everything a Razor Should Be

The Correct Diagonal Stroke

The Standard Razor Made Absolutely Safe
The Safety Razor Made Absolutely Perfect

Shave Correctly Comfortably and With Perfect Safety

If you use a "safety" razor, you'll like the Durham-Duplex better, because it has every good feature of the "safety" razor, and the additional advantage that it shaves with the correct sliding diagonal stroke—something hoe-like devices do not do.

That means a cleaner, quicker and more comfortable shave. The shaves the toughest beard with ease.

If you use the old-style razor, you'll like the Durham-Duplex better, because it has every advantage of the long blade, with the additional advantage of interchangeable blades, making stropping and honing unnecessary; insuring a sharp, keen edge for every shave, and a new blade at trifling cost whenever you want it. Durham-Duplex blades can, however, be honed and stropped like an ordinary razor.

Price complete, with 6 blades, in handsome leather case, $5.00. Extra blades, 6 for 50 cents.

On sale at all the better stores.

ERRORS GIVE AMES'S GAME TO PITTSBURG

Doyle's Fumble and a Grounder Passed by Merkle Sandwiched with Rally.

GREAT CATCH BY MILLER

Leifield's Support Flawless, but He Is Wild, and Adams Supplants Him in the Fatal Round.

Merrily rang the anvil chorus in divers parts of Manhattan last night, doubtless, because the Giants only broke even with the League leaders. McGraw's men lost to Pittsburg yesterday by a score of 6 to 3, a game they should have won at 3 to 1. Ames had the Pirates pretty well in hand until the seventh, when errors by Merkle and Doyle permitted the visitors to tie with two out. Then Leon blew higher than the summit of Coogan's Bluff, and the Buccaneers hammered him all over the meadow. Thirteen times was Ames hit in the course of the afternoon. Five of the baker's dozen were made after those costly misplays by Larry and the Knight of the Untouched Base, and they sufficed to send the game a-glimmering. True, Leon pitched very badly toward the end, but if ever a hard-fought game was thrown away on a man, that was.

Leifield was an extremely wabbly young man. He restricted the locals to five safeties, but his own wildness and softness in tight places were responsible for all New York's runs. There wasn't a blemish on his support. In fact, Leach's work fairly sparkled, while Miller's marvelous left-hand catch of Ames's high and hot line drive in the second chapter deserves to be immortalized in boldface type. Miller's drawdown not only robbed Leon of a two-bagger, it also jerked shrieks of amazement from almost every one of the 5,000 spectators. The game goes to Adams, for Leifield was benched before the Smokes got any of the four runs they scored in the seventh. Hyatt batted for Leifield in that round, and, though he hit into a double play, his force of Gibson at second let Abstein in with Pittsburg's second run of the game. It was Doyle's fumble that gave Wilson the tying tally. Had Larry handled Byrne's grounder properly, the Freebooters would have been retired with the showing still 3 to 2 in New York's favor—the score by which the McGrawites won on Wednesday.

The chalking was begun in New York's half of the second. Bridwell walked with one out and came in on Merkle's magnificent triple to left centre. Only glittering field work by Leach and Wagner in returning the ball to the diamond prevented Merkle from completing the circuit on his smash. Then followed Miller's wonderful catch of Ames's slash and the same infielder's neat running stop and throw of Doyle's grasser. Perhaps it wasn't fair to expect Merkle to repeat his three-sacker in the third round. Anyway, with the bases full and two gone, he popped to Byrne.

Wagner's double and Abstein's single broke the ice for Pittsburg in the fourth. Then Ames tightened up and for more than two innings the visitors couldn't get to him. Meanwhile, in the fifth, the Giants tallied twice. McCormick, one out, was hit with a pitched ball. He went to second on O'Hara's out and came in on Shafer's strong single to centre, the youthful batter going all the way to third on the throw-in. Shafer scored on Bridwell's one-timer, but Brid was caught stealing.

And then the terrible seventh. Abstein and Wilson singled. Gibson got a life on Merkle's error, filling the bases. Next came the double play on Hyatt and Gibson, Abstein shooting home. Wilson scored on the fumble that perched Byrne. Leach followed with a left central homer that pushed Bobby over the plate ahead of him. And the game was lost, for the batting order went out in Indian file, with the Big Chief, batting for Ames, rear guard of the procession. Three bingles and a force hit gave the Pirates their sixth tally in the eighth inning.

Errors Helped Cincinnati.

BROOKLYN, Aug. 26.—Brooklyn could do nothing with Rowan after the first inning to-day, and Cincinnati ran away with the game, 5 to 1. Errors helped the visitors whenever runs were scored. Roth was hit by a pitched ball in the second inning and retired. Clark, a Bronx boy, took his place, and played good ball. Outfielder H. H. Myers of the Collinsburg, Penn., club, joined the Brooklyns to-day. The score:

YANKEES CAPTURE FINAL IN ST. LOUIS

Hughes, in Form, Held Browns Safe Throughout, Winning by Score of 5 to 1.

BATTING RALLY IN SEVENTH

Highlanders Pound in Four Runs, Sending Dineen to the Bench—Poor Base Work by Locals.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 26.—Hughes won the final game of the series with the Browns here to-day 5 to 1, pitching rings around big Bill Dineen and Graham, who worked for the Browns.

New York scored their first run in the sixth, and in the seventh they put across four more. The Browns struggled hard, but the best they could count was one in the eighth.

Laporte did a clever bit of fielding in the third when he ran back in right field and grabbed Hartzell's fly, which looked like a Texas leaguer, and Dineen was doubled at first. No one thought Laporte could get under the ball, but he did. The Brownies got two safe hits and stole two bases in the fourth, but were unable to score.

The breaks were with the visitors to-day, as was shown repeatedly in the first five innings. Stephens singled in the fifth and Dineen sent a fast grounder between second and third that looked good for a sure single, but Cree managed to capture the ball, and not only retired Stephens at second but doubled Dineen at third. In the sixth Hughes livened up things by slugging one clear to the score board for a home run.

With this as a starter, the Highlanders proceeded to whoop up things in the seventh, and ended by counting four runs and driving Mr. Dineen to the shade trees. Laporte started it with a single to left. So did Knight. Then Austin started to make a sacrifice bunt, and on Ferris's wild throw he got to first, filling the sacks. Orth batting for Kleinow tripled to right, scoring Laporte, Austin, and Knight. Hughes was out, Hartzell to Griggs. Demmitt rolled to Hartzell, and Orth was thrown out at the plate. Then Keeler brought in the fourth tally by slugging a triple to right, scoring Orth. In this inning Sweeney went in to catch for the Highlanders in the place of Kleinow. The score:

Detroit Makes It Three Straight.

DETROIT, Aug. 26.—By winning its third consecutive victory over Philadelphia 6 to 0 to-day, while Boston was breaking even at Chicago, the Detroit team materially increased its lead over the two Eastern contenders. As it now stands the local club has seventeen points' lead over the Philadelphians, and twenty-four points over Boston. It has still to meet the latter team during the present Western tour of the Eastern clubs. Score:

Washington Players Disciplined.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 26.—Two Washington players, First Baseman Unglaub and Second Baseman Shaefer, were penalized by President Ban Johnson to-day for talking back to Umpire Evans when he ordered them out of a game here Wednesday. Shaefer was fined $50 and suspended indefinitely, while Unglaub was fined $25. Umpire Evans was notified of the penalties in a telegram from President Johnson to-day. Instructions were also received to bar Trainer Eddinger from American League parks indefinitely. Eddinger, it is said, was signed as a player, has been appearing in a player's suit at all the games this year, and has made trouble for umpires.

Joe Cantillion also made trouble at Wednesday's game, refusing to send in a substitute when Umpire Evans ordered Shaefer from the game. Umpire Evans has written President Johnson about Cantillion's actions, but has received no word from Johnson in regard to the case.

PATSY KENEALY'S BENEFIT.

Testimonial to Late Sporting Writer at the Long Acre A. A.

The oppressive heat did not deter a good-sized crowd from attending the testimonial benefit to the late Patrick J. (Patsy) Kenealy, the well-known and popular sporting writer, at the Long Acre Athletic Association, Twenty-ninth Street and Seventh Avenue, last night. The event was arranged by Jimmy De Forrest and Sam Rosenthal and the Long Acre Club, through Managers Mike and Billy Newman, generously tendered the use of the improved clubhouse and perfected all the details for the night's entertainment.

The programme comprised a number of bouts between well-known boxers and wrestlers, all the participants volunteering their services for the occasion. The special feature was a six-round "go" between Willie Lewis, the clever middleweight boxer, and Billy West. While not a hurricane contest, the pair gave an interesting exhibition, Lewis showing in particularly fine form.

Women Swimmers at Coney.

Two events for women were the features of the swimming races at the Steeplechase Park tank, Coney Island, last night, and both were well contested. The novice race went to the credit of Helen Porray of Bath Beach, and the other two places in the event were also taken by the Bath Beach swimmers. The winner jumped into the lead at the start, and was never headed to the finish.

In the handicap race at seventy yards Ethel Due of Bay Ridge came in victorious. She started from the 5-second mark, and obtained such a lead in the early stages of the contest that the scratch girl, Ethel Byanton of Bath Beach, could not overhaul her, and touched the finish three yards back. The summary:

50-Yard Swim, Novice.—Won by Helen Porray, Bath Beach; Irene Speilberger, Bath Beach, second; Anna McAuliff, Bath Beach, third. Time—0:43.

70-Yard Swim, Handicap.—Won by Ethel Due, Bay Ridge, (5 seconds;) Ethel Byanton, Bath Beach, (scratch,) second; Dora Hyatt, Bath Beach, (1 second,) third. Time—1:11 3-5.

Senior A. A. U. Championship Meet.

Entry blanks will be issued shortly for the 1909 senior metropolitan championships which at a recent meeting of the committee were set for Sept. 18, and will be held at Travers Island, the Summer home of the New York Athletic Club. In addition to the regular list of fixture events the committee this year has decided to add a running hop, step, and jump to the programme as a means of bringing out many of the younger jumpers of the district and incidentally helping the revival of this game in this section. The committee has decided to hold its next meeting on the evening of Wednesday, Sept. 8, and all entries will be passed upon at that time. No entry will be accepted after that day, and the lists will be passed upon for eligibility at that meeting. Entry blanks and all other information with reference to the meet can be had of H. Obertubbesing, Chairman of the Championship Track and Field Committee of the Metropolitan Association, P. O. Box 611, New York City.

Heavyweights at Fairmont A. C.

Sandy Ferguson and Joe Jeannette will box ten rounds to-night at the Fairmont Athletic Club. This will be the first battle between topnotch heavyweights held in this city for some time and should be a lively affair. The fight will be the rubber match between the two, Jeannette having won from Ferguson in Paris and the latter received the decision over the colored fighter after a twelve-round bout in Boston. The winner of the contest will be a legitimate opponent for Jack Johnson, the colored heavyweight champion. Both men have been working hard for the fight, and are in splendid condition. Ferguson will weigh about 215 pounds, and Jeannette will scale about 185. The negro, however, hopes to make up for Ferguson's excess of weight by speed and endurance.

The Cholera Banks produced good sport for deep-sea fishermen yesterday, few of the many anglers on the Taurus and Angler coming home without a satisfactory mess. Seabass seemed to be in abundance, but there were quite a number of porgies landed. On the Angler one of the best collections of the day was made by Harry Harkins of East 116th Street, who landed twelve bass and eight porgies. The banner haul on the Taurus was made by Richard Merks, who caught ten bass and the same number of porgies.

At the Raunt yesterday the best fishing of the week was reported. John Henry of Brooklyn returned to the headquarters of William Grolz with a fine mess of weakfish and porgies, several of the weakfish scaling as high as two pounds. Seabass are also prevalent at this point of Jamaica Bay, and a few fluke have been taken.

Bluefishing off the Government reservation at Sandy Hook has been excellent for the past two weeks. A motor boat party from the Battery on Wednesday landed thirty-eight bluefish and twenty-two weakfish close to the shore off the point of the Hook. The bluefish were of unusually good size.

Big weakfish are biting freely on the flats near the shore of Raritan and Princes's Bays. Ben Jordan and James Myers of Tottenville caught sixteen between them on Tuesday, the average weight being one pound and a half. Porgies are also in evidence, one fisherman catching twelve nice ones on Wednesday.

All along Jamaica Bay crabs are unusually plentiful. In Goose Creek on Wednesday David Mulqueen of Brooklyn caught 160, after putting in two succesful hours fishing for weakfish and porgies. According to William Noehren, crabs never have been so abundant in Goose Creek as at the present time.

FIELD MOUSE WINS SARANAC HANDICAP

August Belmont's Filly Runs Fastest Mile of Meeting, Equalling Track Record.

NEW FIGURES FOR BESOM

Defeats the Old Campaigner Dreamer in Sprint Handicap in Clever Style by Length and Half.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 26.—In the fastest mile of the season and time that equaled the track record that has stood for five years, August Belmont's filly Field Mouse won the Saranac Handicap by a head from the Kentucky Derby winner, Wintergreen, to-day. The race was conspicuously the feature of the afternoon, though in the opening event Besom gave the racing a sensational start by running away from a smart field of sprinters to a new track record of 1:11 3-5 for six furlongs.

The triumph of Field Mouse was the most brilliant in that fast filly's career, though all the luck of racing favored her, and reduced the struggle by nine starters to a duel between Field Mouse and Wintergreen after the first three furlongs. The early speed of the two contenders, more than a tangle at the start, in which the post favorite, Wise Mason, was one of the sufferers, was responsible for the quick elimination of the remainder of the field. With Jockey E. Dugan making the 111 pounds of her weight, Field Mouse was on the rail, and Dugan for once had an alibi, when the jostling at the start was considered, and Wintergreen with 112 pounds, E. Martin riding, running as an added starter, was next to the Belmont filly.

Field Mouse slipped away like a flash when the barrier rose, Wintergreen, quick and eager, going on after her, and the two drew away steadily to the end. Field Mouse carried a killing pace, racing from start to finish; went the quarter in 0:24, to the half in 0:47 3-5, and leading by three lengths on the middle of the turn, the three-quarters in 1:12 3-5. Wintergreen went after her from that point, and closed slowly but steadily, Martin once raising his whip when the colt began his run. The others were out of it then and Field Mouse led by but a length at the last furlong, with Wintergreen still closing. The filly was all but spent through the last half furlong, and was tiring fast at the finish, but Dugan, the best of the season's jockeys, kept her going just long enough to squeeze home first by a short head.

Besom, an equal favorite with Lady Irma in the sprint handicap, was fourth to Lady Irma's lead off when the barrier was lifted, but shot to the front in the first two jumps, Lady Irma, tangling in the crowd, dropping back at once, Besom, going on in quarter-horse style through the remainder of the distance, doing the first quarter in 0:23 3-5, to the half in 0:46 3-5, and winning handily by a length and a half from the great old campaigner Dreamer in 1:11 3-5, beating the former track record by a fifth of a second. The summaries:

Saratoga Stewards Suspend Powers.

Special to The New York Times.

SARATOGA, Aug. 26.—The Stewards of the Saratoga meeting to-day announced the first suspension for the meeting, and then suspension indefinitely for Jockey Vincent Powers, and gossip among racing men for the remainder of the day was burdened with scandal and suspicion. Powers is a native of Cattaraugus County, N. Y., and was developed on the Western tracks. His record as a jockey is a singular one, for while he had choice mounts his average of winners was small.

The suspension of Powers by the Saratoga Stewards acts as a bar to his riding anywhere that Jockey Club rules are recognized through the term of the Saratoga meeting, and the indefinite extension of the suspension will be in effect ruling off for life Powers, as he can be reinstated to the privilege of riding only by the action of the Stewards of The Jockey Club, to whom the case is referred by the Saratoga Stewards.

24-HOUR AUTO RACE.

Lozier, Renault, and Fiat Are Favorites in Brighton Beach Event.

All of the drivers entered in the twenty-four-hour race at Brighton Beach tried out the reconstructed course yesterday and were unanimous in the opinion that the world's record for twenty-four-hour racing will be broken at the meet which begins to-day. Walter Christie, who is entered against De Palma in his Fiat Cyclone and Fitzpatrick in his Hotchkiss, will take A. B. Cordner, Chairman of the Brighton Beach Committee, over the course this morning to make an inspection of the track, and any slight defect which still may remain will be noted and remedied.

The programme will open at 11 o'clock this morning with an endurance and speed contest for motorcycles. This contest will be of one hour's duration, and there are twelve of the fastest machines in the country entered. The motorcycle event will be followed by the quadrangular race between two American and two French machines of moderate cost and power, the race to run for six hours.

The Motor Racing Association announced yesterday that the three-cornered race between the Fiat, Hotchkiss, and Christie racers will be a five-mile contest, starting at 6:15 o'clock. In this race Christie, with his new Christie No. 7, torpedo-shaped racer of 150 horse power, hopes to create new world's records for the track. The fact that he drove his car on the rough course at Indianapolis at the rate of eighty-five miles an hour is an indication of its speed possibilities. In the Fiat Cyclone and the record-holding Hotchkiss car, however, Christie will have worthy opponents, and the clash between the three is calculated to be one of the sensational events of the season.

The French car made two laps of the track yesterday in 52 and 53 seconds, which is an indication of the speed that will be made.

During the evening there will be record trials of one mile and other distances, and a five-mile free-for-all. At 9 o'clock the track will be cleared to permit the drivers in the twenty-four-hour race to tune up their cars on the course. The twenty-four-hour race will start promptly at 10 o'clock, and will run continuously until the finish on Saturday night. There has been heavy betting on this race, the Fiat, Renault, and Lozier ruling equal favorites with the Rainier a close choice for first honors. The Stearns, Acme, and Palmer & Singer are at slightly longer odds, while the Houpt, Allen-Kingston, and second Acme have many supporters. Paul Lacroix, entrant of the Renault car, announced yesterday that the car entered is 35-45 horse power and not 50 horse power as had been stated.

The Brighton course will be more brightly illuminated than ever before, the battery of searchlights having been increased since the last race. The scoring system has also been improved upon, and at this meet the score boards are so situated and lighted that they can be easily read from both grand and field stands as well as the clubhouse. Free parking space has been provided for 2,000 automobiles, while those who wish to view the race from the seats of their cars may do so by hiring parking space around the border of the track. All automobiles will be required to enter the grounds by way of the Neptune Avenue gate.

A deputation of motor enthusiasts from the Quaker City Motor Club arrived in New York yesterday to be present at the twenty-four-hour race. Included in the party were Dr. W. J. Donnelly, George Daley, Russell Donnelly, and Dr. J. R. Overpeck, the latter of whom has always been prominent in automobile races in Philadelphia and its vicinity, acting as one of the official A. A. A. referees.

Cincinnati Auto Club Decides Not to Enter Any Races.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Aug. 26.—Red-hot resolutions condemning the automobile races at Indianapolis last week as hazardous and detrimental to the advancement of the automobile were unanimously passed at a special meeting of the Cincinnati Automobile Club to-day. Officers of the association addressed the membership and deplored the fact that automobile enthusiasts would place the stamp of approval of races such as were held in Indianapolis. It was also announced that it was the sense of the meeting that members refrain from entering all races, and especially those similar to the tests held in Indianapolis.

The members present agreed to refrain from entering races, and went on record as opposed to races like the tests made in Indiana. It was agreed to send copies of the resolutions, together with a letter outlining the sense of the meeting, to all automobile clubs in the country, asking that a movement against such tests be instituted at once.

AUTO RACING CHANGES.

Radical Departure in Rules Governing Speed Contests.

BUFFALO, Aug. 26.—"There will be radical and vital changes in the rules governing automobile speed and endurance contests as the result of the fatalities in the races recently held in Indianapolis," said F. H. Elliott of New York, Secretary of the American Automobile Association, who arrived here to-day en route to the Good Roads Convention at Cleveland.

"I have just returned from Indianapolis," continued Mr. Elliott, "where I went in the hope that they had solved, as they claimed they had, the problem of holding speed races with danger of fatalities reduced to a minimum. Instead of being better it was worse. The inevitable result will be that the Executive Committee of the American Automobile Association will formulate rules for the management of these contests in future.

"These regulations will be submitted to the Contest Board. These contests in future will be conducted on sane lines."

Clark Still New England's Champion.

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—For the fourth time Ellery H. Clark, who has twice won the title as National all-around champion athlete, won the all-around championship meet of the New England Amateur Athletic Union at Wood Island Park to-day. Clark was a former Alderman of this city and a member of the School Committee, and has been in athletic competition for nearly twenty years, but in to-day's meet he won easily, not finding it necessary to compete in the one-mile run. His total number of points was 5,455½. Vic Kentard, the Harvard football star whose drop kick won the game from Yale last Fall, was second with 5,097 points. W. Lynch, a soldier from Fort Warren, was third.

THE POSTAL SAVINGS BANK IDEA.

According to a press dispatch from Beverly, President Taft desires "that the platform declaration of the Republican Party in favor of Postal Savings Banks be fulfilled as speedily as possible." A recommendation to that effect, it is intimated, will be made in his forthcoming annual message. The President's theory of the operation and the beneficial results of postal savings banks will attract attention and awaken no little interest in financial circles. We do not know with what degree of accuracy the views of the President are presented in the dispatch from Beverly, but here is what the dispatch says:

> Mr. Taft believes that several hundreds of millions would be placed at the disposal of the Government through postal savings banks. It is suggested that this money might well be employed in taking up the $600,000,000 or $700,000,000 of Government 2 per cent. bonds, which are outstanding, and which have given much concern to the Treasury Department officials. Already the 2 per cent. bonds are selling below par, and there is fear of further depreciation in view of 3 per cent. issues which have been authorized and which soon may be placed on the market.
> The money which the postal banks would draw, the President believes, is that which is sent abroad each year by foreigners who insist that the Government's guarantee shall be back of the bank in which they place their savings, and that which is now secreted in stockings and mattresses. He thinks that the postal banks would appeal only to those timid persons who are afraid to trust the ordinary banks and who would rather get the 2 per cent. or less interest which the Government would give them than to place the money in the regular savings banks, where it would draw from 3 to 4 per cent. interest each year.

So important a declaration of fiscal policy has never before, perhaps, been put forth by a President of the United States during his period of rest and recreation at the so-called Summer capital.

It is expected, we are told, that "several hundred millions" of the savings of the people would be put at the service of the Government through this device. In the year 1908 there were 8,705,848 depositors in the savings banks, and the total of their deposits was $3,660,553,945. In theory and very largely in fact, these savings bank deposits are made up, as the name implies, of the savings of the people, mostly wage-earners. The special census of 1905 puts the number of wage-earners in the manufactures of the country at 5,470,321. It is a reasonable inference that the greater part of these wage-earners have already acquired the savings bank habit. It may be doubted whether so large a sum as $600,000,000 or $700,000,000 can be attracted to postal savings banks without drawing upon the accumulations of banking institutions already in existence, most of them paying a higher rate of interest than the Government would pay.

But it is as a refunding operation on a gigantic scale that the President's plan is most interesting. There are now outstanding $731,000,000 of the consols of 1930 and of Panama 2 per cents. The larger part of these issues, nearly the whole of the $731,000,000, is held by the National banks as the basis upon which circulating notes are issued. They were bought by the banks at prices considerably above current quotations. The 2 per cents are now only a fraction above par. The loss to the National banks should they part with their holdings at present prices would be more than $30,000,000. The act of Aug. 5, 1909, authorizes the Secretary of the Treasury to issue bonds for canal purposes to the amount of $297,000,000. These bonds cannot be sold at a 2 per cent. rate of interest. It is the universal expectation that the rate will be 3 per cent. An issue of 3 per cent. Government bonds would have a serious effect upon the outstanding 2 per cents; they would go below par, and as the banks are allowed to issue notes up to par value, the Government would immediately call for additional security against notes outstanding. The Monetary Commission, as everybody knows, is hampered by this immense mass of Government obligations since a change to credit currency or to currency issued by a central bank would impose upon the Government the necessity of "taking care" of the banks that now hold more than $700,000,000 of 2 per cents. The markets of the entire world would not absorb so great a volume of securities. As a matter of fact, there is no market that wants either the whole or any part of them. The 2 per cent. bonds represent a forced loan; they are not an investment security, they are available only for the National banks.

If the President's theory is sound, the postal savings bank method of solving this problem will go into history as a brilliant stroke of financial genius. The Government will buy up the entire issue of $731,000,000 of 2 per cents, to the great relief of the banks. To put itself in funds for that rather large operation it will open postal savings banks where the money of the people will be received. This operation is, indeed, one of extraordinary interest. The Government calls in its bonds from one class of the people, the banks. It pays for them with the money of another class of people, the wage-earners. It does not give its bond to the lenders of this new money. Their security is merely a bank credit, an entry upon a postal savings bank book of accounts. This is something new in refunding, and if it be carried through to success the nations of the world will learn something to their advantage.

It might be asked by what arguments the Government would justify using the money of the poor to help the rich banks out of the bond scrape. It might be asked whether that would be on the whole a commendable and provident policy which would persuade the wage-earners of the country to deposit their surplus savings at an annual interest rate of "2 per cent. or less." That is making the wage-earners pay rather high for the Government guarantee. The Government will not retain the money—it will be immediately paid over to the banks for the 2 per cents. The banks would loan it out at 3 or 4 per cent., many of them at 6 per cent. or more. The original contributors to the fund would have to be content, however, with their "2 per cent. or less." Somebody would be sure to say that the Government ought to invest the Government postal savings bank deposits in the new Panama 3 per cents, thus enabling it to pay a little higher rate of interest to the depositors. That, however, would not solve the problem of the banks loaded down with $731,000,000 of entirely unsalable Government bonds.

Probably the chief merit of this postal savings bank theory lies in the solution it offers of the perplexing puzzle of the huge volume of bonds that make the banks anxious and stand in the way of sound currency reform. If the plan has other merits, they will doubtless be developed during the lively debate in Congress which will follow the introduction of the President's bill. The supporters of the measure would do well to prepare themselves in advance to give satisfactory answers to a host of troublesome questions.

REAL TEMPERANCE AND FALSE.

The summary of the proceedings of the international congress recently held in London to consider means to check the evil of alcoholism is interesting reading. Practical men in almost every walk of life presented statistics showing the ill-effects of intoxicating liquor. In the postal service, the army, the navy, the abstainers were shown to be in better health and altogther more efficient than the drinkers. The relation of alcohol to crime was set forth in comprehensible and accurate figures. Proposed measures of intelligent legislation against inebriates and inebriety were suggested and explained. This is all sane and useful labor in the cause of temperance. To set forth clearly and without rash generalization the evil results of the abuse of alcohol, with no exhortation or emotional extravagance, is the best that can be done to check drunkenness. But much can be accomplished by that methor, and a few wise laws vigorously enforced.

The rabid prohibitionists try to fight intemperance with intemperance. They pass laws impossible to enforce, and the extravagance of their measures inevitably leads to a revulsion of feeling which creates a moral state worse than that they aimed to reform. Alabama's new code of prohibition laws, just signed by the Governor, contains much of this kind of extravagance. Clubs are prohibited from buying wines and liquors and keeping them for the use of their members. The dealers in root beer and soda water are all placed under absurd restrictions. Barred doors are prohibited in all public resorts, as well as electric bells and dumbwaiters, and if the Sheriff of any one of Alabama's sixty-seven counties suspects the storage or sale of intoxicants in any building whatever, he is privileged to raid and destroy it. People cannot be made temperate by such violent means. But the methods of the London conference are sensible and potent.

THE BOGY LAID AGAIN.

Recent correspondence from the Far East to The Times of London aims to lay once more the ghost of that old bogy, the Yellow Peril. Reports of the growth of Japanese influence in China are denied by this correspondent. On the contrary, he declares, the closer contact of the two peoples inevitably increases the antipathy of the Chinese to the Japanese. The example of Japan has, undoubtedly, contributed to the awakening of the Chinese people, but the idea of the Yellow Peril, the union of the nations of the Far East for warfare against the West, is based on ignorance of the national character and individual temperament of both peoples. The Japanese and Chinese, he declares, are as dissimilar as the people of any two European nations.

There is a well-supported ethnical theory that in the Japanese Indian and Malayan strains predominate over the Mongolian, while the Chinaman is a pure Mongol. Some of the best, as well as some of the worst, of the Japanese traits are traceable to the elements in their blood which are not Mongolian. The languages of the two countries are very different, except for the written characters, and as the Japanese are so rarely good linguists, the tale about Japanese emissaries passing for Chinamen in China is clearly a fable. The hostility of the Chinese in Manchuria is the chief obstacle to the Japanese plans in that territory.

Presumably this ghost of a preposterous bogy will never be thoroughly laid in our time. Enlightened future ages will read of it with smiles. The English correspondents may, of course, have a purpose, nowadays, in belittling the reports of Japanese designs on China, but China is beginning to show signs of ability to take care of herself.

THE SOUTHERN PROBLEM.

The letter from Mr. Edgar Gardner Murphy of Alabama which The Times prints in another column is an expression of that hopeful and progressive South presented in Mr. Murphy's recent book, "The Basis of Ascendancy." Its more encouraging view of the Southern situation is at least partially sustained in the field of politics—a field in which our institutions, as in Pennsylvania and in this city, are often strangely misrepresented. We still cling to Conners and the Sullivans. But Mississippi has rejected Vardaman; Georgia has named Joseph Brown in place of Hoke Smith, and in Arkansas not only was the favorite candidate of Jefferson Davis defeated for Governor, but so long ago as the Chicago Convention Senator Davis failed in the attempt to name the delegates from his already wearied Commonwealth. South Carolina retains Tillman. But Senator Tillman represents partly in his own rough but intellectual nature the transition between the crude South of the Reconstruction and the new South of which Mr. Murphy speaks so hopefully. It is certain that in his worst attributes Tillman will have no successor.

Mr. Murphy says that the tendency of Southerners to become merely a class of negro dominators is now "insidiously present," but only in certain elements of its leadership, and these elements are disappearing. A sense of security has replaced the old agony of defense and repression, and in this security new and safer guides have arisen. It augurs well that the South has begun to grapple with its problem under its own "leadership of valid ideas and of definite and generous achievement."

WHY NOT SELL TICKETS?

Prominent among the innovations in the operation of the surface-car lines of the city for which Receiver Frederick W. Whitridge may hope to be remembered in coming years are the posting of the Eighth Commandment for the guidance of his conductors and the use of the pay-as-you-enter cars. It is, perhaps, safe to assert that Mr. Whitridge has been repaid for both ventures, possibly the commandment actually receiving reinforcement from this very latest novelty in the car-building industry. But experience as personally witnessed to by those who use the cars regularly has shown that the pay-as-you-enter cars cannot reach their greatest success until the company sells tickets.

Crowding at the entrance, a man with a dollar bill or a quarter waiting for his change halts and irritates twenty passengers behind him ready and anxious to get aboard. This blocking of the car entrances is said to be of daily occurrence at the foot of West Forty-second Street and at the East Thirty-fourth Street Ferry, where hundreds of commuters are poured into Manhattan by the Long Island City ferries to be distributed among the Broadway and Fifth Avenue "cliffs" for the "daily grind." Frequently it is the case, ruffled commuters say, that conductors cannot find the change, though they dive vigorously and hopefully into all their pockets, with the result that the car is held many minutes. Passengers are kept from their seats longer than necessary, and prevented from reaching their offices on time.

This trouble would be wholly removed without possible loss to the company, the victimized Long Islander says, if tickets were sold at 5 cents each, as Subway and elevated tickets are sold. A very large number of Subway and elevated passengers using these lines regularly at rush hours buy ten and twenty tickets at a time to avoid the blocks and delays at the ticket booths. The principle being the same, why not apply it to the surface pay-as-you-enter cars? Receiver Whitridge might thereby even prevent many fractures also of the Third Commandment.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Recklessness Has Its Advantages.

It is not the breaking of speed and distance records at Rheims that is the really important feature of the so-called "aviation week." Using the seed raised and involuntarily distributed by the brothers Wright, there is now no great difficulty in growing that sort of flower. That neither of the Ohioans has yet flown as far as Paulhan or as fast as Latham, is apparently only because they haven't tried to do more than was necessary for the successful exploitation of their machine in a commercial way.

The Wrights, it must be confessed, seem to be quite destitute of the sporting instinct. They make no unnecessary exertions, they take no unnecessary chances, and, while they are willing to "show their goods" to intending or probable purchasers, they manifest a sometimes irritating indifference to everybody else. Indeed, there is not much, if any, evidence that they enjoy flying or that they will ever make an aerial journey when once they have disposed of all the "rights" they can sell. In short, they are inventors, business men, and manufacturers, and it would not be fair to criticise them for not being what they never pretended to be.

But the Frenchmen are different. No doubt they have as sharp an eye for the franc as the Wrights have for the dollar. They have besides, however, a thirst for glory and a hunger for the applause of crowds, and so, though it would be absurd to credit them with either greater courage or greater skill than is possessed by the teachers of them all, they are much readier to perform feats that are, or may be, picturesque rather than significant. From some points of view they are a bit undignified, and more than a bit reckless, but it is a notable fact that the only really serious accident to a heavier-than-air machine befell one built by the Wrights and guided by Orville himself. As yet, at least, the men willing to take a needless risk now and then have escaped disaster, and as a result they have been able to demonstrate to a somewhat incredulous world something of which the Wrights had not convinced it—namely, that the aeroplane is not exclusively and necessarily a fair-weather plaything. Several of the competitors at Rheims have refused to wait for the hours of gentle zephyrs or of no wind at all, but have ventured aloft into really stiff breezes, and, what is more, have conquered the difficulties they encountered there. This, it seems to us, is the important—the very important—achievement of the Rheims contests. Beside it the breaking of records known to be impermanent is nothing.

They Brought It Upon Themselves.

So severe is the rebuke with which Commissioner Baker has accompanied his refusal to grant the requests recently made to him by the members of the police force that one is almost inclined to pity the victims of his merciless excortication. The inclination, however, can be resisted, for never was rebuke more deliberately invited or more thoroughly deserved than that which the policemen of all ranks, from the lieutenants downward, have brough upon themselves by their naïve assumption that, with Gen. Bingham out of the department, the reforms he had instituted were at an end—and all the reforms other Commissioners had instituted as well.

It was an assumption which others than they had also made—the others, for the most part, unfortunately, being chiefly criminals, grafters, and corrupt politicians, and it is in company such as this that the police get the information that the force exists for the public's benefit, not its own, and that the time has not yet come when the department is to be conducted under rules made by the policemen themselves, not with a view to increasing their efficiency, but to giving them more ease and less work. Commissioner Baker tells his subordinates that he would have considered their requests impertinent if they had not been so silly. As a matter of fact most of them were both, and the single exception which the Commissioner admits—that for the restoration of the three-platoon system—while, as he says, open to debate, will probably be rejected by him, when he comes to give it serious attention, just as it has been by all his better and some of his worse predecessors in office.

That the policemen will not like the reply made to their petition is certain; if they dislike it sufficiently the Commissioner tells them that they have an easy escape from that and other police woes. As he puts it, "A request to be permitted to resign will receive my O. K. upon presentation." Terrible as the conditions are in the department, with no gold badges for the lieutenants, and nobody permitted to sell chowder party tickets or to levy assessments for the purpose of buying what are euphemistically called presents, there is no great probability that the Commissioner will get writer's cramp from incessant penning of the letters he mentions. Policemen are like children in many ways, and they simply didn't understand a situation that had much puzzled many people wiser than themselves.

"Part Time" Has Its Advantages.

That a considerable number of children must be put on "part time" when the public schools open is not necessarily a bad thing, and the Board of Education might well consider the question whether the hours of the youngest pupils should not be shortened, even though the accommodations were such that every one of them could have a full school day.

In a city like this the public schools are used far too much merely as a convenient place of confinement for children so young that they can get little benefit from any instruction of the kind that can be given in large classes, and if, for these infants, the school day were divided into two, not involuntarily, but voluntarily and systematically, it would be for the advantage of everybody except, possibly, the parents, who have come to see the schools largely as places where their children are safe from harm while they are themselves away from home or too busy there to look after their offspring.

That the public schools should not be used as day nurseries, however, is certain, and the enforced resort to "part time" prevents that to some degree. Half a day is quite enough for little children to study, and probably it is too much.

Father Ducey.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the name of the Manhattan Single Tax Club and of single taxers generally I desire to lay the tribute of our affection and esteem on the bier of Father Thomas Ducey. Embracing men of all denominations and of none, there is nothing sectarian in our action. We do homage to the memory of a man rare in his own generation, and rarer still in ours, who held his political independence as a citizen not inconsistent with his priestly functions. He held it more important that his creed should be pre-eminent in spiritual power than in material possession or political prestige, that as "the Church of the poor" it should teach the people their rights rather than preach a tame submission to economic injustice.

His loyal support of Dr. McGlynn in his historic struggle for clerical emancipation won for him our lasting gratitude.

"Fair peace be to his sable shroud."

With Montauk Point as a western terminal and at the record rate per knot, how long would it take from Montauk to Fishguard? Also from New York to London, including the two rail trips at high speed?

SOUTHERNERS NOT NEGRO DOMINATORS

Why They Have Produced but Seven Leading Scientists to New England's 174.

A BETTER VISTA AHEAD

Wars, Reconstruction, and Agriculture Had Combined with Slavery to Make Southern Whites Backward.

Lists of men of merit, like "Who's Who," Dr. J. McKeen Cattell's "Statistical Study of Eminent Men," "American Men of Science," and special lists of from 1,000 to 3,000 scientific men compiled by Dr. Cattell and Dr. F. A. Woods show that Massachusetts and Connecticut have produced from a population of 1,691,213 in 1860, their approximate date of birth, 174 of the Nation's thousand leading scientific men, whereas, Dr. Cattell says, "the adjacent States of Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana, with a population of 3,661,219 in 1860, have produced but seven." In Science of Aug. 13 Dr. Cattell noted as a "fact" that the Southern whites "are nearer to the negroes in their scientific productivity than to New Englanders," ascribing this to the influence of their environment.

In response to The Times's comment upon the condition of the Southerners Edgar Gardner Murphy declares in the following letter that it is not due simply to degeneracy in the presence of an inferior race:

New York, Aug. 26, 1909.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A subject of more than sectional interest is suggested by the editorial in The Times of the 19th inst. entitled "A Warning to Southerners." I am inclined to think, however, that the relatively small representation of the South in the ranks of "science," as compared with New England, is due to more than one cause.

The quotations which The Times is good enough to make from my recent volume, "The Basis of Ascendancy," have indicated, indeed, that (in my judgment) any stronger racial group is likely to encounter certain disadvantages, both intellectual and political, from the oppressive contact of large masses of a weaker race. This is not necessarily the fault of the one group or the other, as I have tried to illustrate in the chapter called "The Fate of the Strong."

Yet, however serious the influence of race pressure in the shaping of our conditions, it is but one of the factors in the case. There are other causes which enter just as profoundly into the apparent contrast between what Prof. Cattell calls the "scientific productivity" of the two sections. I say "the apparent" contrast because I am by no means satisfied as to the validity of the statistical method which the editor of Science has employed; but space is limited, and that is another story.

For the contrast, in a general sense, is real. My present purpose is but to emphasize the consideration that the cause of New England's preponderance (a preponderance frankly to be admitted) is not single but complex. Indeed, the explanations are too numerous for brief description; the naming of a few will only suggest the many which must remain unnamed.

The South has been peculiarly the theatre of our wars; the course of New England's history, upon the other hand, has been singularly undisturbed. The South, thus far, has been largely compelled to let "science" wait upon bread; industrial recovery, the repair and reconstitution not only of shattered institutions but of exhausted life, has had to precede the struggle for the scholastic and the technical in culture.

New England's long period of industrial tranquillity, naturally followed by the general accumulation and distribution of wealth, has strengthened and broadened that sense of social stability which enhances the vogue of academic tendencies. The South, upon the other hand, has won as yet but little of this general prosperity and ease, and still less of that sense of social security which always contributes so powerfully to the instinct for learning and to the temper of letters.

New England's common schools have found their basis in a homogeneous population, a population homogeneous not racially alone, but socially as well. The South has had to confront—in the founding of her institutions of popular education—both a formidable problem of race and a problem of social cleavage within the ranks of the stronger group. It is commonly assumed that the difficulty which opposed the way of the free common school in the period before the civil war was the institution of slavery. Yet this is but half the truth. There were then no "constitutional" obstacles to the founding of a public free school system for our unprivileged white population. Yet such a system was left unfounded; and Jefferson's great conception of "the education of all the people" was denied and defeated in Virginia by an aristocracy which thus recorded (despite its many qualities of nobility and charm) another of the tragic blunders of our development. New England lost much—but in a larger sense she gained more—by reason of the fact that she had no landed aristocracy and that her educational institutions became at once the creation and expression of "the plain people." Moreover, the very meagreness of her agricultural resources has probably increased the per capita percentage of her literary and "scientific" classes—partly by the drawing off of her agricultural population and partly through the necessary stimulation of the academic and inventive propensities of those who remained upon her unresponsive soil. That New England would be stronger if her interests were to-day more largely agricultural, and that the South, with agriculture less predominant, might gain an access of general interest in technical science and in the arts are suggestive possibilities upon which I may not dwell just here.

It is abundantly evident, however, that the contrast between the interests of the two sections has more than one explanation, and that at the South the pressure of the masses of a weaker race is but one of the factors in a complex and varied situation. It is true that we have found, at times, the influences of intellectual retrogression in the burdens and perplexities of our racial situation, and yet I have not intended to suggest that "the Southerners are becoming a class of negro dominators with a progressive atrophy of all their civilized powers." Such is, indeed, the tendency represented by certain elements in our leadership. But it is a tendency which, while insidiously present, is constantly subjected to the corrective play of other forces—forces which are finding their expression in a leadership of valid ideas and of definite and generous achievement.

We are facing, therefore, no perspective of deterioration. It is indeed a prospect in which the forces of deterioration are powerfully at work. They are quite as active, though under other forms, in other sections and among other peoples. But always within our prospect there is also the appealing (and prevailing) vista of the better way. In the volume from which you are kind enough to quote I have ventured thus to express these alternatives of our development:

> In each weakness of every lower social group there lies an opportunity for exploitation; but in each weakness there lies also an opportunity to help. You may use the weak man or the weaker group in the one way or in the other, and by the nature of your use of this man or this group your capacities and faculties (which take their qualities from use) are yielded to an education which assumes descending and contractive—or ascending and expanding—forms. The injurious social reactions caused in the stronger by its contact with the weaker can thus be checked—and in measure overcome—only by the stronger modifying its revulsions by its compassions, and by so admitting and utilizing the educative power of its higher reactions as to determine its relations with the weaker under the processes of co-operation rather than repression. Its own gradual deliverance springs from its resolution to deliver. Its own dominant interests cease to be repressive, its larger powers—freed from their constraining preoccupation in the constraint of a weaker group—are released into the varied forms of a larger activity and a happier self-expression.
> For, as the stronger race withdraws its life, in its contact with the weaker, from the merely coercive or regulative forms of its expression, and tends to yield itself in larger measure to the forms of co-operative action, it naturally finds the basis of its approximations in sympathy rather than in compromise. Among the social reactions excited by its contact with the weaker race, the higher now tend to substitute themselves for the lower, giving to every element of power a new quality of gentleness and a deeper touch of magnanimity.

That such considerations are gaining an ever larger popular support and that "the Southerners are not becoming a class of negro dominators" is more evident with every year of our more varied industrial and educational activity. For, as I have also indicated: "The South is 'at home' within the land. The fact is so obvious that its very assertion carries almost the note of affectation. It is true not merely because of the reality of our kinship with the older past—the past in which our forefathers created the unity our fathers could not destroy—but because the South is at home within the future, within the region of our destiny and in the waiting province of the highest things which this Nation can conceive of personal and social freedom. There, too, she dwells; she, in her soul, has no dream nor notion nor imagination except of a democratic State."

VENEZUELAN MINISTER.

What May Be Expected of Pietri, New Minister of Foreign Affairs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A Caracas correspondent in a special cable writes, among other things, the following:

> There is general regret in the diplomatic circle here at the retirement of Dr. Gonzales Guinan as Minister of Foreign Affairs, who has so admirably discharged the duties of his office. * * * How his successor, Gen. Juan Pietri, will fill this difficult office no one can tell, since his political experience has not been along this line.

The correspondent is misinformed as to Gen. Pietri's political career and his ability to serve the position to which he has been appointed by President Gomez. Under the administration of Dr. Rojas Paul, Gen. Pietri was Minister of Venezuela to Mexico. Gen. Pietri was later President of the republic, and under Gen. Crespo's Government he was Minister of Venezuela to all the leading countries of Europe. He held in the same period, too, the same office he is holding now, and was furthermore Minister of Finance and Minister of War. Gen. Pietri is a graduate of the Sorbonne of Paris, where he resided for twenty-five years. M. Bourgeois and most of the prominent Frenchmen of that generation were his classmates and personal friends.

Gen. Pietri is a man of great character and great intelligence, a man of superior passions and superior ideals. His policy will be one of good-will and justice to all the nations and absolute respect for their legitimate rights, asking, of course, for his country nothing more or nothing less than justice and respect.

CODE WORDS.

The New Rule Against Them by Telegraph Companies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Under date of the 16th inst. the two leading telegraph companies of the United States issued notices that on Sept. 1 the charge would be doubled for code words made up of artificial groups of letters.

At the international convention in 1908 it was agreed to charge as one word any group of ten letters, provided they formed pronounceable syllables. At the convention last year a strong effort was made to count five letters to the word, but it was overruled. In spite of this the two companies, which have a virtual monopoly of the wires in this country, have given notice that the limit of artificial words shall be halved for domestic messages.

The hardship of this abrupt change falls on those who during the past five years have spent large sums for revising codes in accordance with the 1903 rule. Some of the private codes which we have made since that date have cost as much as $10,000 to $12,000, and several from $4,000 and upward.

Artificial words have come to stay, as they enable codes to be made so flexible that all the words of a message can be coded. This is far preferable to hunting for a set phrase to approximate your meaning and filling in with plain language.

Enjoyed Being Pupil-Nurse.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I myself have trod the thorny path of the pupil-nurse, and, while I do not think that any of the hardships incident to the position were spared me, only pleasant recollections remain of the time spent in the training school. Since my graduation I have had opportunity to come in contact with nurses in training in various capacities, but the relations were always pleasant and mutually profitable. Women of the type Dr. Harris speaks of I have never met, nor do I think that they would be permitted to remain in office.

THE WANDERLUST.

I must away! The open road attracts me to forego
The olden paths which well my footsteps know.
I would go hence, to search along the way,
Untrodden fields wherein the flowers are gay,
And streams are dancing. And upon the brow
Of unscaled heights I would in wonder bow.
Then tempt the valleys where none else is seen;
Tread all the paths and seek in each ravine
Those unknown treasures which my soul desires,
And on the rocks build my weird, votive fires.
I cannot tarry here where to my gaze
All, all is weary! All so understood!
I must go hence to tread a thousand ways
O'er sunlit plains and in the shadowed wood!

Committee Not Expected to Take Any Disciplinary Action in the Case of Curtis.

WANTS BENSEL FOR MAYOR

Called on the Tammany Leader in His Behalf Despite His Affiliation with the Tiger's Foe.

The Executive Committee of the Committee of One Hundred held a meeting yesterday afternoon at which the visit of Thomas J. Curtis, a member, to Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy to advocate the nomination of President John A. Bensel of the Board of Water Supply, for Mayor, was discussed. The committee adjourned without taking any action to discipline Mr. Curtis, who attended the meeting, and came out of the committee room smiling, while the other members of the committee wore a worried look.

The incident had been for hours the main topic of gossip in political circles by the time the committee got to work. Predictions that Curtis would be sharply lectured and asked to resign had been general, for the politicians could not figure out how an organization so pronouncedly hostile to Tammany Hall as is the Committee of One Hundred could possibly tolerate at its secret councils, where plans are being made for the defeat of Tammany, a man who was in close enough touch with the enemy's camp to enter it and advocate the nomination of a man for the head of the enemy's ticket.

Questions with the purpose of sounding the sentiment of the committee members on this question after the meeting of the Executive Committee had adjourned brought evasive replies.

"All I care to say," said Raymond V. Ingersoll, Chairman of the Executive Committee, "is that the committee did not see fit to take any action in the matter."

"Will that close the incident?" Mr. Ingersoll was asked.

"That will be for the full Committee of One Hundred to determine," was his reply. "In the full committee alone are vested the powers of final decision on questions of importance."

The Hundred will meet on Tuesday afternoon. The general meeting will be preceded by a meeting of the Executive Committee. It is expected that the Curtis incident will be taken up anew at that meeting.

The general verdict at the meeting yesterday was that Mr. Curtis had shown a lamentable lack of discretion in calling on Tammany Leader Murphy. This much could be inferred from statements emanating from members of the Executive Committee. At the same time it was admitted that Mr. Curtis had a perfect right to call on anybody or advocate the nomination of anybody in his individual capacity.

The meeting of the Executive Committee was of about two hours' duration. It was held behind closed doors. The reporters waiting without could not help but hear that at times the debate was rather heated. After the meeting was over, Mr. Curtis was one of the first to leave the committee room.

"Well, I am still in favor of Mr. Bensel for Mayor," was all he would say when asked what had happened at the meeting.

Chairman Outerbridge of the Committee of One Hundred is an ex-officio member of the Executive Committee. He did not attend the meeting. Many other members were absent. It was said that there is no foundation for any report that there is dissension among the members.

It was learned yesterday that Matthew A. McConville, a member of the International Union of Steam Engineers, and another labor man named Hatch went with Mr. Curtis to see Tammany Leader Murphy. McConville is a member of the Committee of One Hundred, too. Early in the day Mr. Curtis and his two associates called on Commissioner Bensel.

"Yes, I went to see Mr. Murphy to recommend the nomination of Mr. Bensel," said Mr. Curtis to the reporters who were waiting for him at the office of Mr. Bensel. "I believe Bensel would be the best friend organized labor could have in the Mayor's chair. When I called on Mr. Murphy it was as the representative of fifty labor unions who are for Bensel."

When asked whether he would resign from the Committee of One Hundred Mr. Curtis said he wouldn't.

TAMMANY CONVENTION DATES.

General Committee Fixes Times and Places—Republicans Meet Next Week.

The Tammany Hall General Committee met last night and fixed the dates for the County, Borough, Assembly, and Aldermanic Conventions.

The County Convention will be held at Tammany Hall on the evening of Oct. 7, and will be followed the same evening by the Borough Convention. The Bronx Democrats will nominate their Borough President on the evening of Oct. 6 at Moeller's Bronx Casino, 154th Street and Third Avenue. The Municipal Court District Conventions were set down for Oct. 6, the Assembly District Conventions will be held on Oct. 1, and the Aldermanic Conventions the following day. It is an innovation on the part of Tammany Hall to hold the Assembly and Aldermanic Conventions so early. In former years they have been the last to be held.

The Democratic County Convention will nominate three Justices of the Supreme Court, Sheriff, County Clerk, Register, District Attorney, and one Judge of the City Court. The Borough Conventions will nominate, besides Borough Presidents, four Coroners in Manhattan and two in the Bronx.

The meeting ratified the action of the Tammany delegates to the Conference Committee in fixing the date of the City Convention for Sept. 30, and affirming the old basis of representation, and before adjourning issued the call for the Democratic primaries on Sept. 21.

The Republicans will fix their date for City Convention at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the City Committee, which will be held next week—probably Tuesday night.

STAY FOR THE HEINZES.

Must File Bond for $32,353 Judgment if They Accept Halt.

A stay of examination in supplementary proceedings was granted yesterday to Otto C. Heinze, Arthur P. Heinze, and Max H. Schultze by Supreme Court Justice Giegerich, the action growing out of a judgment obtained against them for $32,353 by Anita Howell, and now held by the Aetna Indemnity Company. The defendants, however, must give a bond for the payment of the judgment in case they take advantage of the stay.

The suit was brought some time ago by Anita Howell against Alphonze Christlieb, Daniel Lamm, the Heinze brothers, and Schmultze. Lamm and Schmultze went into the glove business, having formerly been in the employ of the Heinzes, and their accounts were alleged to have been guaranteed by them. The plaintiff sued the guarantors and obtained judgment, which was affirmed by the Court of Appeals. The Aetna Company, which bonded the judgment on appeal, then purchased the judgment, and now tries to collect.

The Heinzes assert that this company promised to take no proceedings toward collection until May, 1910.

The best of "Arsène Lupin," the translated French play produced at the Lyceum last evening, comes after the beginning of the third act, when the suspicion of the pursuing detective, Guerchard, has become more or less a certainty, and when he is practically convinced that the man who is posing as the Duke of Chamerace, is in reality the famous thief.

The two men are alone in the drawing room of Mgr. Gournay-Martin in Paris, awaiting a visit from the criminal who politely advises his victims in advance when he expects to come to pilfer. He has already carried away most of the family treasures. This time he is coming at midnight for a valuable diamond tiara. The bauble, in its case, lies on the table between the two men. The hands of the clock slowly revolve; at the stroke of 12 Guerchard seizes the case and exultingly exclaims: "Aha! you see he does not come. The tiara is safe."

"He has been here," says the supposed Duke. "The tiara is gone."

The detective produces the tiara from the case. The thief—for the supposed Duke is Arsène Lupin—tells him it is a counterfeit.

"This is the real one," he remarks, taking a tiara from his pocket, as he passes out of the door, leaving the detective irresolutely standing in the middle of the room.

You wonder by what duplicity or process of sleight of hand the substitution had been made. But your curiosity is not satisfied. For the authors simply ask you to take the thing for granted; just as they ask you to take various other things for granted, because they want you to, as, for instance, the removal by Arsene Lupin of another jewel from the pocket of the girl he loves in order to save her from the police, though there are half a dozen people in the room, including examining Magistrate, the Commissary of Police, the victims of the robbery themselves, not to speak of the famous Detective Guerchard, any one of whom might naturally see the action.

At a point where an escape has to be made Arsene Lupin is informed that the house is surrounded by the police. "How about the back door?" he asks. And the back door is not guarded it appears, which is convenient to say the least. Again, Arsene can remove his handcuffs at the moment when the detective has him absolutely trapped. The playwrights do not attempt to cover these points. You must have faith. That is their method.

One doesn't necessarily insist that a detective story should not tax credulity, but its incidents should have the appearance of plausibility at least. The authors of this French piece, however, or the adaptors, have not been very subtle. You see the wheels go round, and you wish you didn't.

Nevertheless, it is good fun. The scenes between the detective and the thief, both absolutely certain of themselves, easy, assured, gracious, and agreeable, the one like the mouse waiting to dart through the convenient crevice, the other the cat ready to pounce at the slightest suggestion of a false move on the part of his intended victim—these scenes build up steadily to interesting climaxes, and have a sort of genuine suspense. And they are excellently acted, with plenty of repose and dry humor, if a trifle too much insistence on long pauses by Sidney Herbert, who is the detective as was in "The Thief," and with strong family resemblance to his professional brother in that play. But why not? That one was a Paris detective, with a great reputation, so the very man to be called in to hunt down Arsene Lupin.

It was very delightful, too, to see William Courtenay, as Lupin, standing up to him, taunting him with being a policeman—could any one but a thief have found a better word to express his contempt—and showing him up as a coward at last in the presence of a rubber ball masquerading as a bomb. Mr. Courtney was irresistible in these scenes, playing with charming naturalness, with a smile that would have softened any one but a sleuth, with easy insolence and assurance, and with agreeable sincerity in his final love scene. For even a thief must have his love story, and with Miss Doris Keane, herself light fingered, to keep from being something worse, the sentimental side is not neglected.

So, although Arsene Lupin is not quite so big a play as preliminary flourishes have made it, and if, with its capital, though not entirely, fresh idea, the authors have been somewhat lacking in ingenuity to develop its best effect, it is still an entertainment that is pretty sure to be deservedly attractive to many theatregoers.

Chales Harbury seemed unnecessarily explosive, but he was amusing, and Arthur Elliott and Ivan Simpson were excellent in the investigation scene. Guy Nichols and Ivan Simpson played bits capitally, and Beverly Sitgreaves was thoroughly artistic in a brief rôle in character.

Virginia Hammond, Alice Putnam, May Galyer, Grace Walsh, and Ida Greeley Smith were among the other competent people in the cast.

BARRED FROM ELLIS ISLAND.

Missionary Practiced Business Instead of Charity, Williams Found.

Immigration Commissioner Williams issued orders yesterday excluding H. Moushekian, a missionary representing one of the Armenian societies, from Ellis Island on the ground that he was practicing commercialism to the neglect of the charitable interests of his society.

The Commissioner said that in July, 1908, Moushekian induced an immigrant who had $300 to deposit it in a savings bank to loan it to a friend of his on whose house a mortgage was about to be foreclosed. A chattel mortgage was issued to the immigrant, but it became valueless after Aug. 4, this year, because it had been foreclosed.

The matter was called to the attention of the Commissioner and he succeeded in getting the money returned to the immigrant.

ADLER GIVES UP FIGHT WITH UNIONS

MANAGERS' COMBINE FAILS

Tomascheffsky and Willner's Quarrel and Adler's Retirement Upset Plans —Theatres May Not Open To-night.

Jacob Adler, who for many years has been one of the most prominent Yiddish actors in America, yesterday announced that conditions on the east side were too much for him and that he would sublease his Grand Street Theatre for a moving picture show and retire from that portion of the city.

For his future Mr. Adler has three plans under consideration. He has been offered a contract by a firm of Broadway managers to star in a production of "The Merchant of Venice." A vaudeville firm has offered him a large salary for a period of forty weeks to appear in a scene from the same play in a chain of vaudeville theatres. He also has some desire to return to Russia as an actor, as he has not been there for the last twenty-five years.

"Whatever I do I shall no longer have a theatre on the east side," he said yesterday. "The demands made by the unions have made it impossible to continue. My expenses often run as high as $3,700 a week when the receipts are only $1,300. Now that the unions have made all sorts of impossible demands, asking me to engage actors, which I cannot possibly use among other things, I see no reason to continue the struggle when other opportunities are open to me.

"My wife, Sarah Adler, has been studying English for two years now, and if I appear in an English production it is likely that she will appear with me. At any rate she will not be seen in the Yiddish theatres."

The Yiddish actor-managers have been planning a combine to fight the United Hebrew Trades Unions, whose demands, it is said, will make it impossible for the Yiddish theatres to open as announced to-night. It was intended that the managers of the People's, Thalia, and Grand Street Theatres should band together for common protection. However, a quarrel between Boris Tomascheffsky, one of the actor-managers, and Max Willner, stepson of David Kessler of the Thalia Theatre, and David Adler's announcement to retire from the Yiddish stage in America, has made this impossible.

It is said that each manager has put up $1,000 as an evidence of his good faith in forming this combine.

MISS GERARD KEEPS AWAY.

George Bronson Howard, playwright and co-author with Wilson Mizner of "The Only Law," was held in $1,000 bail for trial in Jefferson Market Court yesterday by Magistrate Corrigan on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Another charge pending against him of compelling Theodora Gerard, a show girl, to surrender a $450 diamond ring at the point of a dagger was postponed until Aug. 31, because Miss Gerard didn't appear.

Howard's trouble is the outcome of a quarrel between the playwright and Miss Gerard over the ownership of the ring. Several days ago she caused his arrest, alleging that he held a dagger at her throat and forced her to give him the ring.

When the case was called, she wanted to withdraw the complaint, but the Magistrate refused to permit this. She has not appeared against him since.

The concealed weapon case was then called. Howard admitted having the dagger in his possession when arrested. He said he had taken it because he had been afraid Miss Gerard would commit suicide.

DISCOVERS A GLACIER.

Perkins Party, Cruising Off Alaska, Christens It Princeton.

CORDOVA, Alaska, Aug. 26.—The George W. Perkins excursion party, while cruising along a vast stretch of Alaskan coast, discovered on the west coast of Knights Island a new glacier emptying into Prince William Sound. The ice river is two miles long and is 200 feet high in front. The Yucatan sailed near to it in 100 fathoms of water. The glacier was named Princeton, being christened by Miss Perkins, daughter of the financier.

The excursionists went out to the glacier in small boats. Miss Perkins made a daring dash in a swift launch, and amid falling ice smashed a bottle of champagne on the face of the glacier.

Mr. Perkins will ask the United States Government to place the location and name on the official maps. The E. H. Harriman Alaska excursion several years ago discovered and named the Yale, Harvard, and Harriman glaciers.

The Perkins party sailed in the Yucatan last night for Seattle via Sitka. The Alaskan cruise has lasted two months.

NOISE-MAKERS ARE ENJOINED.

Court Halts Nocturnal Music Which Destroyed a Family's Sleep.

A victory for anti-noise crusaders was apparently won yesterday in a decision handed down by Supreme Court Justice Giegerich in the case of Israel Feinman against John Hachter and James Herman, arising out of an application for an injunction to restrain the defendants from being instrumental in making noises that disturbed his family and prevented them from sleeping.

Counsel for Feinman told the court that his client lived in an apartment at 47 Stanton Street, under which was a restaurant and wineroom kept by the defendants. Feinman's counsel alleged the defendants entertained nomadic bands from 11 P. M. until 5 A. M., the music rendering sleep impossible. When the bands were silent, it was said, an automatic piano ground out ear-splitting melodies, all of which resulted in the Feinman family suffering from nervous headaches. The defendants denied the allegations.

Justice Giegerich, in his decision, stated that he was satisfied that the defendants permitted the noises in question, and said he would grant an injunction pending a trial of the action. The lawyers for both sides will confer and decide at what hours the offending noises are to be permitted.

GUNNED FOR CAT IN PARK.

People in Battery Park at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon were startled by the report of a pistol shot. Three more reports followed in rapid succession. By this time fully 1,000 persons were hurrying toward a tall tree in which sat a sad-looking cat. Beneath the tree stood a young man with spectacles on blazing away at the feline as if his life depended on hitting the animal.

Many of the crowd recognized the cat as Muriel, a white faced Maltese cat, which for many years has been the pet of Jimmie Lynch, known to all men along the water front as "The Battery Dolphin." Several men asked the sportsman what he was doing with the gun and he replied that his name was Theodore Henderson and he had been sent down to kill the cat by the S. P. C. A., as a message had been telephoned to the society's office that the animal had lost its mental balance because of the untimely end of its offspring by drowning on Wednesday.

Theodore was a bad marksman and could not hit Muriel, which seemed unaware of what was going on.

Men and women pleaded with Henderson to spare the cat, but the S. P. C. A. man was getting ready to fire again when Reuben Crosstrees, a rigger, 85 years old, shinned up the tree and brought Muriel safely down in his arms. The cat was taken to the shelter house while a C. Q. D. message was sent to "The Battery Dolphin" to come to the rescue of his pet if he ever wanted to see her alive again.

Burley Tobacco Society Declares It Gives Highest Price for Crops.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 26.—The Burley Tobacco Society of Kentucky, composed of farmers who produce burley tobacco, has brought an action in the Clark Circuit Court of that State against a combination of independent manufacturers for the breaking of a contract.

In their affidavit they declare the Tobacco Trust bought 75 per cent. of the Burley Tobacco Society holdings of the crop of 1906 and 1907 at highest prices, and the remainder of the crop was sold to the independent manufacturers under a contract which they are accused of breaking.

GEN. J. H. GILMAN DIES SUDDENLY

Said to Have Ordered the First Rifle Shot Fired in the Civil War.

HE HELD FORT PICKENS

Did Not Surrender Although Stormed by 5,000 Confederates—Honored by Chamber of Commerce.

Gen. Jeremiah H. Gilman, U. S. A., retired, who is said to have ordered the first rifle shot to be fired in the civil war, died last night at the Oriental Hotel, Manhattan Beach, in his seventy-ninth year. He had been in ill-health for two months, but his death came very suddenly. He was the son of Jeremiah Gilman of Gilmantown, N. H., which was named after him, and was born in Thomaston, Me.

Gen. Gilman was graduated from West Point Military Academy in 1856, was commissioned Second Lieutenant on Oct. 31 the same year, and First Lieutenant on April 27, 1861, and was made Captain of infantry in May the same year.

On the outbreak of the civil war Lieut. Gilman, with Lieut. Slemmer and seventy soldiers belonging to Company G of the First United States Artillery, held Fort Pickens, which was located on an island, and commanded the entrance to the Harbor of Pensacola, Fla. It is asserted that the first rifle-shot in the war was fired when seven Confederate soldiers tried to pass the pickets at night and failed.

Later Fort Sumter fell, but Fort Pickens held out, although it was stormed by 5,000 Confederates, until reinforcements arrived by the fleet from New York. The Union Admiral and navy yard at Pensacola surrendered to Gen. Bragg, but it was of no use to the Confederate army, because Fort Pickens commanded the entrance to the harbor, and was the only fortification south of Mason and Dixon's line that did not surrender.

For the gallant fight he had made against superior numbers the New York Chamber of Commerce presented, then, Capt. Gilman with a big bronze medallion, which was inscribed with the words, "For bravery, fidelity, and patriotism."

President Lincoln specially commended the young officer and appointed him chief of the United States Artillery of the Army of the Cumberland, with which he took part in most of the leading battles of the war. At the battle of Pittsburg Landing he was wounded in the leg and brevetted Major and afterward Colonel.

When the war was over Col. Gilman was appointed Assistant Commissary General at Washington, and served for many years until he was retired under the age limit Nov. 11, 1895.

He was a member of the Army and Navy Clubs of Washington and New York, Union League Club, and Loyal Legion. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. John E. MacKenty of 43 West Fifty-fourth Street, and two sons, Howard K., U. S. N., retired, and Major Edward R., U. S. A., retired, who is a prominent business man in Brooklyn, and ran for Congress for his district last year.

MISSING MAN TURNS UP.

Charles T. Tobin Returns and Asks the Police to Send Him Home.

Policeman William J. Beal of the new West Twentieth Street Station was standing at Twenty-sixth Street and Broadway yesterday, when a man approached him.

"My name is Charles T. Tobin," said the man. "I live at 273 East Tenth Street. Will you show me how to get home?"

Beal recognized the name as that of a man who had been missing from the Tenth Street address since last Friday. His disappearance had been reported to the police by the Rev. Father Marizzi of St. Bridget's Church, in Sixth Street. The priest was notified, and he took Tobin home.

Tobin could not explain at the station house where he had been. He looked ill and haggard. He started from home last Friday to visit friends in White Plains, but never reached his destination.

At the home of Tobin, later, the young man's mother said that her son was a victim of overwork, and that she had not asked him to explain his absence. She expected him to make explanations when he cared to do so, but she would not disturb him at this time.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

UNION PACIFIC DOWN 7½

Prices Close at Lowest—Favorable Bank of England Statement Showing Reserve at Highest Figure of Year.

With only feeble rallies prices declined on the Stock Exchange from the opening of trading yesterday until the close. The selling was not of the precipitous character which accompanied the beginning of last week's decline in the market, but it was none the less effective in depressing prices. In the course of the trading throughout the day, and particularly the fact that the closing prices for the stocks most under pressure were the very lowest of the session indicated urgent liquidation, even though this were conducted with much greater order than characterized last week's selling. Stocks were well taken in the sense that buying orders were sufficient to absorb the stock offered for sale without violent declines between transactions, but at no time was there evidence in any quarter of a disposition to bid up prices. In so far as yesterday's severe decline was anything more than a further sequel to the violent up-bidding of prices two weeks ago, it was attributable to the influence exerted by the apprehension regarding the possible forced withdrawal of Mr. Harriman from participation in the direction of the affairs of the roads with which he is identified. The number of those who take the view that Mr. Harriman's possible withdrawal from active participation in railroad affairs does not mean the lessening of the value or earning power of the Harriman properties must surely outnumber those who adopt the contrary view, but that the influence of the latter in yesterday's stock market was the greater was indicated by the losses which occurred in the Harriman stocks and the lesser declines in other parts of the list. The severity of these declines is apparent in the record of such losses as 7½ points in Union Pacific, 5⅞ points in Southern Pacific, 3⅝ in New York Central, and such further losses as 4⅛ in Reading, 2⅝ in United States Steel, and numerous other losses ranging from 1 to 2 points or more. The exhaustion of margins and the execution of stop orders played their part in yesterday's market, and doubtless operations for the bear account contributed their share to the day's unsettlement, although aggressiveness on the part of the bear party was not as much in evidence yesterday as during the early stages of last week's decline. The volume of transactions yesterday exceeded by a quarter million shares the dealings of the previous day, Union Pacific being the stock upon which the heaviest selling concentrated. This one issue supplied about one-fifth of the entire day's trading.

The day was devoid of developments of special importance in the general situation, one of the most interesting matters recorded being the further increase in the Bank of England's reserve reported in the weekly statement issued yesterday. The bank's proportion of reserve to liabilities now stands at 53.11 per cent., the highest figure of the year, and a figure which has been reached at this date only twice before in the last ten years. The Bank of France's statement showed only nominal changes in the bank's gold and silver holdings, while notes in circulation showed a decrease for the week of about $10,000,000.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26.—Aside from the weakness in the arbitrage group, purely local stocks were but slightly affected by the further drop in prices of securities on the New York Exchange to-day. To be sure, Rapid Transit sagged off a trifle and so did Union Traction, while Asphalt preferred also receded somewhat, but, as a whole, the Philadelphia list was well sustained. At one time Lehigh Valley was down a point, but strong buying orders appeared and the price was lifted back across 85 with surprising ease, and when the market weakened again in the afternoon this gain was well retained.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

COPPERS FRACTIONALLY OFF

Usually Active Issues Close Fractionally Down After Sluggish Trading—American Steel Foundry Bonds Drop.

The weakness on the Stock Exchange yesterday was reflected on the Curb in recessions all along the line, and in the small volume of trading in those issues which usually lead the market there were many fractional losses. At the close losses were also shown in the industrial and bond list as well as among the copper shares which have suffered continual declines in recent markets. Standard Oil sold only 3 shares, and American Tobacco, which on Wednesday was active, reported transactions of only 20 shares. Among the coppers fractional losses were general, although a few issues closed even with opening levels. Of the bonds in which interest appeared the weakest was the 4 per cent. issue of the American Steel Foundry Company, which sold off from 71 to 70½ on transactions of $24,000.

The principal transactions reported yesterday in the outside market, with opening, high, low, and last prices, were as follows:

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Steel a Market Buttress.

When Union Pacific was showing signs of extreme weakness in yesterday's market holders of other stocks were paying more attention to Steel common than to that particular stock. The reason for this was that if a sympathetic weakness developed in Steel and that stock should act as badly as Union Pacific was acting a general and perhaps demoralizing decline might result. The general strength of Steel was regarded as a saving grace in the situation. Although Steel common showed some reaction the test of the stock in the eyes of those watching it was its actual apparent strength apart from the quotations. Some of the industrials were looking a little ragged at times, and undoubtedly the maintenance of Steel common meant much to some of them.

Rumors Working Overtime.

All rumors and gossip centred in Union Pacific. It appeared as if those who are concerned with the manufacture of news could find nothing on which to exercise their wits but Mr. Harriman and Union Pacific. It would probably surprise the telegraph office in the neighborhood of Arden if they should be told how many telegrams alleged to have been filed there were supposedly received in the financial district. Such enterprise in making news to fit market conditions is likely to be overdone, and without doubt most of the Street is now willing to wait for facts and disregard rumor. The continued weakness in Union Pacific, however, galvanized even some of the moribund stories into activity, and they were passed around as something new and fresh.

Professional traders are now supposed to be actively engaged in depressing prices. It is figured out that having some knowledge of conditions and circumstances calculated to bring about lower prices they have joined together in an endeavor to bring about a result which will mean profit to themselves besides being in line with economic logic. This allotting of professional traders in one body on one side or the other of the market does not always prove an accurate index. It is a fact that one well-known professional trader in a wire house has been so consistent a bull that he is still taking losses. His friends do not seem to know on what he bases his position and he is certainly not happy in it. If he had ever betrayed the fault of doggedness it might explain his apparent inability to change to the other side of the market. Heretofore, however, he has had the reputation of changing very often and very quickly. His brokers proffer no advice when he elects to trade from the offices and he seeks no advice when he trades for himself on the floor. Not all of the professionals, therefore, are rabid bears.

Concerted Bear Raid.

Among the explanations proffered to inquisitive persons relative to the particular break in Union Pacific and general weakness throughout the list was one to the effect that it represented a concerted bear raid. The make-up of the raiding party was not disclosed but as usual the leader suggested was one who immures himself in his office all day and who has at times had spats with most of the leading interests. Those who know this man say that one of his peculiarities is a memory for every detail of past events. Presumably he has a more acute or more retentive memory for events in which he himself figured. In that event it is entirely improbable, the Street thinks, that he would lead a raid on one particular stock with which is associated a man who won in his time a signal victory over this alleged leader of the raiders. Possibly if a bear raid be the explanation it is safe to omit the word concerted in describing it.

Bond Men Grumbling.

Bond men who do a street business do not take very kindly to present conditions. Here is how one of the active men sums up the situation: "We did have a period when there was plenty of activity, good buying and good selling, and it looked for a while as if this must continue. Most of us made substantial profits even from the small fractional commissions. Nowadays, however, the commissions are few and quite as fractional as they were when they were plentiful. It is difficult to make trade. There is not the demand for bonds in the first place and in the next place it is difficult to get high-grade bonds. I have an order now for 100,000 first mortgage bonds of one of the big railroads and I have searched the Street high and low for them. Those who have them will not sell them and presumably if I find a seller he will put a prohibitive price on the securities."

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Thursday.

In the early trading on the Consolidated Exchange the tendency of the professional element was to secure profits on the short side, and the covering was conducted on a scale so large as to impart relative firmness to prices, compared with quotations on the New York Stock Exchange. In the afternoon the floor traders, however, again turned bearish and put out fresh short lines in volume. Union Pacific led in activity, with United States Steel next. The day's transactions amounted to 194,210 shares, the heaviest total since June 17. Sixty-seven issues were dealt in.

$19,694,462 EARNINGS FOR B. R. T. SYSTEM

Decrease of $176,104 in Gross from Last Year, but Cut in Expenses Gives a Net Gain.

WINTER BLAMES HIGH TAXES

Favors Old Assessment Method—Also Complains of Transfers—Small Profit on Each Passenger.

The annual report of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company for the year ended June 30 shows gross earnings from operation of $19,694,462, which is a decrease of $176,104 from the returns of the previous year. But a reduction in operating expenses amounting to $544,923 left a gain for the year of $368,819 in net earnings from operation. The decrease in gross was chiefly due to the general business depression and the fact that the company's contracts for the disposition of the city's waste expired in December, causing a loss of $265,809 in gross earnings.

Since the beginning of the calendar year passenger traffic has increased materially, bringing this item up to $128,529 in excess of the same period in 1908. Out of the gross earnings the deduction of $11,394,654 for operating expenses left a balance of $8,299,807, which was increased by $605,817 income from other sources. From the total income of $8,905,624 there was taken for taxes and fixed charges $6,969,015, leaving a net income of $1,936,609. A surplus in the company treasury of $3,853,459 was carried from June 30, 1908, and after adding to this the net income of the fiscal year just closed and deducting from it bond discounts, the two initial quarterly dividends of the company and other charges, a surplus of $4,387,229 remained in the treasury.

The report, which is voluminous in detail and the most complete ever issued by the company, shows that tax charges have about doubled in the last eight years, amounting to $1,337,620 in the year just closed. Commenting on this situation, President Winter makes the statement that in his belief the special franchise tax law is yielding less revenue to the State than the old method of taxing only tangible property. He says:

"There being no method laid down in the Special Franchise Tax law by which the Tax Commissioners are directed to value property and the State Board of Tax Commissioners persisting in its refusal to divulge its methods of appraisal, the resulting assessments seem to be largely a matter of guesswork, reached by no uniform rule, and occasioning great inequalities and injustice."

President Winter also protests against the Federal tax on corporation net income, which he says would entail an additional annual charge of $50,000 approximately upon the system. Another cause of complaint by the President is the transfer system with which the company is burdened. On this point he says:

"The vitality of the transfer evil is worthy of a better cause. Each year it absorbs far more than its proper share of the lean surplus, or unduly increases the deficit from surface operations. Justice to the paying passenger—if the carrier be left out of consideration—demands that the mistaken theory of 'traffic development' under which the reasonable and necessary limitations of this insidious feature of the business have been lost sight of, should be corrected.

"It will be seen that 141,326,128 transfers were redeemed in the last fiscal year—an increase of 110 per cent. over 1904 and an increase of 9.82 per cent. over last year, against an increase of 32 per cent. in the gross passenger earnings, 1909 over 1904, and slightly over one-half of one per cent. in the gross passenger earnings of 1909 over 1908."

The gross earnings per passenger, after the transfer item is deducted, was 3.83 cents for last year. From this is taken 2.17 cents as an operating charge, .25 of a cent for taxes, and 1.06 cents for interest, and rentals, leaving the company .35—barely one-third of a cent for its stockholders.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Gulf Storm Progress Checks Trade—Closes 6 to 13 Points Down.

Cotton showed further irregularity yesterday, an early advance being followed by a sharp reaction in the afternoon, which left the market barely steady at a net decline of 6 to 13 points. The market opened steady at an advance of 2 to 3 points.

Special reports on Georgia and Alabama showed that conditions had been maintained during the month, but many private advices indicate recent deterioration. Showers were reported in Texas, and the progress of the West Indian storm, which has entered the Gulf, caused concern. Contract prices follow:

THE FOREIGN MARKETS.

Harriman Stocks Continue to Fall on the London Exchange.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—Money was in increased demand on the market to-day for settlement and month-end requirements. Discounts were firm.

On the Stock Exchange, although the settlement was concluded satisfactorily, business was slack and the dulness was accentuated by the depression in American shares. Consols eased in spite of the good Bank statement.

American securities opened dull and from ¼ to ⅝ under yesterday's New York closing level. Later the market became steadier and at noon the general list ranged from ⅛ to ½ of a point below parity. The condition of Mr. Harriman's health and the announcement that he had no segregation plans in contemplation were responsible for selling in the forenoon, and this weakness continued in the absence of support. On the receipt of the New York opening prices fluctuated wildly and generally in a downward direction. Union Pacific fell 3 points, Southern Pacific 1½, and the market closed weak, a fraction above the lowest for the day.

PARIS, Aug. 26.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were steady.

Three per cent. rentes closed 98f 20c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 17½c for checks.

BERLIN, Aug. 26.—There was a firm tendency on the Boerse to-day in spite of slight realizations.

To Build at Fort Washington.

Plans have been filed for three five-story apartment houses to be built from plans by Adolph Mertin, at a cost of $220,000, at the southeast corner of Pinehurst Avenue and 178th Street for the Peto Realty Company, of which Isaac Grossmann is President.

As in the case of the Trinity Corporation, the erection of buildings on their land for tenants is a new departure for the Moore Estate, which has for seventy-five years adhered strictly to the policy of leasing land only, and requiring the tenants to erect the buildings. The demand for buildings in this section, however, has increased to such an extent that plans are now being drawn for structures on two other plots of 100 and 150 feet frontage respectively, one of which is to be erected by the estate, and on the other a building and permanent loan is being made.

The first operation of this kind was the recently completed building at the northeast corner of Twenty-first Street and Eleventh Avenue, directly opposite the new docks, on which a building and permanent loan was arranged with the tenants, who erected the building and who sold it before completion. James N. Wells's Sons represented the Moore Estate in these various transactions.

Keen for twenty years the Hotel Belleclaire, at the southwest corner of Broadway and Seventy-seventh Street, at an annual rental of $65,000. Henry Harris the three-story dwelling, 224 West End Avenue; and to Eugene Thalmesninger the three-story dwelling, 332 West Seventy-first Street.

J. B. English has leased for Anton Sattler the store at 222 West Forty-sixth Street to Thomas J. Backes for a term of years.

THE PINES
BAYSHORE – Long Island

Bayshore is one of the handsomest towns on the entire South Shore. It is the home of many wealthy families who have taken up their residence there in preference to all other places. Bayshore is aptly called "The Newport of Long Island." "The Pines" is surrounded by fine private estates, and its permanency as a high class residence community is assured by judicious restrictions.

In response to public demand we announce—

Another Great Special Sales Day

Tomorrow, Aug. 28th

On which day we will continue to sell half-acre plots in "The Pines" at the original price of $560. This property is part of a great natural playground which affords the best fishing, the finest yachting, the safest bathing along the South Shore. Yet it is only a short walk to Bayshore station, with schools, stores, churches and all essentials at hand.

Although the brisk demand for plots in "The Pines" warrants an immediate increase in the price, we will again give all the opportunity to purchase at our introductory offer of

Half-Acre Bungalow Plots

$560 $50 DOWN $10 MONTHLY $560

Remember "The Pines" is improved property and that a half-acre is equal to seven and a half city lots. Streets have been built, sidewalks laid and water mains installed without expense to plot purchasers. At $560 this is the great real estate buy of the year. Whether you invest for pleasure or profit, a half-acre plot in "The Pines" will yield splendid returns.

Cozy Semi-Bungalow

$3,200 Only $500 down

We have a number of "Ackerson" Semi-Bungalows, cozy and ready for occupancy, which may be bought on the same terms. Each stands on a half-acre plot (plenty of room for garden, poultry, stable, etc.), contains all improvements and makes a complete summer or all-year home.

REMEMBER, we are builders and developers, and are prepared to build a home from your own plans, or from ours, and have it ready for spring occupancy. You can pay for it about the same as rent.

FREE TRANSPORTATION Upon application to our New York office. Call or phone 4460 Beekman for reservations.

Trains leave: Flatbush Avenue Station, 10.30 A. M.; Long Island City, 10.15 A. M.

TO APPEAL RATE CASE.

Commerce Commission Likely to Carry Decision to Supreme Court.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—It is practically certain that the Inter-State Commerce Commission will appeal from the decision of the United States Circuit Court at Chicago nullifying the order of the commission reducing through rates on freight from Atlantic seaboard cities to the Missouri River. According to the opinion handed down by Judge Grosscup the commission had exceeded its powers in attempting to adjust rates between localities. In the opinion of the commission, according to information, the commission's order applied only to specific complaints made against particular rates.

The question involved is the old one of long and short haul rates, and the commission's order was, in fact, a material reduction on the through rates from the sum of the two rates from the coast to the Mississippi River and from that river on to the Missouri River. That basis for modification of rates is not questioned in the decision, and at the commission's office it is evident that there is much hope of obtaining a reversal of the Circuit Court's decision from the Supreme Court.

An objection raised in the decision to the order of the commission was that it did not—and for physical reasons could not—regulate an intermediate rate to harmonize with the rather sweeping changes introduced by the commission's order. The position of the commission on this subject is that to have fixed the rate from New York to the Missouri, for instance, under the unfair discrimination clause, it would then be in order to see that rates from Pittsburg and other intermediate cities were made to conform to the standard set in the first instance.

By any other means, they say, they would be either forbidden by judicial decisions from fixing any rates without fixing all, or they will have to be given the needed power and equipment by Congress for taking up the whole subject of inter-State rates and fixing them on its own initiative.

SHEPARD CREDITORS AT ODDS.

Dispute Claims Against Bankrupt Bankers—One for $6,000,000.

A meeting of creditors of E. D. Shepard & Co., bankers and brokers of 31 Nassau Street, was held yesterday at the office of William Allen, referee in bankruptcy at 67 Wall Street, to prove claims and elect a Trustee. About fifty claims were filed, the largest for $6,000,000, and the smallest for 20 cents. Most of the claims were filed by Kellogg & Rose and by William D. Gaillard, each of whom objected to many of the claims of the other. Referee Allen decided to put off the proof of claims and election of a Trustee until certain court proceedings are decided.

Two claims of the Yankee Fuel Company for $1,055,071 were filed by the rival Boards of Directors. Among the large claims filed were those of Santa Fé, Liberal & Englewood Railroad Company, $6,000,000; Santa Fé, Raton & Des Moines Railroad Company, $526,000; Santa Fé, Raton & Eastern Railroad Company, $37,000, and Raton Ice Company, $75,000.

John S. Shepard, Jr., the receiver in bankruptcy for the firm, stated that there are seven or eight bondholders' committees, all of whom want different things in the reorganization of the various corporations which were promoted by the firm. He saw only one way of settling the matter—selling the securities and letting the bondholders' committee which believes them worth the most pay the most for them.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Decorated Earthenware Money Boxes Are Held Not to be "Toys."

Fancy earthenware money boxes are dutiable properly at the rate of 60 per cent., according to a decision made yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers. The case before the customs tribunal was that of Lazarus, Rosenfeld & Lehmann. When the boxes reached this port the customs authorities decided that they fell within the provision for "decorated earthenware," duty being accordingly imposed at the rate of 60 per cent.

The importers set up the contention before the board that the merchandise should be allowed to enter as "toys" with a customs tax of only 35 per cent. This contention, however, General Appraiser Hay, who writes the decision for the board, holds to be without merit. In overruling the claim Judge Hay says in part:

"Toys composed of china, porcelain, parian, bisque, earthen or stone ware are expressly excluded from the operation of paragraph 418 (the paragraph relating to toys.) A representative of the importers upon the witness stand testified that the articles in question are made of common plaster. Upon examination, however, it was apparent that he knew nothing about it, and was simply giving his opinion without any special knowledge. This, we think, is insufficient to overcome the presumption in favor of the report of the Appraiser and classification of the Collector. In any event, the testimony is not necessarily inconsistent with the assessment."

Havemeyers Lose Point in City Suit.

Supreme Court Justice Giegerich denied the application yesterday of Louisine W. Havemeyer, Adeline H. Frelinghuysen, and Horace Havemeyer as executors under the will of Henry O. Havemeyer, to examine, before trial, the Chief Engineer of the Department of Water, Gas and Electricity, in an action brought by them against the City for damage to a building owned by the estate, caused by the bursting of a water main.

HARRY J. HOFFMEIR.—Judge Holt has appointed William Lesser receiver in bankruptcy for Harry J. Hoffmeir, florist at 2,297 Broadway. It was stated that he has outstanding accounts of $400 and $300 in two banks, which has been attached by a creditor for $361.

RUDOLPH LUHRS.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Rudolph Luhrs, liquor dealer, of 464 Fourth Avenue, show liabilities of $7,103 and assets of $2,890, consisting of stock, $1,290; fixtures, $100; excise certificate, $185; good accounts, $468; doubtful accounts, $477; surety for rent, $168, and cash on hand, $2. Among the creditors are Michael J. Jennings, $1,325; Henry Muhlker, $1,075; R. H. Casey, $587; H. & H. Reiners, $571; Mutual Bank, $500, and Charles Weller, $500.

JOHN H. WULFF.—John H. Wulff, living at 200 Wadsworth Avenue, formerly a grocer, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $2,180 and no assets. Of the liabilities $1,265 is for rent of five places and $730 is for indorsing notes of John H. Wulff, Incorporated. A petition in bankruptcy was filed against the corporation on June 8, 1908, and was afterward dismissed on a settlement of 33 1-3 cents on the dollar, and it gave up business last November. Mr. Wulff was in the grocery business for ten years, and had five stores on Amsterdam and Columbus Avenues.

ORCHARD STABLES.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against the Orchard Stables, (corporation,) at 49 Orchard Street, by the Franklin Feed Stores, a creditor for $629, on a judgment obtained for feed sold. It was alleged that the corporation was insolvent and committed an act of bankruptcy by allowing the above judgment to be recovered and recorded against it. The corporation was incorporated in 1901 with capital stock of $10,000, and Davis Berkman, wholesale meat dealer of 151 East Broadway, was its President for about eight years. A petition in bankruptcy was filed against him on March 6, and his schedule showed liabilities of $397,437. In his assets was one share of stock of the Orchard Stables, valued at $10. In his examination he stated that he sold all the other shares he had some time ago, but did not remember where or the name of the man he sold it to.

FRANK AND SALVATORE PERGOLIZZI.—Judge Holt has appointed Henry P. Butler receiver in bankruptcy for Frank and Salvatore Pergolizzi, manufacturers of ostrich feathers and willow plumes at 338 East 107th Street, and of Joseph Syracuse, manufacturer of ostrich feathers at 2,124 Second Avenue. It was stated that Salvatore Pergolizzi and Syracuse have disappeared, and it is believed they have gone to Italy, and have either taken their property away with them or have concealed it in this country. It was also stated that it was believed Frank Pergolizzi is about to depart for Italy. Syracuse is a relative of Salvatore Pergolizzi. The liabilities of Salvatore Pergolizzi are estimated at more than $15,000 and his assets at $3,000. The liabilities of Frank Pergolizzi are estimated at more than $10,000 and the assets at $2,000. The liabilities of Joseph Syracuse are estimated at $8,000 and his assets at $1,500.

Out of Town.

BOSTON, Aug. 26.—Frederick H. Rudd, a trader of East Weymouth, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy to-day. His liabilities amounted to $49,230, of which $17,805 is unsecured, and notes, $22,325. He has no assets.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 26.—Judge A. M. J. Cochran of the United States Court appointed R. M. Jackson, a banker and coal man of London, Ky., receiver for the New Bell Jellico Coal Company, with headquarters here and at Pittsburg. The company is a half-million-dollar corporation, and has been involved in litigation because of allegations of fraud made by Charles E. Coffin of Indianapolis.

BAKER DENIES POLICE REQUEST AS "SILLY"

They Would Be Impertinent If They Weren't Silly, He Says in Letter to Force.

TO APPROVE RESIGNATIONS

Advises That Course for Those Whose Dignity Suffers Too Much—Will Consider Three-Platoon Plan.

Commissioner Baker denied in a circular letter yesterday the petition sent to him last week by the presidents of the four benevolent associations of the Police Department requesting that various rules laid down by former Commissioner Bingham be rescinded, and complaining that they were severe.

In his reply Commissioner Baker refuses, in vigorous terms, every one of the requests, remarking that he considers all but one of them "silly." The only one he deigns to treat seriously is that of the patrolmen in asking for the restoration of the "three-platoon" system. This, he says, he "is willing to take up at some future time," but goes no further.

The Commissioner hits the Lieutenants hard in replying to their request for gold or gold-plated shields in place of the present ones of nickel and brass. The Lieutenants suggested to him that to have to wear cheap-looking shields was "not in keeping with the dignity of their rank."

The Lieutenants and Sergeants combined in a request that the numbers be taken off their shields; the Sergeants wanted the rule abrogated by which they are obliged to call up their respective police staions when on their "rounds"; the Lieutenants asked for the privilege of levying assessments; the Sergeants desired also that they be not compelled to sleep in the staion dormitories with the patrolmen, as it "disturbed their rest and repose," while the doormen asked for an hour for meals when on night duty.

All of these requests the Commissioner refuses. Besides sending the letter to the presidents the Commissioner ordered that a copy go to each police station to be read at roll call so that every member of the force might hear it. Here is the letter:

Police Department, City of New York.
300 Mulberry Street.
New York, Aug. 25, 1909.

Sirs: In answer to the request from you that certain rules and regulations of the department be amended and that the three-platoon system be re-established, which I received last week and which was given to the press by you at the same time, in order that all members of the force may know what I think of your request, I am sending in a circular communication to the force my views, which are as follows:

Among the number of requests made by you, only one is debatable, that is, the three-platoon system, which I shall be willing to take up at some future time.

The others, if they were not silly, I might consider impertinent, for there is nothing suggested in the amendments offered by you that will in any way increase the efficiency of the force, and in the judgment of the framers of the Charter, the authority and power to make rules and regulations was invested in the Commissioner, and I fail to find anywhere in the Charter that the reverse was intended.

To permit members of the force to make rules for their own government would soon create chaos in the department.

The members of the police force in New York are paid larger salaries than any other similar body of men in the United States, and it should be so, for they have greater responsibilities, but you should never forget that a serious duty is imposed upon you, and that while your personal comfort should be considered, to a certain extent, the needs of the service must come first.

I should be sorry to see the members of force assume the attitude of a labor organization by getting together as associations within the department and making such demands as their Presidents may deem essential for greater ease and less work. This would be very bad for the men.

Therefore, your request to amend the rules is denied in toto, with the exception of the three-platoon proposition, which may be renewed at some future time.

While Commissioner it will be my aim to study the needs of the men at all times, and any who feel that any injustice is being done them can always reach me through the proper channel.

In closing I wish to say, if the signers of this request feel that they are suffering in any way from a lack of dignity imposed upon them by the operation of the present rules, or if any one among their associations is, a request to be permitted to resign will receive my O. K. upon presentation. Respectfully,

W. F. BAKER, Police Commissioner.

While none of the four presidents would comment on the Commissioner's letter, no secret was made of the fact that they were bitterly disappointed. Some members of the force had felt, all along, it was said, that the requests would be denied, but none anticipated that the Commissioner would be quite so positive about it.

Many agreed that the circular letter grated upon their dignity almost as much as wearing numbers on their shields.

BLIND GIRL MAY YET LAND.

Brothers Come to Sister's Aid Whose Father Failed to Become a Citizen.

One of the most interesting cases that have come before Commissioner Williams at Ellis Island was that of Josephine Bloomenfeld, a blind girl, 20 years old, who arrived here all alone yesterday on the Graf Waldersee from Hamburg. Her father, Jonas Bloomenfeld, came over twelve years ago, and settled at Elizabethport, N. J. Later he sent for his three sons, who are all married now and are doing well in this country.

Josephine, who has been blind since she was 2 years old, was left in Germany till the last so that she could attend an excellent school for the blind in that country and get a good education. Owing to the kindness of friends she was sent to the liner in Hamburg safely and berthed in the second cabin. When her father applied to the Commissioner yesterday for a permit to take his daughter home it was discovered that he was not a citizen, and he was informed that Josephine could not be allowed to land with him.

Bloomenfeld's three sons are all citizens, and it was arranged that they should go to the island to-day and swear that their blind sister will not become a public charge. They will then be permitted to take her to their father's home.

Steamer Hits Lumber Schooner.

The lumber-laden schooner Henry Weller arrived yesterday from Fernandina, Fla., with jibboom gone and considerable damage about the bows. Wednesday morning, off the Capes of Delaware, the schooner was in collision with the British steamer Cuzco, bound from Philadelphia for the west coast of South America. The steamer ran across the schoner's bow, cut off the jibboom, and brought down the head sails. The steamer, learning that no assistance was required, proceeded.

WOMEN'S EQUALITY BANAL.

Canadian Scientist Calls it a Menace to Perpetuation of Race.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba, Aug. 26.—Geological research, chemistry, engineering, economic science, and agriculture were among the subjects discussed at to-day's sessions of the seventy-ninth annual convention of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. Sir Duncan Johnston, President of the geographical section, led an interesting meeting, at which the most recent discoveries by well-known explorers were discussed.

Prof. H. E. Armstrong, President of the chemical section, declared his faith in the progress of chemistry toward solving the problems of life and sex. He found fault with present conditions of society, which, he said, place no hindrance in the way of the unfit. "Those who presumably are the fittest," he said, "are failing to contribute in proper proportion to the perpetuation of their race. The condition of affairs to-day affords a most striking exemplification of the slowness with which civilized nations are learning to appreciate the lessons of science.

"No problem can compare in importance with that of the future of our race. * * * Not only do we encourage deterioration at the lower end of the scale of intelligence, * * * we are now through our system of education courting failure also at the upper end. Herbert Spencer forcibly drew attention many years ago to the tendency which the development of individuality must have to depress fertility and to the evil effects of severe mental labor on women especially. It has been stated that in the United States of America the higher education of girls has been proved to sterilize them. * * * The most disquieting feature of the times is the revolt of women against their womanhood and their claim to be on an equality with man and to compete with men in every way. There should be no question of equality raised; when comparison is made between complementary factors the question of equality does not and cannot come into consideration. It is clear that should the struggle arise—and it is to be feared that it is coming upon us—there can be but one issue: Woman must fail, and in failing must carry man to her destruction."

O'SHAUGHNESSY IN COURT.

Tammany Captain Forced to Appear Against Man Who Sot at Him.

Michael O'Shaughnessy, Tammany Captain in the Twenty-seventh Assembly District, and proprietor of a saloon at 114 East Forty-first Street, was in Yorkville Court yesterday afternoon to press a complaint of felonious assault against William J. Bowen, President of the Bricklayers' and Masons' International Union of America, who shot at him last Monday night. O'Shaughnessy failed to appear when the case was called Tuesday, and a subpoena was issued for him by Magistrate Cornell. There was some difficulty in serving the subpoena, but the Tammany Captain was found yesterday.

Bowen's lawyer, Max Steinert, asked for an adjournment until Saturday, so he could get two witnesses.

"What is the use of having witnesses?" inquired Magistrate Cornell. "If your client shot at this man I must hold him for trial."

"But we want to prove that he was perfectly justified in shooting," replied Steinert.

The case was adjourned finally until Saturday, and Bowen was released in $1,000 bail, furnished by Eugene J. Flood of 200 West Fortieth Street. The Tammany man said he would appear Saturday.

STANDARD OIL PROTESTS TAX.

Prepares to Appeal a Big Increase in Property Valuations in Bayonne.

Tax Assessor Henry Hinse of Bayonne, N. J., yesterday filed with the Hudson County Board of Equalization of Taxes his books fixing the amount of money to be raised by taxation for 1909-1910 in Bayonne at $44,086,472, an increase of $7,292,598 over this year. A week ago Hinse handed his books to the County Board, but they were returned to him for a week to make adjustments.

After a hearing given to representatives of the Standard Oil Company, which pays about one-fifth of the taxes of Bayonne, Hinse increased the valuation of the Standard Oil property from $7,600,000 to $13,000,000.

A protest was made against these figures, and the County Board directed Hinse to take a week to go over the books before finally presenting them for confirmation. His action yesterday means that the Standard Oil figures must stand.

At the hearing a week ago, Col. Charles Fuller, legal representative of the Standard Oil Company, declared if there was no agreeable adjustment made in his client's valuations, an appeal would be taken to the courts and the collection of one-fifth of Bayonne taxes would be held up.

If the County Board confirms Hinse's books, not alone will the Standard Oil Company appeal, but the Tidewater Oil Company and other corporations. In this event Bayonne may be crippled financially.

NOT A RIPPLE FROM FOWLER'S BROADSIDE

Congressman's District Merely Yawns and Wonders What He Was Talking About.

UPHILL FIGHT AHEAD OF HIM

His Political Opponents Likely to Contest His Renomination—Other Candidates.

The attack on Speaker Cannon of the House of Representatives by Representative Charles N. Fowler of the Fifth Congressional District of New Jersey, has been received with apathy by his constituents. Mr. Fowler's Currency bill was not popular among his followers, and his announced candidacy to succeed Speaker Cannon was viewed with apprehension. The attack, therefore, failed to arouse any enthusiasm in a district which is anything but friendly to Cannonism.

The Fifth District, which Mr. Fowler represents, is composed of Morris, Union, and Warren Counties, forming a slice of the State from tidewater to the Delaware, east and west. It combines rural and manufacturing sections. Union County, whose seat is Elizabeth, where Mr. Fowler and United States Senator John Kean reside, is normally Republican, with New Idea and reform leanings, while Morris is one of the chief regular Republican strongholds of New Jersey.

Mr. Fowler, in spite of the aid of a Presidential year, carried his district by a few hundred votes in excess of 7,000. Candidates have already announced their intention of contesting his renomination, chief among them being James McGraw of Madison, who was county chairman for a time.

For this reason the force of Mr. Fowler's letter was less than it would have been from any Representative in New Jersey. In political circles yesterday it was regarded as a personal affair, which, it was said, would be appraised as such by constituents of the Fifth District. Elsewhere it was regarded as a political move first of all, and, secondarily, as a reproach for Speaker Cannon's failure to permit him to carry out his currency reform schemes by reappointment as Chairman of the Finance Committee.

The effect of the letter is lessened also by another reason, the noted indifference of northern New Jersey to National politics. Strong efforts made by powerful Republican and Democratic organs last Autumn to force the Cannon issue before the voters were met with indifference that was nowhere better shown than in Essex County, where Representative R. Wayne Parker had declared for Cannon openly and against the advice of his friends, who urged silence. Mr. Parker got a substantial plurality along with Taft, whereas in the local fights, including the Colby movement, the Democrats took most of the important offices.

"If Mr. Fowler had spoken concerning excise or constitutional amendments for New Jersey or for some other local issue," said a Republican leader in Newark yesterday," his words would have caused a sensation. As he merely touched upon a subject of National importance, the New Jersey voter looks on unmoved and wonders what the row is about. I imagine the Fifth District has too much to think about in the matter of crops on the one hand and the Assembly situation on the other to give Mr. Fowler more than passing notice."

The New Jersey newspapers have not been impressed by Mr. Fowler's attack, one anti-Cannon organ calling it "long-nursed personal resentment," while others were more interested in commenting upon alleged "swear words" Mr. Cannon is reported to have used on hearing of the letters.

MERCHANTS RAP CANNON.

Pennsylvania Association Adopts Resolution Censuring Speaker.

POTTSVILLE, Penn., Aug. 26.—At the closing session of the Pennsylvania Retail Merchants' Association Convention here to-day a resolution was adopted condemning the action of Speaker Cannon of the National House of Representatives in not re-appointing Congressman Fowler of New Jersey as Chairman of the Committee on Banking and Currency. The resolution is as follows:

Resolved, That we condemn the action of Congressman Joseph G. Cannon in removing Congressman C. N. Fowler from the Chairmanship of the Committee on Banking and Currency, the office which he has acceptably filled for many years. We recognize Congressman Fowler as the author of the present Gold Standard Currency act.

Resolved, That we protest against the re-election of Congressman Cannon.

Resolved, That we protest against the evident intent of the Speaker of the House to discipline members for acting according to their convictions on the floor of the House.

DIES TO SAVE HUSBAND.

Wife of Tailor Jumps in Front of Him When Angry Customer Shoots.

Angered because his tailor threatened to sell the suit of clothes he had ordered, Frank Zara, 20 years old, of 33 Bergen Street, Newark, N. J., shot Mrs. Antonio Neri on Wednesday night as she threw herself in front of her husband in their little tailoring shop at 401 Central Avenue, Newark. She died a short time afterward at the City Hospital, the bullet having entered her right eye and pierced the brain. She was 31 years old and the mother of two young children.

Zara was captured by two nineteen-year-old youths, Samuel Kenny and Frank Hoagland, who heard the shot and saw Zara run. They pursued him several blocks, tripped him, and pinned him to the ground. Holding him there, they were alarmed by the approach of an angry crowd of the woman's neighbors, who wanted to kill Zara. While Kenny held the man Hoagland held off the crowd until the police arrived.

Later Zara confessed, say the police. Zara ordered a suit of clothes several weeks ago, paying $5 deposit. He failed to call for the clothes, and Neri notified him that the clothes would be sold unless they were paid for. Zara called on the tailor on Wednesday, and after an angry interview started to leave. As he left the place he turned, drawing a revolver. Mrs. Neri saw the move and jumped in front of her husband, receiving the bullet.

"The Sherlock Holmes
OF THE Russian Revolution"
In The Times Next Sunday

will appear the first installment of Bourtseff's account of his unmasking of the spies in the revolutionary camp.

The title given him here, that of "the Sherlock Holmes of the revolution," is the one universally applied to him in Europe, where his exploits in running down and exposing Azeff, Harting and others have created a sensation. Now he tells his own story, and it is one of breathless interest. Aside from the interest attaching to all good detective stories, especially to true ones, this narrative is of importance as showing the methods of the Russian Government in a way which is a revelation even to the revolutionary leaders themselves.

CROSSING THE ALPS IN A BALLOON.

Spelterini's flight, as spectacular and more dangerous than Bleriot's trip over the Channel, has been briefly reported in the cable dispatches. The Times next Sunday will give Spelterini's account of his flight, with that of a fellow-passenger, and it is as thrilling as anything in the recent history of aviation.

AMONG THE OTHER FEATURES

will be the second chapter of James Creelman's experiences in investigating the Armenian massacres; Maxim Gorky's opinion of the changed tendency of modern literature; a bright letter from the "Japanese Schoolboy"; Hy. Mayer's illustrated commentary on the topics of the week, and a number of others.

IN THE PICTORIAL SECTION

will be found a page of pictures showing the Kaiser on yachting trips with the King of Italy, the Prince of Wales, and other royal friends of his; a page on the tennis tournament at Southampton; another of the war game in Massachusetts; favorites in the theatrical season just beginning; manoeuvres of bicycle soldiers in the Alps; pictures of the Hollywood amateur circus, and others equally timely and interesting.
